PREMIER MACDONALD SPENT A BUSY DAY AT WASHINGTON; HONORARY DEGREE CONFERRED

Washington, Oct. 9.—To the Tomb of Unknown Soldier Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald today brought his tribute—a wreath of red, white and blue flowers, standing out against a background of rich, green leaves.

While khaki-clad soldiers stood at "present arms," their bayonets shining in the afternoon sunlight, Great Britain's Prime Minister approached the simple, white marble tomb overlooking the woods and hills of the quiet Potomac Valley, and placed before it his wreath.

Then he stood for a moment in the centre of the space which had been roped off for the ceremony his head bared and his eyes on the marble, before returning to the car which bore him, his daughter Isabel and members of the party back to the capital.

Just prior to visiting the tomb of the Unknown Soldier Mr. MacDonald and his daughter, accompanied by William R. Castle, Assistant Secretary of State and Sir Esme Howard British Ambassador, motored out to Mount Vernon and placed a wreath on the tomb of George Washington.

The visits to Mount Vernon and Arlington were two items on the very crowded program of the last day which the British Prime Minister spent in Washington.

The day opened with a breakfast given in Mr. MacDonald's honor by the Secretary of Labor. It closed with a "stag" dinner given to him by Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State which was honored by the presence of President Hoover.

Had Busy Day

In the hours which intervened between these two events Mr. MacDonald received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from George Washington University attended a luncheon of the Overseas Writers and had his final discussion with the President.

In the brief address with which he received the honor conferred upon him, Mr. MacDonald expressed regret that he had been unable to accept invitations from other universities of the United States. Unfortunately, he said, he had never attended a university, but had found it necessary to acquire his education in his spare hours. But it must not be forgotten that the finest education was that acquired by toil, labor and saving.

"You can never acquire anything in this world except by your own efforts and sacrifices," the Prime Minister said. "High office in state and business will never come to you as a gift. The way is hard, and only men and women of courage and stability can attain the results."

Tribute to Mr. MacDonald's character was voiced by Dr. C. H. Marvin, president of George Washington University who conferred the degree. The doctorate was conferred in the university's annual fall convocation at Memorial Continental hall.

At the Overseas' Writers' luncheon, the Prime Minister gave a brief address on a confidential nature.

Official Parting

The official parting of President Hoover and Mr. MacDonald took place at 6 o'clock in the evening although they met later at the informal dinner given by Mr. Stimson.

Today brings to a close a visit upon which the eyes of the world have been directed for the past week. While specific and detailed information of what occurred in the long discussions between the Prime Minister and the President is lacking, there is every reason to believe that essential progress in the direction of disarmament and peace had been made.

Goodwill Fostered

One thing, however, appears certain. The unique visit of a British Prime Minister to a United States President has helped materially to foster the spirit of goodwill between the two great English-speaking nations. It has resulted in a clearer understanding of respective points of view. And, finally, it will give both courage to continue with the work now so well begun.

Tomorrow morning Mr. MacDonald and his daughter Isabel, will look their last on Washington, for some time at least. With the members of their party they go to Philadelphia, where Mr. MacDonald will entertain at luncheon those physicians who took care of him during his illness in 1927.

From Philadelphia they go to New York to remain in that city over the week and before leaving for Canada.

COUSIN OF THE LIEUT. GOVERNOR GETS A MOOSE

Mr. McIntosh bowed over at the first shot. The animal was skinned and dressed and the carcass loaded on to a hastily constructed catamaran which was propelled across a lake. It was then loaded upon a team, brought to the settlement and transferred to Mr. McIntosh's auto which brought it to this city. The carcass of a deer which Mr. McIntosh shot a few days earlier, was also brought in and he plans to take it to his home in Cleveland. When he arrives home it will be the chief element in a game dinner for himself and friends.

Mr. McIntosh left here about twenty eight years ago, locating in Ohio, and being a member of a very clever family it is scarcely necessary to say that he has made good. He plans to make another trip to his old home next year and will bring some friends with him to show what this province has to offer in the way of sport and recreation.

Ill at Hospital

Mrs. George O'Ree, local woman, is quite seriously ill at the Victoria Public Hospital and her condition is causing her friends and relatives some concern.

DIED

MACNAUGHTON—Entered into rest Oct. 10th, Mrs. Margaret MacNaughton, wife of Robert MacNaughton, aged 56 years. Funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 12th, from the late home at two o'clock. The service will be conducted by Rev. A. W. Wentworth assisted by Rev. J. G. Berry. Interment will be made in the cemetery at Kingsley.

CARE IN REGARD TO FIRES URGED ON PEOPLE

always be taken in homes, camps, forests, etc., to cut down on the loss of life and property which each year becomes an added danger.

A United States tourist sportsman who was in the city a few days ago, in speaking with a Mail reporter, made the statement that he had been erasing much about the virgin forests of New Brunswick and had long planned on a hunting trip here, which he was only able to do this year. Arriving here he was surprised to find the number of tracts laid waste by obviously by the carelessness of some pleasure loving campers, who cared not a whit for the forests so long as they enjoyed their own particular stay in the woods.

However, unofficial figures this year show that the past season as regards forest fires has been much better than in past years. Better equipment for fire fighting, and sensible precaution by the people, to gather with more favourable weather, and the numerous lookout towers have factors in the present improvement in conditions. There has been a noticeable improvement in all branches of fire prevention during the season of 1929.

LOOKING FOR REMEDY FOR SEASICKNESS

Swinemuende, Pomerania, Oct. 10.—A medical commission here has begun experiments on two government motor vessels in the Baltic Sea to try out various remedies against seasickness. Regular passengers on the boats will be asked to co-operate by making the necessary tests.

The commission is headed by Dr. Klare, medical counselor for the Prussian Ministry of Trade, and is conducting the experiments which will last until the middle of October at the suggestion of the German Ministry of Transportation.

INQUEST WAS ADJOURNED UNTIL MONDAY

Kentville, N. S., Oct. 9.—The inquest into the death of Wilis C. Newcomb, of Moncton, killed when he was struck by a car here last night, was adjourned until next Monday for additional evidence. Edward Desborough driver of the car that struck Newcomb, said he was travelling about 15 miles an hour and did not see the man, owing to his eyes being blinded by the lights of another car. W. H. Spears, of Moncton, who was accompanying Newcomb, said he could not recall another automobile passing at the time his companion was hit.

Dinner Music

The slow, lifting rhythms of the "Missouri Waltz," the vivacious harmonies of "Piccolo Pete," and the clever syncopations of "Maybe, Who Knows?" highlight the program of dinner music which Vincent Lopez and his Klyctroneers broadcast through the NBC System, Thursday evening, October 10, at 8.30 o'clock.

From London it is now possible to travel by airplane to 73 European cities, all of which are connected by regular air services.

* * * * * SPECIAL ATTRACTION AT GAIETY THEATRE * * * * *

"The Rainbow Man," is the Photo Play, featuring Eddie Dowling, at the Gaiety, Thursday and for the balance of the week.

The picture is replete with songs, such as "The Rainbow Man" and "Sleepy Valley," done to good effect by Eddie. There's a couple of stories told too, that are worth lending an ear to. Marion Nixon surpasses anything she's ever done, here; and Frankie Darro darn near steals the picture away from his boss.

Perhaps the chief charm in this one rests with the naturalness of the dialogue. Not a stilted, affected line in the whole works. It is—as Eddie's famous mother would say—"gra-a-a and intermint."
