OF INTEREST TO WOMEN.*DEHYDRATE YOUR VEGETABLES.Easy and Not Expensive to Dehydrate Vegetables and Fruit in Your Own Home.We have all heard about the good points of dehydrated vegetables this year. If you wish to have your own equipment you can probably afford to do so. Indeed, if you are quite clever with a hammer you can easily make drying racks for yourself. They are simply wooden framed trays with wire bottoms, and if you can get the wire netting cut to specified sizes it would be an easy matter to tack it on wooden frames. Then you would have to rig up some sort of holder for a series of these racks, one above the other.Three Methods.There are three methods of dehydrating. One makes use of the oven, another of hot water and a third of air. The air method is best accomplished by the use of an electric fan, which keeps the air circulating constantly around trays such as those already described, but it is possible to dry fruits and vegetables in the direct air and sunlight. There is some danger in this method of spoiling from mould and also from insects.The hot water method calls for an equipment consisting of a metal box filled with water, on top of which the food is spread to dry. Of course there is a little escape tube for the steam which carries it away from the food.
The top of the box is simply kept hot by the water within it and the food is dried by contact with this dried heat.
The water can be kept sufficiently hotby means of a simmering burner on a gas stove, at a cost of a few cents a day. It takes from two hours to two days to dry various foods.Do Work Thoroughly.Apples, potatoes and other starchy vegetables should be cut in thin slices for drying. Apples, potatoes, spinach and all green vegetables should be blanched by steaming them in a regular cooking steamer for from five to ten minutes. This preserves the color.
Small fruit, such as berries, are left whole.Choose a bright dry day for the drying process. Place the prepared food on the drying apparatus, using your own judgment about the amount to be dried at one time. Many vegetables can be spread on to the depth of an inch, but obviously such things as raspberries should be spread on in a single layer only. Dry thoroughly—and here again you use your own judgment as to the time required.The food should lose from two-thirds to four-fifths of its weight in this process.After drying, place the food in boxes or paper bags and for three or four days stir once daily to make sure that they are sufficiently dry. If there is any moisture, return to the dryer.Pack away either in the store drying boxes that are sold for the purpose or in paper bags sealed with paraffine."I see the soldiers are now taking France." "Is it a statement or a slogan?"CASTORIAFor Infants and Children

The Peril
of the Moderate Drinker*MODERATE DRINKERSLife insurance men declare that MODERATE drinkers shorten life on an average from 10 to 13 years by their occasional alcoholic drink.

Like the contemptible German Spy who lived upon our friendship while all the while he was stabbing in the dark, Alcohol in moderate doses is poison. Of course you know that the lining of your stomach is just as sensitive as the ball of your eye. Just try putting a drop of whiskey in your eyeball—keep on doing it off and on for years—think of the result!

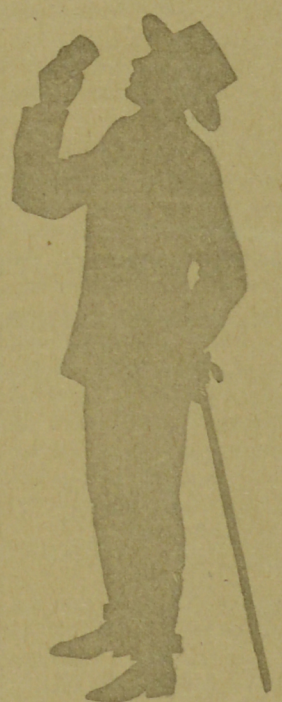

If you want to know what is going on in the system of the moderate drinker, look at a man who is dead drunk. Scientists say the only difference is that the drunkard reaches the climax quicker than the tippler. The effects are alike; the first thing Alcohol destroys is the mental power of defence against the appetite for drink. All drunkards begin as moderate drinkers.

Above the falls of Niagara there is a point in the current where each man's strength can yet take him back to safety. Beyond that invisible point he is lost. No man knows where lies that invisible line in his make-up, where ends his ability to say, "I can" or "I can't" stop drinking liquor.

After seventy-four years of investigation—economic, sociological, medical, ethical—the Insurance Companies ought to know. They declare that Alcohol, even in the smallest quantities, is a destructive poison. They turn away hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of business on the strength of their knowledge. Taking two million policy-holders as a test they know that the teetotaler lives much longer than the moderate drinker; the man who occasionally gets tight suffers a death rate just one-half greater than strictly temperance men. Other men who drink more than that, but still not enough to bar them from insurance, show an appalling mortality of almost double that of men who were never introduced to John Barleycorn."

Every man and woman in this province shares the responsibility for the proper enforcement of Prohibition—not the officers of the law alone. Your duty is clear.

Help to Enforce*Prohibition

No matter where you live, whether the Canada Temperance
Act or the new Prohibitory Law operates in your district, you are urged to use every legitimate means within your power to heartily support and aid the officers in their sworn duty of enforcing the law.
