Britain May Resume Trade Relations With Soviet

The Campaign is Now in Full Swing and May Soon Reach an Important Stage—Trade Delegation to Leave For Russia on Monday—Trotzky Predicts That the U. S. May Soon Enter Russian Market Soon.

(By HERBERT BAILEY, British-United Press Staff Correspondent.)
LONDON, March 19—The new campaign to pave the way for the resumption of trade relations between Britain and the Union of Soviet Socialist republics is now in full swing and will reach an important stage when the Anglo-Russian trade delegation, formed of representative business men leaves for Russia next Monday. Trotzky has been telling British newspaper correspondents in Constantinople that if Britain does not get into the Russian market soon, the United States will. Moreover, he advises Britain to forget about pre-revolution debts and to remember that by financing the Russian whites, Britain caused an enormous loss to Russia, not only in money but in bloodshed. Therefore Russia he points out has counter claims against Britain.

REFUGEES ARRIVING AT SHANGHAI

Advised to Quit Nanking Because of Increasing Anti Foreign Sentiment.

(Special to THE DAILY MAIL by the British United Press)
Shanghai, China, March 19—Foreign women and children were arriving here in considerable numbers today from Nanking, capital of the nationalist government.
They said they had been advised to leave Nanking because of increasing anti-foreign sentiment among the natives. The nationalist political society convention is in session at the capital with serious political splits threatened over internal affairs.
The British cruiser Berwick was ordered to Nanking at full speed yesterday. Two gunboats here were awaiting orders to sail.

TO BROADCAST A MANGE OF MUSIC AND DRAMA

The art of radio production takes a long step forward in "The Camoah Mystery," an impressionistic mélange of music and drama which will be presented through the National Broadcasting Company's System every Saturday night, beginning March 23, at 9.00 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time.
The "Camoah Mystery" series, which is sponsored by the Packard Electric Company of Warren, Ohio, concerns the desperate plottings of a mythical bandit gang to ruin Lady Motor Power, and the adroit heroism of the noble Sir Packard in keeping her out of the villains' clutches.
The production is unusual in that the characteristics of the six bandits are mistakenly indicated by their voices. NBC program makers devoted weeks to their search for six voices of precisely the right qualities.
Modernistic music, some of it of the "creepy" variety, supplies atmospheric background for "The Camoah Mystery," and the entire entertainment is far different from anything yet heard by radio listeners.

DIGBY MAN WAS STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Isaac Ellis Was Hurlled From His Ox Cart During Storm and Run Over.

Digby, N. S., March 18—Found on the roadside after being struck by lightning and run over by an ox team, Isaac Ellis, of Digby, is in a serious condition, following a miraculous escape from death while traveling to Culloden, Digby county, during the storm on Saturday night.
In company with Newton Ross and his son, James, Ellis left Digby on Saturday evening on his way to Culloden, seven miles away, in an ox team loaded with supplies of gasoline and lobster gear. The rain and lightning storm had increased in violence and when traveling down the side of the mountain near Culloden, Ross and his son got off the team and were following behind. It was raining very hard and the elder Ross had taken his overcoat to put it on. Ellis had remained on the wagon.
Suddenly a terrific bolt of lightning seemed to strike in the road, directly over the ox team. Ross heard Ellis groaning and, searching in the darkness, he found the man lying near the ditch. With the aid of his son, Ellis was lifted on the cart and taken to the home of Mrs. John Ross. The man was badly shocked, his clothing torn and both legs badly bruised, where the cart had passed over him. Ellis remembered the flash of lightning and being lifted bodily out of the cart and hurled on the road ahead, where he remained until the wheels passed over him.
The oxen were not injured, but the barrel of gasoline was found in the ditch 30 feet away.

page of the Evening Standard says:
"We learn that important business men, industrialists here, are making arrangement for an Imperial Trade and Finance Conference with the object of securing closer co-operation between the British and Empire industries, in order to increase trade and assist in the financing of various development schemes. The leading spirits are believed to be Lord Melchett and Sir Robert Horne. It is probable that an executive committee will be formed in Britain shortly."

New Earl of Egmont Makes an Inspection Of His Family Estates

Found Nobody to Greet Him When He Arrived From Canada to Claim Ancestral Rights—Took the Matter Philosophically and Put up at a Nearby Inn.

(Special to THE DAILY MAIL by the British United Press.)
RINGWOOD, HAMPSHIRE, ENG., March 19—After spending the night at a nearby inn, the Earl of Egmont, formerly Frederick P. Jones, Canadian rancher, made a tour of inspection of his family estate here today.
When he arrived last evening to claim his ancestral rights to Avon Castle he found no one on hand to greet him. He said "I dare say I ain't wanted here," but took the matter very philosophically, proceeded to a convenient inn and went to bed.
Lord Egmont, when first notified on his Canadian ranch that he had fallen heir to the Earldom was disinclined to claim the title. He changed his mind later, however, decided to take his seat in the House of Lords, announcing meanwhile that he would retain his Canadian ranch.

CAPITALS WON SECOND GAME FROM DEVON

The Fredericton Hockey team won from the Devon All Stars in the second clash of these two teams this season at the Arctic Rink last night, the score being 3 to 1. The teams altered somewhat from their last game, with Kato Keene and "Si" Keenan absent from the respective lineups. A fairly large crowd witnessed the contest.
Play was close throughout, the score at the end of the second period was 1 to 1, with both teams about equal in play. If anything, the team from across the river had the advantage, and were a constant threat with shots on Cliff Young in the Capitals nets. Nick Neill, Buck Miles, and Burns, U. N. B. youngster were prominent in these attacks.

Third Period Rally.
In the third period, the local Green and White sextet secured two counters on neat plays, which Fradsham in the Devon cage, couldn't seem to check. Bud Steen put the Capitals in the lead when he snapped a beautiful wing shot into the corner of the net in the early minutes of the final session. Later, near the close of the game, Bruce McDonald and Jackie Lynch combined to poke in the third counter, making the game safe. The light, but clever McDonald stick-handled his way down the ice, got in behind the cage, and passed out perfectly to Lynch, who wasted no time in planting the disc.
Lynch Got Two.
Jake Lynch, the high scorer of the evening, notched his first counter in the opening minutes of the initial period, when he slammed a breast high corner shot past Fradsham from the left alley. In the closing seconds, the hefty Nick Neill evened the count on an individual attempt down the centre ice lane and split the defence, he kicked the rubber but the play was unnoticed by the official and the tally counted, much to the dissatisfaction of the home fans.

Plenty of Bumps.
The players of both teams received plenty of bumps in the evening's play, though none of them materialized in hard feeling. The players appeared to take things a lot easier in this second battle than in the previous one, when feeling was high, and squabbles were numerous. Referee
