RUSSIA AND OUT.

The world's ear strains towards Petrograd, eager for every whisper that comes thence—that comes from the centre of the most amazing revolution of history, says the Boston Record. Here has occurred a "rosewater" revolution, flouting the old-fashioned idea of what a revolution must be, and although the end is not yet, and though we may not safely forecast what will be worked out from the present situation, there is a stimulating hope in the spontaneity and closeness to unanimity in the overturn and in the high level of intelligence in the revolutionary movement. Much of the machinery of republican, or at least measurably popular government, has already been created in the local governing groups of Russia, and active in leadership are many men of cool head and wise counsel. It is a grim thought for royalty that in this most tyrannized of countries there has yet been built up a workable republican system, only awaiting the lopping off of the dead head of czarism to become nationally operative.

While we wait for events to work themselves out in Russia, while we watch the harmonizing of the view demanding an immediate republic and the more conservative Duma program for a temporary nominal head to reign during the period of readjustment, that the ship of state may not lack a rudder, attention will turn elsewhere in the world to learn how this overturn in Russia has affected affairs. Greece is obviously well primed for a radical move; Turkey is restive. But it is to Berlin that the thought of the world goes most eagerly, and there we hear strange utterances in the Diet. It is an ominous day when the Socialist Democrat, Herr Leinert, dares to say: "We are no longer self, whom the King can buy and sell or order us to bleed and die at the word of command. We are a nation that has reached political manhood."

Add to this such words as these from Adolf Hoffman, of the Socialistic Workers' Union:

"The German nation is bleeding for the sins of those in power. Absolutism has hurled Germany into the horrors of this war and turned the whole world against us. This feudalistic system of government must go. Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg is but the mere figleaf of military absolutism. Militarism fears the responsibility for the bloodshed in Europe, and only when militarism and despotism are removed will the people be able to breathe freely."

These are not new views for the radicals of Germany, but the utterance of them now in the Prussian Diet, coupled with Von Bethmann-Hollweg's last and almost hysterical offer of reforms, sounds a note of doom. This is a bad year for tyrants!

Says the Chatham World: "The government, instead of resigning, may meet the Legislature, which has been called for April 15th." It is evident that Commodore Stewart has not yet recovered from the shock of February 24th. Who told him that the Legislature was called for April 15th? According to a proclamation in the Royal Gazette, it has been further prorogued until April 19th, but has not been summoned to meet for the despatch of business. It is evident that the Commodore does not enjoy the confidence of the members of the government which was defeated at the polls last month.

The members of the moribund provincial government and their defeated candidates, who were in such a defiant mood after the recent election, appear to have cooled off. If reports are to be believed they are more anxious now to stave off an investigation into certain transactions of the government than they are to contest by-elections which may be called on in the near future.

Today's despatches report that the French troops are within striking distance of the so-called Hindenburg line. The British forces are pushing forward towards Cambrai and the despatches say they are within striking distance of that town. The sudden withdrawal of German troops has not been explained, although a shortage of supplies no doubt has had considerable to do with it.

Through Our Sieve

When in Russia do as the Romanoffs do. It was a mistake to put the "first" in pacifist.

You see Uncle Sam had no unslapped cheek left.

The last of the Romanoffs is now roaming in off.

At all events Nicholas had an interesting reign.

The next reform we suggest in Russia is reformed spelling.

The groundhog must have been seeing double on Candlemas Day.

In time the Russian ballot may become as famous as the Russian ballet.

The worst thing about a railroad strike is that it might raise the price of gasoline.

With all these monarchs abdicating it looks as though we can expect less reign this Spring.

And now even the Huns on the western front have learned how to go while the going is good.

Science in its report on H. K. Thaw has, after years of study and research, discovered what unscientific persons knew all the time.

And after those terrible Armenian atrocities, Enver Pasha has the gall to inform the Turkish parliament that "thanks to the Almighty, we shall obtain a final victory."

You will notice that the party that carried out the successful upheaval in Russia is called the "liberal" party and the down-and-outers are the "conservatives." Some upheavals—those liberals.

Sure! High Heels Cause Corns But Who Cares Now

Because style decrees that women crowd and buckle up their tender toes in high heel footwear, they suffer from corns, then they cut and trim at these painful pests which merely makes the corn grow hard. This suicidal habit may cause lockjaw and women are warned to stop it.

A few drops of a drug called Freezone applied directly upon a sore corn gives quick relief and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out without pain. Ask the drug store man for a quarter of an ounce of freezone, which costs very little, but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callosity from one's feet.

This drug is an ether compound and dries in a moment and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. Clip this out and pin on your wife's dresser.

U. S. TO SPEED UP NAVAL CONSTRUCTION

Washington, March 19.—President Wilson late today authorized the navy department to spend $115,000,000 to speed up naval construction and to buy small auxiliary craft.

Congress at its last session authorized the president to sanction the expenditure and authorized an issue of bonds to raise the money. The president's decision is one of the steps considered to meet the submarine menace.

The President's act was the first official recognition of a "national emergency." He also will authorize the suspension of the eight-hour laws on naval construction, and authorize the payment of time and a half for overtime, as provided by act of Congress.

GRAND DUKE MICHAEL RENOUNCES AUTHORITY

Says That the Happiness of Russia is the Only Consideration—Political Prisoners Ordered Released.

London, March 19.—Grand Duke Michael has ordered the release of the political prisoners who have been incarcerated at Baku, in the trans-Caucasus. Reuters' Tulse correspondent telegraphs. The Grand Duke informed senior and junior officers to advise the soldiers and sailors, now that the throne has been renounced by Emperor Nicholas, that they should quietly await an expression of will from the Russian people. It is their sacred duty, the Grand Duke said, to continue to obey the lawful chiefs, to defend the country from its enemies and by their exploits to support their allies.

Grand Duke's Renunciation. The renunciation of the Grand Duke Michael was signed at his private residence, whither he went with a large part of the Duma committee, headed by Prince Lvoff, Prof. Prof. Milukoff and President Rodzianko. The Grand Duke addressed the committee and declared that the responsibility devolving upon him found him undecided because of the existing differences of opinion. He added that since the happiness of Russia was the only consideration, he believed that would best be assured by his abdication and therefore surrendered his authority.

The British, driven to wearing wooden shoes, are at least better off than the Germans wearing wooden heads as well.
