The Russo-Chinese Dispute is in a Fair Way to be Settled

The United States and Other World Powers Have Made a Definite Move to Preserve Peace—
Head of the Nanking Government Says Sei-

Measure.

(By RANDALL GOULD British United Press Staff Correspondent.)

SHANGHAI, July 20—On the heels of the first definite move by the United States and other world powers to effect a peaceful settlement between Russia and China the Nanking government today took steps to dissipate the fear felt in many quarters that the seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway would result in similar action against other foreign interests in China.

An Emergency Measure.

The Kuo Min news agency reported from Nanking that Kiang Kai Shek, head of Chinese government, has issued a statement explaining that the seizure of the road in Manchuria was merely an emergency measure and that the object of his government in the future in regard to the abolition of "unequal treaties" would be realized through proper and peaceful procedure.
