Kingston, Ont., Dec. 23.—Grounds of appeal given by T. J. Higney, solicitor for the defendants in the case of Sister Mary Basilverus, Archbishop Spratt and others, from the judgment pronounced by Justice Britton on Dec. 8, are that there was no evidence to connect defendants, M. J. Spratt, the Roman Catholic episcopal corporation of the diocese of Kingston, and Dr. Anclonin with the case, as alleged in the plaintiff's statement of claims; that there was no evidence to connect the Sisters of Charity of the House of Providence with the acts as alleged by the plaintiff, and that the defendant, Mary Francis Regis, had no authority to act on behalf of the defendants, the Sisters of Charity of the House of Providence, in authorizing said acts, and that the plaintiff's action against the above named defendants should be dismissed with costs; that the damages awarded were excessive and unwarranted by the evidence. In the alternative the defendants complain that under the circumstances it was impossible to obtain a fair trial of the action before the jury.

Oh, what would I carry, could souls bear a burden? And what would I bring her if dead hands could hold? A rose from this garden of planting in Heaven— For oh, but she loved it, she loved it of old. But how to accast her, with no speech of heaven? And how to find the one word to prove I were I? The love name I gave her I'd whisper and whisper, And wait for the kiss that of old made reply. But what worth are dreams when we waken, we waken? I yearn for the great dream that flees not at morn; And what worth are roses, the reddest, the sweetest? Her mouth was the one rose that bore not a thorn! —Margaret Root Garvin.

A Weakness for Jumping at Conclusions Often Gets a Person in Embarrassing Situations.

"It's a bad business taking things for granted," observed Spoonable. "The other day a stranger came to our front door. He had all the earmarks of a book agent and I undertook to run him off the place. I have been very successful in throwing book agents over the front gate. But this man turned out to be a teacher of physical culture who came to the door to ask directions. "It seemed to me that I hit the ground in eight places at once, and it took me three-quarters of an hour to figure out that it wasn't an earthquake I had been up against!"

"I always had a weakness for jumping at conclusions," confessed Quinn, "and I don't know how often it has got me into trouble. The other day I was introduced to a distinguished stranger who was addressed as Dr. Rambo. He had the appearance of a learned and able man and he won my confidence in a second. "I had been feeling like an automobile accident for a long time, and realized that I ought to consult a physician, but somehow I haven't much confidence in our local doctors. There wasn't one of them to whom I'd care to uncover the hideous secret of my bad health. But this Dr. Rambo was the kind of a man you just naturally lean against the minute you see him. I made up my mind to tell him about my ailments as soon as I could get him alone.

"The next day I glanced out of the window and saw him passing and called him in. I asked him to take a chair and then opened up. "Doc," I said, "I've been wanting

Could Not Sleep. HAD TO SIT UP IN BED.

Heart trouble has of late years become very prevalent. Sometimes a pain catches you in the region of the heart, now and then your heart skips beats, palpitates, throbs, or beats with such rapidity and violence you think it will burst. You have weak and dizzy spells, are nervous, irritable and depressed, and if you attempt to walk upstairs or any distance you get all out of breath.

There is no other remedy will do you so much good, restore your heart to a natural condition, build up your strength and give you back vigor and vitality as Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. A. Russell, Niagara Falls, Ont., writes: "At nights I could not sleep, and had to sit up in bed, my heart would beat so fast.

"When I went to walk very far I would get all out of breath, and would have to sit down and rest before I could go any farther. I was advised to get Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and before I had used two boxes I could sleep and walk as far as I liked without any trouble."

medical advice for a long time, but didn't know a sawbones whom I wanted to take into my confidence. If I had a sick cow I might call in one of our home talent pill venders, but when it comes to turning over my vitals to them I draw the line. Now, you made a hit with me the minute I saw you. I don't know whether it was your bulging alabaster brow or your long black whiskers, but something about you convinces me that I can trust you.

"The doc rose to his feet and raised his hand and tried to say something, but when I have the floor I don't allow any man to interrupt me. "I don't know just what's wrong with my works," I went on, "but my heart acts as though it had a dirty spark plug, or something of the kind. Sometimes it will run along, every cylinder hitting, and a man couldn't ask for a more satisfactory heart. Then again it will buck and heave and threaten to stop, and I've been scared stiff several times lately, and if you know any dope that will make the blamed organ get down to cases and saw wood I wish you'd hand me a prescription."

"The doc seemed distressed and made a violent effort to butt in with a few timely remarks, but I hadn't finished explaining my symptoms and I headed him off. "My stomach is also out of alignment," I explained. "Time was when I could eat excelsior or anything else and never have a minute's distress. But now I have to barf everything I like to eat and fill myself with gruel and other cheap stuff. What's your diagnosis, doc?"

"I am not a doctor of medicine," said he. "I am a doctor of divinity. "Then he backed out of the house and I just sat there and hated myself until I felt myself turning green. The boys heard the story somehow and they've made my life a burden ever since."

WHICH?

"This bulk tea is the best I could buy at the price, Mrs. Brown, but I believe you will like Red Rose better."

"We use Red Rose at home and like the rich flavor. My wife says it goes further."

Hundreds of grocers are making statements somewhat like this.

They have sold Red Rose Tea for many years and have found the quality so good that they use it in their homes.

Most grocers naturally like to make an extra profit on their bulk tea, but they cannot help recommending Red Rose Tea because they know it's worth the price.

They know it goes further because it consists chiefly of the teas from Assam in Northern India, the strongest, richest teas grown anywhere in the world.

Red Rose tastes better and goes further.
