A Hint to Housewives

Men like the same foods day after day. That makes it hard to vary the menu, yet, inconsistently enough, they complain because you do not serve "something different." What to do? Here is the answer—use Borden's St. Charles wherever the recipe calls for milk! Its double richness remarkably improves recipes that are old standbys. Your folks will exclaim over the delicious new flavor it imparts. Have the grocer include a few cans of St. Charles Milk (Tall Size) on your next order!

PALESTINE THE SCENE OF MIRACLES, GREAT POST WAR PROGRESS

New York, Feb. 25—Verily, miracles now are being performed daily in the Holy Land, according to Col. Frederick H. Kisch, army officer, diplomat and war hero, representing the Jews of the world in Palestine, now on a brief visit to this country. "Formerly" said he "Old Jews went to Palestine to die, but now young ones go there to work and live, and they are all speaking and writing in Hebrew—the Hebrew of Isaiah and Moses, not Yiddish. There are 160,000 there today, as compared to 60,000 at the end of the war."

He describes the Holy Land under British administration as a curious mixture of the new and the old—where the milk now flows through modern separators, and the honey flows in by train and where electric power and irrigation are as important as the Mosaic law.

Build Modern Harbor

At the very spot the prophet Elijah mocked false prophets of Baal, you can stand today and look into the Bay of Ancre and watch the steam dredges enlarging a harbor that will soon be able to offer anchorage to the largest Mediterranean boats.

And the River Jordan, instead of being merely sacred to baptisms, is going to be harnessed to produce electricity and to irrigate fields. The sea of Galilee is to be a water power storage reservoir.

"We want to build a centre for the Jewish spirit which produced the Old Testament but we must establish an economic base for it" Colonel Kisch said, explaining that these material changes were secondary to the spiritual achievements they hoped for.

Have Modern Machines

"The climate there is not unlike that of California. Last year we exported 2,000,000 boxes of oranges and will double that number in the next five years.

"Ploughs from Europe and across the Atlantic are furrowing parts of the Promised Land where wooden ploughs tipped with metal were used for centuries.

"Seeds the Arabs thrashed out with their feet now are being forced out by machines just as they are on Canadian or American farms.

All of these changes and others he points out, are links between the organization of the Zionists and the governing representatives of Great Britain in Jerusalem.

Col. Kisch has had a distinguished career both in the army and in diplomatic service. He resigned from the British Government service eight years ago to devote his life to furthering the Jewish homeland movement.

Twice Decorated.

His war service brought him three mentions in dispatches, the Distinguished Service Order and the Croix de Guerre. During the peace conference he was a member of the British delegation and later was attached to the British Embassy in Paris.

He sees a great future for Palestine, emphasizing the transportation advantages, especially with the development of the new harbor at Haifa, built with a $6,000,000 bond issue guaranteed by the British treasury.

A new railroad is in project to be built from Ancre to Beirut, Syria which will Syria more effectively with the port of Haifa and knit the present scattered rail lines in Palestine. A direct line between Haifa and Bagdad is not unlikely.

"The power plant at the confluence of the Jordan and the Yarmouk river will provide enough electricity for extensive manufacture" he said "and there already are other power plants in Palestine at Tel Aviv, Haifa and Tiberias. Pipe lines have been laid for irrigating the Jordan valley."

The Jews do not predominate in population, there being 750,000 people who are non-Jewish. Most of these are Arabs, who, though backward in commercial ideas, provide an extensive market for the products of the new populace of Palestine.

W. HARRY ALLEN, FAMOUS NEW BRUNSWICK GUIDE, SAYS ANIMALS CONVERSE

Do animals converse?

W. Harry Allen, for 47 years a guide in Newfoundland, the Adirondacks, Quebec and New Brunswick, who passed through Montreal yesterday, says they do. He adds that he hopes to assist in the discovery of means whereby their language will be as intelligible to man as man's language is intelligible, at least in part, to the domestic animals he has trained for his service.

Seen on the Windsor street station yesterday Mr. Allen who is known all over this continent as a guide, stated that animals communicate with one another in two ways; one intelligible and the other unintelligible to humans. Man can to some extent interpret and imitate some of the simpler of audible animal noises, such as the call of a moose, the honk of the wild goose and the cry of the wolf. Mr. Allen told his interviewer that the day will come when man will extend and amplify his understanding of the cries and calls of animals and birds.

I have seen the Canadian jay and other birds warn moose and other animals of the approach of danger," he said, "and I have seen one animal or bird similarly warn others of its kind by some audible sound. One who has lived in the woods and studied the ways of the wild will obtain every evidence that, within a certain range, intelligence is passed from one animal to another or one bird to another without visible movement or audible sound. It would be difficult for an animal to conceal movements, but not difficult for it to be apparently not making a sound."

Mr. Allen in explaining of his theory, claimed that human ears are attuned only to certain vibrations which are within a very limited range and that animals may have a wider range of audition or a different "wave length" which the ear of man cannot detect. In this connection, he thought that radio may offer a solution as well as a parallel.

In illustration of his theory, he advances the fact that he has seen a cow moose leave her calf for a time and has proven, at least to his satisfaction, that the mother instructed her young in a language, intelligible to the calf, not to stray. He added that the woods offer a million demonstrations of similar facts every day that their denizens have not only a language, but a common language. He hopes to assist in the discovery of ears whereby this language will be intelligible to man as man's language is to the domestic animals he trains and cares for.

Mr. Allen has 35 guides under his control and in the lessee of 75 miles of the Cains River, New Brunswick, famous for its salmon fishing. He left for Chicago last night, where he is scheduled to give a series of lectures, part of which will be in support of his animal language theory.

There is said to be no can-opener in Col. Lindbergh's large and comprehensive collection of gifts which is on display in St. Louis. Otherwise the future seems provided for.

What ever became of the old-fashioned Chicago gangster who was told to leave town in 24 hours?

Weak and Run Down Didn't Want to Eat Could Not Sleep

Mrs. D. Leone, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., writes:—"I was weak and run down; did not want to eat, and could not sleep. I felt tired of living and often longed for death to free me from my terrible misery as I felt I would never be strong again. I thought I would try and really I soon felt like eating and living, and new life seemed to come to me."

Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

Another fascinating sight, in the world of letters, is the unathletic young poet, of 132 pounds or threeabouts who writes, "High, on the highest, windy mountain, I hail the dawn"—etc.
