MISS E.A. BRIDGES
DIES AT FRENCH
WINTER RESORT

Talented New Brunswick Lady and Sister of Principal of Normal School Succumbs After Brief Illness.

Dr. H. V. Bridges, principal of the Provincial Normal School, received a cablegram last night conveying the sad news that his sister, Miss Elizabeth A. Bridges had passed away at Eze-Sur-Mer, in Southern France, where she had been spending the winter. No particulars were given other than the statement that she had been ill for a week, but relatives here are inclined to think that she was a victim of pneumonia or bronchial trouble. The news of her death came as a great shock to her many friends in this city.

Native of Sheffield

The late Miss Bridges was a native of Sheffield, Sunbury County, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bridges of that place. She went to South Africa twenty-eight years ago in company with her sister, Miss Clara Bridges, who was one of several New Brunswick school teachers who received important appointments following the reorganization of the educational department at the close of the Board War. The deceased was an accomplished musician and prior to her removal from Fredericton, had been organist of St. Paul's Church. She had studied in Philadelphia and also in Germany under the best masters, and put her training to practical use during her residence in Pretoria.

The Misses Bridges had made several visits home since their removal to South Africa, the last visit having been made seven years ago. They had partially planned to make another visit during the coming summer.

Had Travelled Much

Retiring from active work seven years ago the Bridges sisters had spent much of the intervening time in travel, they having toured the British Isles, Italy, Switzerland and other European countries. It was their custom to spend the winter months in the south of France, and two years ago (Continued on page five)
