CARDS, IT SEEMS, HAVE LONE BERTH IN 4-EYE LEAGUE

New York, May 6—The St. Louis Nationals specialize in players who wear spectacles. Meadows, Toporcer and Hafey all wear them. Meadows, however, is now with Pittsburgh and Toporcer with Rochester, which belongs to St. Louis. Hafey is with the Cards.

The case of Hafey is one of the marvels of baseball. For a season Chick played with a bad case of astigmatism. One eye far outreached the other. Some of the time he could not see out of one eye. He also was color blind.

The Four-Eye League

Last winter Hafey went to an oculist to undergo general overhauling and appeared ready for the National league campaign wearing a lot of confidence and thick spectacles, Sam Bredon, who owns the St. Louis club, took a look at Hafey and observed to himself that the Three Eyes league, which is an organization in the midwest, shortly would be surpassed by the Four-Eye league located solely in the St. Louis and controlled and managed by Bredon and his associates.

Experienced and seemingly able managers who heard that Hafey had put on spectacles said he was through. They thought it was impossible for any ball player to play the outfield successfully and wear glasses.

Sees Better Now

Hafey assured every one he could see better than ever. In fact, he could see so well he suspected he never had seen the ball properly before, but had been doing a lot of running about by instinct.

It is vital that an outfielder be a good judge of a ball, but it also is vital in the case of Hafey that he bat as well as he did in the past.

BIG TRAIN ILL

Cleveland, Ohio, May 6—Severely ill from a cold that has settled in his kidneys, Walter Johnson, baseball idol for more than 20 years, and manager of the Washington team of the American League, was taken from his room in the Hotel Cleveland today and rushed aboard a train for Washington. He is to enter the emergency hospital there.

PRESCRIBES NEW PLUGS FOR SLUGGISH MOTORS

(By A. J. HAYES, Manager, Champion Spark Plug Company, of Canada, Ltd.)

If the fellow behind slides past and ahead of you at the flash of the green light, check your spark plugs. If they have had 10,000 miles, install a new set and regain that snappy pick-up demanded by present day traffic.

Does your car lag in traffic? Do you find it hard to keep up with the parade? Check your plug and ignition cables. If they have served 10,000 miles, replace with new and you will be able to hold your own in traffic.

Is there anything more exasperating than to feel you are holding up traffic because your engine will not take hold with proper punch and pep? If your plugs have had 10,000 miles, get a new set and note the difference.

New plugs once a year will keep your car up with the procession in traffic.

For that sluggish action when the green light flashes, try a new set of spark plugs.

A MOTORIST WAS MADE TO WALK THE PLANK

Amherst, N. S., May 5—Police Officer Lloyd Rushton, of the Amherst police force, introduced a novel test here for intoxicated drivers last evening when he checked a motorist from an outside district whom he thought had been drinking. Officer Rushton requested the man to leave his car and then asked him to walk the centre of the concrete sidewalk without deviation for 100 yards.

The man accompanied the feat successfully and the officer decided that he was sufficiently sober to pilot his car home.

A slight degree of unemployment is reported in Italy, possibly due to Mr. Mussolini taking over so many of the jobs.

MORGAN HAS EARNED $175,000 IN THREE YEARS

Los Angeles, May 6—The junior lightweight boxing crown may be synthetic, but it is worth its weight in gold to Tod Morgan, its slight but fistically sturdy wearer.

Dethroned Mike Bellerino

Morgan can look back over three busy years as ruler of the 130-pound division, and they were not financially fruitless ones either. It has been estimated that the title-holder, since he toppled the crown from Mike Bellerino's swarthy brow here in December, 1925, has reaped more than $175,000 from the ring.

Morgan has held on to his earnings more or less closely. Several bad investments took a share, but the remainder he has laid away for the future. He owns property at several places, including Fullerton, Cal., near here, where he now resides with his wife and adopted child.

No single champion of the present day can boast of a record paralleling the title slate of this frail-looking but do-or-die king of the junior lightweights.

A glance over Morgan's record since the eventful night at the Olympic auditorium here when he scored a technical knockout over Bellerino in the 10th round reveals that he has defended the title 15 times. In order words, most of his fights have been in defence of his throne.

Morgan attributes his success to Frank Churchill, his manager, who brought the late Pancho Villa to this country, and piloted the Filipino mite to the world's flyweight championship. Churchill bought Morgan's contract within a week after he had won the title, and as handled him since.

Several coast cities pridefully point out Morgan as their "home town boy," but the claim of Seattle apparently is the strongest of the lot, since he was born there.

Eureka and Vallejo, Cal., in which places Morgan fought his first California fights back in 1920, have labelled him the "home town boy," which served to mystify many as to where he was born.

DAUGHTER OF MINER WORRIES STATESMEN

London, May 6—Britain still is in deep thoughts as to the result of the amazing speech of the little-more-than-a-child member of the House of Commons, Miss Jennie Lee, miner's daughter, who is waving the metaphorical red flag and clamoring for the revolution. She may be spanked, or she may be the leader of the long-heralded red terror in the British Isles. A Scottish girl, she is raging, has an enormous following, won her election by a tremendous majority and, in the opinion of sage statesmen, she is a real peril.

Gives Stirring Speech

She was the principal speaker and moving spirit a few days ago at the meeting frankly planned as the start of "the workers' state," and in howling for it she called for the demolition "of the shoddy, vulgar thing our Tory and grit friends have built up. Let us go into the fight not fearing those in power, but despising them"—and the audience yelled itself hoarse. The disconcerting thing was the fact that the former premier, James Ramsay MacDonald, presided and that he, too, declared that labor stood for the recognition of the soviet states of Russia and told what he will do if he returned to power.

Miss Lee, however, worries statesmen and financiers and big business far more than does Mac Donald, who academic, polemic, didactic and quite the theorist, fails to sway the multitudes as can the shrill-voiced nimble-tongued slip of a girl member of the Commons, because of suffrage.
