RT. HON. J. H. THOMAS, LORD PRIVY SEAL, DELIVERS A FAREWELL MESSAGE TO CANADIANS

Ottawa, Sept. 10—"As far as Canada is concerned, we are your best single customer for the greatest of your natural resources—wheat; and therefore I am disposed to look at the other side of the ledger. For every pound you spend with us, you spend five pounds with your neighbors to the south—the United States. I have thought of how far this situation can be met in a fair and legitimate way and I have laid down certain cardinal principles. I have no right to try and injure any business you are doing nor have I any such intention. But I am entitled to examine the goods you are buying from other people, the things you do not manufacture for yourselves and I am entitled to say to you, not only because of the ties of kinship that binds us, but because it is good business, that you should deal as generously and as fairly with your best customer as you do with those who are not serving you so well as we are."

In these terms the Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Lord Privy Seal in the British Cabinet, presented his views on intra Empire trade to the Ottawa Canadian Club here today. It was the last of the few addresses Mr. Thomas delivered in Canada since his arrival nearly a month ago.

World Peace

All nations should realize their dependency on others, he said, touching the question of world peace. But some of the members of the British Government prior to the recent conference at The Hague, had come to the conclusion that there was a tendency among other nations to misunderstand England's readiness to give way and compromise. That was why Chancellor Snowden had taken the stand which he did at The Hague.

"He did not go to The Hague to boggle and haggle over a few million dollars," Mr. Thomas declared amid applause.

Mr. Snowden had taken his stand at The Hague because a time had come to show the world that Great Britain is not always prepared to compromise for the benefit of others, and that when a question of principle is involved, she is ready to take a firm stand.

Huge Responsibility

"We are entrusted with a grave responsibility and my own position is not the least arduous. From the year 1911 to 1918, we lost in the great war one million men killed—one million of our best wiped out. Today we find ourselves with 800,000 more people employed in Britain than in the boom period of 1914; our birth rate is exceeding our death rate by approximately 200,000 per annum and yet we have one million and a quarter of unemployed. To meet that burden, we incurred in the war a debt of over eight thousand million pounds. But notwithstanding that colossal burden, we neither ask nor want any favor from anybody or any state. And those who believe that we are down and out, are living in a fool's paradise. We are not."

"Let me present" to you other figures. When I tell you" pursued the Minister, "that not less than eight hundred million pounds have been spent in all forms of benefit and relief in the past 10 years to try to meet that situation, it gives you some idea of the colossal burden. For the expenditure of one million pounds you give work directly to only 2,000 people and indirectly to 2,000 more. That indicates the huge nature of the task."

"Although we are anxious for peace yet any program agreed upon between the United States and ourselves, will still have a certain effect, for all displacements in ship building, means a certain number of people thrown out of work. But in spite of that, the great object of eliminating the war mind is even worth such a sacrifice."

RAIN OF PAST FEW DAYS WILL AID THE CROPS

The rainfall of the past several days will aid things immeasurably as regards crops. Harvesting is imminent and the general appearance of all the crops is encouraging despite this shortage in rain during most of the summer. Forest fires will be nipped in the bud by the fall of rain. Reports have been received to the effect that the rain has stamped out a number of fires in the southern countries, where the situation during the past several weeks has been almost alarming. No serious damage was reported from last night's storm.

map. He went on to say that there was a good crop in his county and would be harvested in splendid condition. He added that the continued dry weather would help out the potato crop.

Already a number of carloads of potatoes have been forwarded to the American market from this point and more will follow within the next few days. Last year it will be recalled, growers of potatoes had difficulty in getting rid of their product at 75 cents a barrel and many had to be dumped or fed to the stock.

FAMOUS OPERAS TO BE HEARD ON THE AIR SOON

Thirty-three of the world's most famous operas will be presented by the National Grand Opera Company through a coast to coast network of the National Broadcasting Company during the 1929-30 season. An hour and a half will be devoted each week to the operatic presentations according to an announcement made today.

"Cavalleria Rusticana" by Mascagni will open the radio season the night of September 18. The broadcast will begin at 10.30 o'clock, Eastern Daylight Time, and will continue until midnight. Cesare Sodero will direct and conduct the operas for the entire season.

Members of the National Grand Opera Company, many of whom have spent the summer studying under European masters, all are noted radio artists and were heard during past seasons.

Astrid Fjelde will sing the soprano role of Santuzze in "Cavalleria Rusticana". The contralto parts will be taken by Devora Nadworney and Alma Kitchell, and the tenor role will be sung by Julian Oliver. Nino Fucile will sing the baritone part.

The operatic ensemble includes many well known radio voices such as Gitla Erstinn, Mary Merker, Katherine Palmer, Aimee Pushon, Isabella Addis, Jane Williams, Henry Shope, Harold Branch, Maurice Tyler Taylor Buckley, Earl Bethmann, Leon Salathiel and Emil Cote.

Owing to the tremendous popularity of Bizet's "Carmen" and "I Pagliacci" by Leoncavallo, both operas will be repeated during the season, presentations to be during the first half and the last half of the season.

Next week Fredericton will be in the hands of visitors, who will come to attend the annual exhibition. All signs point to a fair that will surpass all previous efforts. The thrilling horse races, the stellar attractions, the splendid exhibits—all will help to bring together a record crowd, which will undoubtedly go away pleased and satisfied. Fredericton Exhibition has an enviable reputation and in 1929 that reputation will be enhanced.

Plan now to visit Fredericton, September 14 to 21.

Another of the guiltiest feelings is when you tell the conductor the child is three, and she is three. There are few, if any, red-headed men among the Reds.
