IMPORTANT CHANGES IN THE LAW PROTECTING SHEEP FROM DOGS

At the recent session of the Legislature a bill making important amendments to the act respecting the protection of sheep from dogs was placed upon the statute books. As the measure is one of considerable importance to farmers, a brief summary of it is given herewith.

Section 3 provides that on the presentation of a petition of ratepayers to the number of 25 to the municipal council the council shall by by-law provide that the chapter shall be in full force and effect in such municipality.

Section 4 provides that the assessors of the parish shall when making up their annual assessments, enter on the assessment bill in a column prepared for the purpose, the number of dogs or bitches harbored by each person. The refusal of any person to furnish the assessors with a statement showing the number of dogs harbored by him, will be liable to a penalty of $5.

The money collected in dog taxes outside of any incorporated town shall constitute a fund for the purpose of satisfying such damages as arise from the killing or injuring of sheep by dogs.

The council of any city or incorporated town in any county where the by-law is in force shall on January 1st of each year pay over to the treasurer of such county fifty per cent. of the amount collected under the provisions of the act for the previous year, which amount shall form part of the dog tax fund.

In cases where a municipality does not adopt the by-law, the owner of a sheep or lamb killed or injured by a dog can recover damages from the owner of such dog before a justice of the peace.

In municipalities where the by-law is in force, the owner of a sheep or lamb killed or injured by dogs, can apply for damages to the council or a committee of the same under three months, and on being satisfied that the claim is valid, the council or committee may award the aggrieved party compensation not exceeding two-thirds of the amount of the damage. After an award of this kind has been made the claim will belong to the municipality and it may enforce the same either in the name of the aggrieved party or in the name of the county secretary.

PORK AND BEANS HAVE NOW BECOME A DELICACY OWING TO H.C.L.

"I smell pork and beans," observed the grocer's boy to the lady's maid.

"Yes, we have come to that," responded the maid.

"I wouldn't say 'come to it,' I'd say 'arrived at it,'" suggested the grocer's boy.

"But pork and beans are so common," protested the maid, giving her jet ringlets a little touch with deft fingers and leaning gracefully in the doorway in a manner that indicated a willingness to hear more.

"No, 'was,'" answered the grocer's boy. "It's the same with corned beef and cabbage and ham and eggs. Once those things were common, but now they're a great delicacy."

"That's how the food shortage came about. When sweetbreads and honey advanced in price the rich guys said: 'Why, the very dear! It's perfectly absurd!' And they wouldn't buy that stuff any more. Rich guys won't stand for advanced prices the way poor folks will. I should say not! Not any today, thank you! Too high! Exorbitant! Outrageous! We'll eat artichokes and tenderloin."

"Then when artichokes and tenderloin went up the rich guys fell back on toasted cheese and lamb croquettes and then one unlucky day (for the poor folks) some rich guy found out about corned beef and cabbage and ham and eggs and pork and beans. The high cost of living began right there."

"Up to that time with the poor folks consuming corned beef and cabbage and pork and beans and ham and eggs, and the rich picking around with noodles and sweetbreads, the supply had been sufficient for everybody. But just as soon as the rich people found out about corned beef and cabbage and ham and eggs and got to telling one another about it and having in on their tables they quit being pickers and became real consumers themselves, and pretty soon nearly all the pork and beans and ham and eggs had been gobbled up and now there's only a little to be had here and there."

"If the rich guys had been kept in ignorance of the taste of these things and never learned what good eating they are there would have been plenty for the poor to enjoy in peace. As it is these things are away out of our reach."

"Are pork and beans out of your reach?" asked the pretty maid sympathetically.

"Say," replied the grocer's boy from the foot of the long flight of steps as he pointed dramatically toward the kitchen door, "that pork and beans is as far out of my reach as the fairy that's cooking it!"

The maid counted the steps that intervened between herself and the grocer's boy. "Not so much of a climb," she said. Then stepping back into the kitchen she closed the door.

AN OLD FRIEND HEARD FROM

Fred Ireland, Noted Big Game Hunter, Tells of a Scrap with Mexicans.

Many old friends here and along the Miramichi will remember Mr. Fred Ireland, of Washington, D. C. Mr. Ireland is chief reporter for the House of Representatives and is well known as a big game hunter and magazine writer. He has made a number of hunting trips to this province, and with his facile pen did much to advertise New Brunswick as a resort for sportsmen and anglers. In a recent letter to a friend here, Mr. Ireland says among other things:

"My oldest boy is not yet big enough to go fighting, but I have nine nephews and most of them are breaking their necks to get in. One of them—only 15 years old—managed to increase his age three years and to get into the Missouri National Guard."

"I suppose the old boys with whom I used to shoot on the rifle range in Fredericton are all too old to go to the war. I want to get in touch with you people up there again, for the place is very dear to me."

"Tell Braithwaite when you see him that since I last saw him I was down in Mexico and managed to get shot at a couple of times by the damned greasers, but I think they got worse than I did, for my shooting eye is still as straight as ever. In fact I never was so well in my life."

"One year I went hunting with a man named Griffin from Cross Creek, one of the best men in the woods I was ever with. Is he there yet, and if so, give my best regards to him."

"We are working all departments like hell—trying to raise a million men in five minutes, and I guess we will do it."

Come on Sunday.

Chatham World: Rev. J. J. Pinkerton is a keen angler, and when he goes to the trout streams as an angler he dresses the part. At the Bartibogue recently, when he got only a small string of the finny fly-takers, an honest farmer, who was not aware of the anglers' identity, encouragingly said: "Come again Sunday and you'll get a good haul sure!"

Woodstock Press: Mrs. Fred Risteen and children will leave this week for Fredericton to spend the summer.

HUNS IN BAD IN MEXICO NOW

El Paso, Texas, July 5.—Since the pro-ally campaign in Mexico was first started by El Universal, in Mexico City, the sentiment favoring the Allies has reached northern Mexico and during the past thirty days a well defined movement favoring an open break with Germany has developed.

A reflection of this sentiment was seen recently in the statement of Gen. Francisco Gonzales, acting commander-in-chief of the northeastern military zone, with headquarters at Chihuahua. He was overcharged by a German firm for some padlocks. The manager was arrested and placed in the penitentiary. The German consul made a demand for his release "in the name of the Imperial German Government and the Kaiser," according to a Mexican official who was present at the time.

"Tell the German consul he, the Imperial government and the Kaiser may all go to hell," General Gonzales answered.

Prominent Mexicans, men in close touch with the capital, predict that Mexico will declare war on Germany within thirty days.
