MINISTERS GRIP LIBERALS WITH POLICIES OF REFORM

Gen. Mewburn Will Stop Abuses With Officers—Mr. Carvell Denounces the Patronage Evil and Declares There Must be a Change—No Important Changes in the Tariff Until After the War—The State Must look After Disabled Soldiers

(Torton Globe.)

Hamilton, Nov. 2. — Canadian Liberalism in the Dominion's new War Administration thrilled the great gathering which thronged the big auditorium to its capacity tonight with the inspiring character of its message. Long before the commencement of the public meeting the seating accommodation was taxed, and the audience, which comprised men and women of both political parties, gave repeated and striking evidence of their confidence in the public men who have been suddenly called upon in the hour of national crisis to give leadership to the war aspirations of the patriotic Canadian people.

DON'T SCOLD, MOTHER! THE CROSS CHILD IS BILIOUS, FEVERISH

Look at tongue! If coated, clean little stomach, liver, bowels.

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if its tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad throat sore doesn't eat sleep or act naturally, has stomachache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

A fine keynote was given the meeting in the brief introductory words of Lieut.-Col. John I. McLaren of Hamilton, who commanded the original 19th Battalion of Canadians at the front. Then followed the three Ministers—Hon. Frank B. Carvell, Hon. S. C. Mewburn and Hon. Newton Rowell. Each made a gripping appeal. "Fighting Frank" Carvell slashed out with characteristic vigor and earnestness against the evils in public administration with which he and his colleagues propose to cope.

History Will Justify.

Gen. Mewburn, clear, forceful, businesslike, told bluntly and in few words some of his immediate plans for improvement in Canada's military administration. He made no bones about admitting that the condition of the department as he found it was far from satisfactory, and unequivocally declared his intention of placing it upon a plane of military efficiency, and of giving premier recognition in every possible case to gallant Canadians who had done their bit on the fighting line.

Hon. Mr. Rowell made one of the most eloquent and impressive speeches of his career. He vividly portrayed the purpose and the procedure which directed the new War Administration. "The Liberals," he declared, "who have entered the Government are confident that they did right, and they believe that history will justify their course, just as history has justified the course of George Brown."

Col. McLaren's Appeal.

The first speaker at the night meeting was Lieut.-Col. John I. McLaren of Hamilton, who raised and commanded the 19th Battalion at the front. Referring to his own promotion a short time ago, Col. McLaren said he was going to do whatever he could till the war was over, and he was now doing that, in spite of the fact that Sir Sam Hughes brought him over here for a higher position, which was not available on account of the lack of troops. He wanted the people to get together and make Union Government a success.

"I don't matter at all," he said in a personal reference, "but the men who do matter are the privates and corporals who have been through the Gethsemane of the front line trenches without a worry save the worry they have about their dependents at home being cared for. These men and their families will demand that men who have given service to their country without profit to themselves shall represent them in the next parliament."

Will Fight Graft.

Hon. Mr. Carvell followed. He was given an exceedingly cordial reception.

On the great economic questions of the day, he said, he had not changed his mind one particle. But the war had made such a great difference that the man who did not change his views accordingly was not progressive. "We have got to get through with this war first in the best way we can, and we can attend to our economic differences afterwards," said he amid an outburst. "We must devote all our energies to war-winning, and after the war is over to the demobilizing of the soldiers, but we must see that the soldiers are put in a position after the war so they can earn an independent living." (Applause.)

Great New Burdens.

Discussing Canada's financial position briefly, Mr. Carvell said when war broke out the annual revenue of the Dominion was 135 or 140 millions. The ordinary expenditure after the war would be about the same as before. "But do you realize that if the war closed down today we would require as much money to pay the interest on our debt and pay the soldiers' pensions as it took to run the country in 1914? And if the war should run another year—and I fear it will—it is going to cost $150,000,000 additional money for the interest on our debt and our indebtedness to the soldiers, and Canada must not repudiate her debt to the soldiers, and therefore she must pay the pensions." (Applause.)

"Men who have seen and had a taste of hell—and I don't think hell can be any worse—and every man who comes back, wounded or disabled, simply must be taken care of by the State, and I don't care where the money comes from." (Applause.) I don't care how we retrench in other public services, we simply cannot retrench on the soldiers. (Applause.) The rich man up to the present has contributed comparatively nothing. The poor man has contributed ten times as much as the rich according to his means." (Applause.)

Graft Denounced.

The Minister of Public Works then made a slashing attack on graft, declaring that it would be abolished. "I propose in office to carry out the doctrines which I have preached in opposition," he explained amid prolonged cheering. "What I say now is not a reflection upon my predecessors in office, but it is an impeachment of the system by which Canada has been placed in a position of shame before the world. I refer to the patronage system. (Applause.) I do not say one party was any worse than the other. But it has been my ambition to see the day come when this dirty business would be eliminated and a business system would be established."
