QUEBEC'S WARM WELCOME TO SIR WILFRID LAURIER

Thousands Cheer the Words of the Old Chieftain at Great Mass Meeting---Opposed to Compulsory Military Service---Will Appoint a Real Food Controller Should He Get Into Power---Tribute to Hon. Mr. Carvell.

Quebec, Nov. 9. — Acclaimed by a great gathering of men, women and children outside and inside the Martineau rink, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, opposition leader, tonight opened his election campaign with a speech that carefully analyzed the policy of the government on conscription, food control and manufacture of munitions.

Sir Wilfrid received such a welcome in Quebec east as could probably not be duplicated in any other city of the Dominion. Forty years ago tomorrow, Sir Wilfrid received his first nomination in the division and a petition to run in Quebec North presented to him was one signature that appeared on his nomination papers nearly half a century ago—the name of J. Gauthier.

"Laurier is with us: the people are with Laurier," ran a device in huge letters over the platform. The crowd began to gather outside the hall a couple of hours before the meeting. An hour later traffic was stopped. The hall was jammed from wall to wall with a mass that alternately shouted "Down with conscription" and demanded that the correspondent of a government paper in Quebec should be thrown into the street.

As Sir Wilfrid appeared on the platform the crowd broke into "O! Canada" and roars of cheering.

Conscription Issue. In the main the opposition leader followed the lines of the manifesto he issued in Ottawa on November 5. He reiterated that it was the first duty of Canada to give assistance to the men at the front. He added that it was "our duty to continue as we had begun—with the voluntary system." The crowd greeted this declaration with an ovation.

Sir Wilfrid declared that "conscription has been brutally forced" on the people, and repeated his plea for a referendum. On the question of the cost of living, he urged the appointment of a "real controller" instead of a man "who only gave advice." He thought that Liberals who joined the union government had made a great mistake and had no doubt that Mr. Carvell "rendered his country great service in attacking the profiteers who were sapping the blood of the people than he did in joining this government."

War the Great Problem. Sir Wilfrid, in opening his speech, referred to the changes which had taken place in Quebec East since he first accepted nomination there forty years ago tomorrow.

In regard to public affairs he said all questions turned on the one great problem of the war which had devastated Europe for the last three years. The cost of living, scandals, all questions were minor as compared with that of the war.

Sir Wilfrid then sketched the stand that he had taken at the outbreak of war and declared that he held the same views still. Canada could not remain aloof at such a time.

"I took that stand," he went on, "not because I feared invasion of Canada as some people seemed to fear it, but what I feared was hegemony, domination by a people who violated every human and divine law."

"It is our duty to continue as we began. It is our duty to give assistance to our armies with food, supplies and men and I say it is our duty to continue as we began—with the voluntary system. We began in 1914 by sending troops on the voluntary system. Everybody said there would be no conscription. (Cheers.) The prime minister declared on many occasions that there would be no conscription. Then suddenly at the end of June he introduced the conscription bill."

"Shame, shame," shouted members of the crowd and the hall was in an uproar for a time.

What Ministers Said. "Why," continued Sir Wilfrid, "did the prime minister take this step. Up to the present the only authority we have for his inspiration is that of two of his colleagues, Mr. Carothers, the minister of labor, and Dr. Reid, the minister of railways. These two ministers declared that the reason for the introduction of conscription was that the Province of Quebec had not furnished volunteers in proportion to its population."

"If," demanded Sir Wilfrid, as the crowd again broke into an uproar "if this province has not furnished as many volunteers as the other provinces in proportion to the population, whose fault is it?"

"Blondin's, Blondin's," roared the crowd.

"The responsibility," went on Sir Wilfrid, "must fall on the heads of those members of the Borden administration who in 1911 just to flutter a popular cause declared that under no circumstances should Canada take part in the wars of Great Britain."

The speaker was interrupted by cries of "shame."

The leader of the opposition referred to the conscription bill as having been brutally forced on the people. The province of Quebec could be won over on appeal to its sympathy but it could not be won over by compulsion. Again the crowd broke into a roar of applause.

"For my part," the speaker continued, "I do not think it was just or politic to impose a radical measure upon the people without a referendum. That was the policy I enunciated in the house. It is the policy I again submit to the people."

In Blood of People.

In regard to economic questions Sir Wilfrid pleaded a reduction of the tariff along the lines of his manifesto and declared again that action was needed against profiteers. There were men, he said, speculating in the blood of the people.
