Of Interest to Women

FASHION JOTTINGS

The metal cloth tuck-in blouse is a novelty.

Dark green is reckoned smart for street wear.

Reds are much in evidence and include currant and raspberry tones.

Premet advocates wide transparent borders for the ankle-length frock.

Jeweled shoulder straps are replacing the built-up variety and tend to create an impression of greater formality.

Women seem to have agreed on a skirt length some four or five inches below the knee and are avoiding extremes.

Long-trousered skiing in navy or black were introduced by Vionnet at her opening. These are worn with bright woolen accessories.

In direct opposition to this is the type of frock fashioned of coarse net, the bodice of which is unlined to a somewhat sensational degree.

SEVERE WINTER SEEN BY THE OLD BOATMAN

(New York Sun)

New Yorker can expect a winter of some severity with heavy snowstorms and zero temperatures.

This is the prediction of an old Harlem Boatman, who, a half a century ago, rowed pleasure parties up and down the Harlem River when High Bridge was a picnic park. He has been doing odds and ends along the riverfront ever since and has been dubbed "Father Weather" because of his predictions, which have been nine times out of ten correct. He bases his vaticinations on the movements and appearances of seagulls entirely, and residents in the West Bronx recall his prediction of the severe winters of 1917 and 1918, when this city and country experienced the coldest weather for a century.

He was sitting on bulkhead just south of Washington Bridge. Hundreds of seagulls were flying about, looking like miniature airplanes, while many of them alighted on the water in search for food.

"I have not seen so many of these birds around here for fifteen years," he said. "That means we can look for very cold weather in a few weeks. You can believe me that these birds know when bad weather is coming. They sense it somehow and come in from the ocean to seek the protection of the rivers. Then, again, their coats are unusually heavy this year. For the last three years their coats have been light, and you know our winters have been rather mild. But it is different now. You just wait and see. There are going to be some very severe spells and our Street Cleaning Department will have its hands full cleaning snow from the streets. Better have plenty of coal on hand. I have been studying these birds for fifty years and they know the weather."

He continued to watch the gulls intently as the reporter left him.

Ottawa, Dec. 16—Premier Mackenzie King is celebrating his fifty-fifth birthday today by attending as usual to his state duties. In the evening he will entertain a few intimate friends at dinner in Laurier House.

Mr. King was born at Berlin, Ont., now Kitchener, on Dec. 17, 1874, the son of John King K. C., and his wife Isabel Grace MacKenzie, daughter of William Lyon MacKenzie.

Hundreds of messages reach the Prime Minister each year on his birthday, as well as many gifts of an original kind.

PARIS PUBLIC GARAGES URGED TO AID TRAFFIC

The proposal to provide public garages for motor cars which have to be parked for more than an hour has provoked a certain amount of alarm among those ratepayers who are not motor car owners, writes the Paris correspondent of "The London Daily Telegraph."

On the one hand, it was proposed that these garages should be handed over to the exploitation of a private company, but it was objected that such an enterprise was of too great to be placed in private hands. A suggestion that the municipality should organize the service was even more warmly opposed for experience has shown that practically every municipally controlled enterprise involves a burden on the rates.

The Automobile Club has now come to the rescue with an offer to organize the whole thing and to provide the necessary force of guards, who would prevent car-stealing. The president of the club declares that the service could be run on economic lines if each driver who parked his car under the care of a guard were to pay 50 centimes. Should the scheme prove workable the Automobile Club is prepared to undertake that the whole of any profit realized shall be handed over to charity.

WHITE TOWNS

They eye the clouds and say "It's snow tonight,"
Shutter their doors and watch the dark come down,
Banking their fires and setting their lamps alight—
These neighbor-folk in every crossroad town.

Indoors, the winter cumbers in their bones;
They draw the cider jug, pass tales about,
Apples and chestnuts on the roasting stones,
Too satisfied to want the world without.

Some airy traveler through the frosty dark,
Hearing his plane's safe hum, looks down and sees

A clustering of windows lit a spark
And chimneys curling smoky symmetries;
Thinking how sleepily earth winks its eyes,

Too heaven-apparent to return surprise.

—HOWARD MCKINLEY CORNELL in New York Sun.

The original cynic, we imagine was the chap who helped Humpty Dumpty up onto the wall in the first place.
