THE LATE C. A. SAMPSON

The death of Charles A. Sampson, Fredericton's grand old man, who passed away early this morning after an illness of three months, will be sincerely mourned by all classes of citizens. Had his life been spared another three months he would have turned his ninetieth milestone. While not a native son of Fredericton, the major portion of Mr. Sampson's long and intensely active and useful life was spent in this city. Long before Confederation, when railways were unknown in this province, he carried on an express business between points in the St John Valley. For the long period of forty-three years he served the city as secretary to the School Board and during the greater part of the time also acted as secretary to the Victoria Public Hospital Trustees and served the local branch of the Bible Society in a similar capacity. He was a hard worker and like many others possessed of public spirit his work was not all of a remunerative nature. By his death Victoria Lodge I. O. O. F. of this city has lost its oldest member and the Wilmot United Church one of the most devoted and faithful friends it ever had. In the discharge of his manifold duties Mr. Sampson carried the radiance of sun shine with him. He was the soul of geniality and good humor and when called upon to address a public gathering, as was frequently the case, it fairly bubbled out of him. While he may not have amassed great wealth he was rich in friendships and leaves behind him a good name which is better than riches. Fredericton, the city of his adoption is poorer today because of the death of Charlie Sampson. May God bless his genial soul and comfort his relatives in the hour of their bereavement.

THE CHEERFUL DOCTOR.

There are perhaps some things the layman can tell the doctor, though they are such obvious things the doctor probably knows them already. The average man or woman wants the doctor to be cheerful, to reduce shock by conversation, to make the patient think he is better than he is, and finally tell him he is going to get well in such a convincing manner that the doctor will be believed. Now this may be all bad. Perhaps the patient ought to be scared. The writer of this column doesn't know the physician's business.

But at least one might as well be frank about the layman's position and set it forth for what it is worth. If the doctor is not impressed by it, that's his own loss. And it is a considerable loss—of business. The cheerful doctor, unless he acquires an outstanding reputation as a specialist, is going to get the business while the over-serious, sad, and depressing physician is not going to be called again. All this, of course, does not count for hypochondriacs and others who like to be sick or to think they are sick or to be told they are sick.

THE COVERED WAGON.

Fifty years ago Mrs. R. E. Use, Wisconsin woman, married and moved to Kansas. She and her husband traveled in a covered wagon. The other day she went over the same territory—in an airplane. That is what we call progress. And yet one wonders if she didn't enjoy the first trip as much and perhaps more than the second. Just what is it that the world seems always seeking—speed?

WHAT DO YOU MEAN TO DO?

Carlyle said: "The man without a purpose is like a ship without a rudder—a wail, a nothing, a no man. Have a purpose in life, and having it, throw such strength of mind and muscle into your work as God has given you." Most failure comes from not knowing ing where we want to go and what we want to do.

New York Sun: Government Liquor Control in Canada has freed 93 per cent. of the Canadian people from being the prey of bootleggers, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment reports after an extensive survey of the wet and dry provinces. The change in the situation, the report states, came with the replacement of prohibition by the Control System.

It is noticeable that the three Victoria Cross winners who represented the Maritimes at the dinner given by the Prince of Wales in London a few days ago were all New Brunswickers. Not long ago certain righteous people sought to make it appear that New Brunswick was a very wicked province with its jails "cramped."

The government of Great Britain in resuming trade relations with Russia, evidently intends to disregard Kipling's warning: "Make ye no truce with Adamshad, the bear that walks like a man".

"Primitive man," says a lecturer, "expressed himself chiefly by means of grunts, growls, yells and other animalistic sounds." He did and does. And he seldom ceases to be a primitive until after he has had his breakfast.

A friend in need is a friend indeed, and so if you like to be helpful, speak encouragingly to the acquaintance who has been totally "cleaned out", and assure him that the break in the stock market "is only temporary."

Speaker in an airplane 400 feet in the air addressed an audience 1300 miles away. After while, being stranded (if that's the word) on a desert isle with only a radio set won't be so hot.

We have to laugh heartily at the man who is always worrying about when time will end. What difference does it make when time will end? You probably will end sooner than time will end.

It probably doesn't make so much difference about the Russians abolishing Sunday since we do not imagine that they wash the car very often, anyway.

The average kid makes night hideous for the rest of the family when he tunes in the radio to a particularly wild broadcast of jazz and then settles down to do his homework.

It strikes us it would add much to the entertainment of the occasion if, sometimes, when one of the these important dinners is broadcast, they would begin with the soup course.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

Because of the many bad breaks in the stock market many persons have decided to put off getting rich quick.

Sam Hill says beauty specialists can not perform miracles. But they often come near enough to attract attention.

History has recorded many complimentary things about Nero, but it cannot be said he had a habit of running to fires.

Lima Beane says the fellow who mauls the tortoise that won from the hare, and plugs along, is pretty sure to get somewhere.

Money lost by one speculator is gained by another. It is never wholly destroyed—just a matter of readjusting income tax returns.

A British bishop sees an impending war between the sexes. And we have been led to believe the next big war would be with insects.

There is mention of a camera that will take a picture 227 miles away. It is not explained how it shoots through the billboards.

Few people can agree which is the wildest street intersection in town. Some day a scientific test will have to be made to solve the controversy.

Giving women the vote hasn't changed the world much, but few anticipated that it would. Certainly not many women had that idea; women are not dumb.

Captures King's Heart

The story of an ugly duckling who blossomed into a woman beautiful enough to captivate a great king, will be dramatized during the presentation in the Famous Loves series to be broadcast through the NBC System, Friday evening, November 15, at 9.5 o'clock. Marie Mancini was one of the nieces of the powerful Cardinal Mazarin, who dominated Anne of Austria and France during the seventeenth century. When Marie was young she was so awkward and ugly that Cardinal Mazarin decided that she had best spend her life in a convent. However, Marie had developed her intellect and beauty to such a degree that the young king, Louis XIV, fell in love with her and urged his counsellors to let him marry her. Marie's famous "Goodbye" to Louis has made her immortal. It was brief: "Sire, you are king. You weep. I depart."
