GOVERNMENT CANNOT STOP BOOZE EXPORT

The Department of Justice Gives an Opinion on Question Submitted to it.

Ottawa, Oct. 1—The Government of Canada has not the power to prohibit by regulation the export of liquor to any country wherein the importation of liquor is prohibited or restricted. This opinion, which has particular application to the United States, has been furnished to the Government by the Department of Justice.

Following a meeting of Cabinet Council this evening, Premier King announced that the Department of Justice had been requested to state whether or not he and his colleagues could prohibit, by regulation, liquor export from Canada to a prohibition country. The reply was in the negative.

"That means that any action for the prohibition of liquor export to countries, where its importation is prohibited or restricted must be taken by parliament," added Premier King.

"Will action be taken by parliament?" Mr. King was asked.

"That is for parliament to say," he replied.

The fact that the Prime Minister and his colleagues asked for the opinion of the Department of Justice on the question of prohibiting the export of liquor to prohibition countries indicates that the matter has been receiving some attention. Some time ago it was indicated by the Government of Canada that consideration would be given to any steps which would tend to assist the United States in the enforcement of her prohibition law.

MAIL'S PULPWOOD STORY CHEATED QUITE A BREEZE
