PUTTING WOOLENS AWAY.

Moths are More Likely to Eat Soiled Garments, and Dust is Also Destructive.

Economy has become almost as great a virtue as patriotism or industry. Nobody knows in just what state this country and the world at large may be by the time we open our cedar bags and chests next autumn. But we can be sure of this—wool is going up. So the preservation of all our winter clothes is a duty that devolves on everybody.

Pack away everything clean. Moths are much more likely to eat soiled garments and dust is in itself destructive. If you put perfectly clean garments away as soon as they have been washed, in a clean, airtight receptacle, the moths cannot get at them.

Two Things to Guard Against.

The two things to guard against in washing woollens are shrinking and stiffening. Choose a bright sunny day for the spring washing of woollens of all sorts—sweaters, blankets, bathrobes and other winter comforts that do not go regularly to the laundry.

Use medium hot water and use water of the same temperature for all the rinsings. For the first water dissolve a tablespoonful of borax in every 12 quarts of water. Use neither soap nor scrub board, but agitate the woolen articles in this solution. Then prepare a second water of the same temperature in which a plentiful amount of pure soap has been dissolved.

Never use soap directly on the wool, but agitate the garments in the suds until they are clean. Never wring them violently in the hands or in the clothes wringer, but squeeze the water gently from them. Then put them in a third water, slightly soapy and blued and rinse them thoroughly in this; fold them carefully and put them through the wringer.

Dry quickly in the shade.

COOKERY ODDITIES.

To attain the attractive brown glazing which the pastry chef's pies always have, brush a bit of white of egg over the top crust before setting the pie in the oven to bake.

To prevent a fruit pie from having a soggy under crust, brush the lower crust with white of egg before putting the fruit in.

Before baking either pies or cakes,

PREMIER FOSTER WRITES OF NEW BRUNSWICK.

Great Progress Made by Province Under Confederation--Products of N. B. Factories Sold in Western Canada--Splendid Contribution made to the Great War.

The July number of the Canadian Magazine is almost wholly devoted to Confederation, and contains several interesting articles on this subject.

One of these articles, written by the Hon. W. E. Foster, Premier of New Brunswick, and dealing with this province, is as follows:

"New Brunswick entered Confederation on the wave of a popular demand for the Intercolonial Railway. In the fifty years since union was consummated, the province has made great strides, particularly in railway building.

"It has been said that New Brunswick has more miles of railway per capita than any other unit of government in the world. The Intercolonial was provided, skirting the entire eastern shores of the province, and now it reaches across the province as well, comprising three great arms—the St. John-Moncton section of the main line, the Canada Eastern branch, from Chatham to Fredericton, and the recently acquired International, from Campbellton to Leonard's.

The Canadian Pacific Railway, practically parallels the western boundary from St. Stephen to Edmundston, in addition to the St. John-Vanceboro section of the main line and several branches. The National Transcontinental Railway bisects the province diagonally, and there are numerous other branches in the provincial grid-iron, to say nothing of the St. John Valley Railway now building from Andover to Westfield, and which was originally destined to run from Grand Falls to St. John, a distance of 225 miles.

"Progress in all lines of development has kept pace with railway building. In population, New Brunswick has added one-third to the total of 1867, with a satisfactory growth of 100,000, contributing at the same time very largely to the upbuilding of the western provinces. This province has given two prime ministers to British Columbia, a governor to Alberta, and men very high up in every walk of life to every province of the west.

"In manufacturing, lumbering, the fisheries and agriculture, New Brunswick has advanced with the rest of Canada. Some products of our factories are sold on the Pacific coast and on the prairies, while others go across the sea. Pulp and paper mills mark advances in the lumber industry, and our canners and packers of fish products are invading the markets of the world.

The threatened food shortage and the call for increased production as a patriotic duty has revealed and awakened a progressive spirit on the part of our farmers who have kept in touch with the new ideas of the time.

"New Brunswick's contribution to the war can be taken as a proof that the province has caught the real spirit of a self-governing confederation. We are now on our second army division, having enlisted, it is safely estimated, more than 20,000 up to May 1, 1917, for the common cause of Canada and the empire. Owing to the unfortunate necessity of infantry units having to be broken up in drafts in England, New Brunswick has been represented on the firing line during the first three years of the war by but one infantry battalion, though our men have gone to reinforce many other units.

The original New Brunswick battalion has all but disappeared, but has been filled and refilled with men and officers from our own province, and as an organization is still at strength and going forward to fresh triumphs.

"To carry on the war must be our watchword at home. New Brunswick has had no cause to regret undertaking the larger responsibilities which came from concurrence in Confederation fifty years ago, and we can look forward with confidence and with courage to entering the new period which will come to Canada and to the whole world with the downfall of autocracy and the universal triumph of Liberalism."

Mrs. Elizabeth Hatter, an 83-year-old resident of Shippensburg, Pa., has completed a half century of unbroken Sunday school attendance.
