THE LATE HON. MR. TWEEDIE.

There will be general regret all through the province over the news of the death of ex-Governor L. J. Tweedie, who passed away at his home at Chatham on Sunday night. Hon. Mr. Tweedie was beyond a doubt one of the ablest men that the North Shore ever gave to the public life of the province. He was first elected to the Provincial Legislature in 1874, and was re-elected in 1886, continuing a member of that body down to 1907, when he retired to accept the appointment of Lieutenant Governor.

For seventeen years he was a member of the Provincial Government, during six of which he held the office of Prime Minister. He was a strong man in every sense of the term and rendered good service to the province in the various positions he was called upon to fill. As a political leader he was strong and resourceful, and enjoyed the confidence and esteem of his followers to a marked degree. As a debater he had few equals and no superiors in the public life of this province during his time.

The death of this gifted man, while still in the prime of life, is undoubtedly a great loss to the province, and the sympathy of all classes will go out to the widow and family in their bereavement.

TORY TIMIDITY.

The Toronto Saturday Night, an independent paper, in commenting on the recent Liberal victory in Saskatchewan, says:

The crushing defeat of the Conservative organization in Saskatchewan, lowering similar fates in all the other western provinces, should clearly show the advisability of studying the cause and effect—and applying a remedy. It is unfortunate the Opposition should be so weak in every legislature, as the future welfare of Western Canada would be safer with more equally divided forces. Such a one-sided condition of affairs, politically speaking, is due not so much to the genius and strength of government members as to the lamentable weakness and lack of vision on the part of the Opposition. Having so much to live down, and so little of a really constructive nature to dilate upon, the status of western Conservatism is in a sorry plight. Those in control have found it difficult to break away from old Tory views and influences, augmented by federal dictation, quite out of touch with western ideas. Having led their party practically to political oblivion, it would seem opportune for the old brigade to step aside and let the formation of future policies be taken over by the younger element, capable of seeing in public service something more than self and party interests.

The only thing that will restore confidence in the Conservative party in the West is the infusion of much new blood, led by men of pronounced integrity and capable of constructive statesmanship. Then, by eliminating the sordid and selfish manipulation of the few at the expense of the many, it should not be a difficult matter to adopt a policy that will appeal to the imagination and honest judgment of those interested solely in the future welfare of Western Canada—where professional politicians have long had too much control."

Mr. W. F. O'Connor, a Halifax lawyer who is employed by the Federal government in the capacity of cost of living commissioner, reports that the packing trust cleaned up millions of dollars last year. He says that the William Davies Packing Company, of which Baron Flavell, of Toronto, is the head, made a profit of five million dollars on bacon alone. It has been a matter of common knowledge for some time that the Davies Company had a pretty soft thing of it, and it will take more than the denial of Baron Flavell to remove the impression from the public mind. The William Davies Company, it will be recalled, was one of the concerns which urged Canadians to "keep both hands on the Union Jack" during the reciprocity election of 1911. It is quite evident now that it was not actuated altogether by patriotic motives on that occasion.

Glance Bay Gazette: The incompetence of the Borden government's Militia Department is well shown in the various and conflicting sets of figures given Parliament about enlistments. The first statements given show a discrepancy of about 70,000 men alleged to be enlisted and not accounted for as being in Canada, in England or in France. Sir Edward Kemp, Minister of Militia, then tried to give another "explanation" in Parliament the other day, and the best he could do still left 10,000 men unaccounted for. He held out some hope that they might yet find out what had become of these men, if indeed, they were ever enlisted.

Ottawa despatches indicate that the Borden cabinet is to be replaced by a government composed of Liberals and Conservatives. It is said that seven members of the Government will retire and be replaced by five Liberals, selected from members who voted in favor of conscription, a labor representative and a prominent western grain grower. Should Sir Robert Borden be successful in forming a union or coalition government, the chances are that he would immediately appeal to the people.

The Fourth of July was celebrated this year in England almost as enthusiastically as in America. By order of the King, the Stars and Stripes flew over the House of Parliament and other government buildings together with the Union Jack. All London was bedecked with American flags. Theatre orchestras all played American national airs, and the Welsh Guards at the royal palace changed guard to the tune of The Star Spangled Banner. The British newspapers were full of news and appreciative comment regarding American Independence Day.
