COLD STORAGE NOT TO BLAME FOR BAD EGGS

How Long It Will Keep Depends on Conditions, Says a Detroit Health Officer.

(Detroit News.)

Just because an elderly egg has spent a considerable portion of its career in a cold storage plant is no reason for shunning it, says Dr. Wm. H. Price, health officer. If the egg was a perfectly good egg when it arrived at its chilly abode, it will be a pretty good egg when it departs, provided that the departure is not delayed too long.

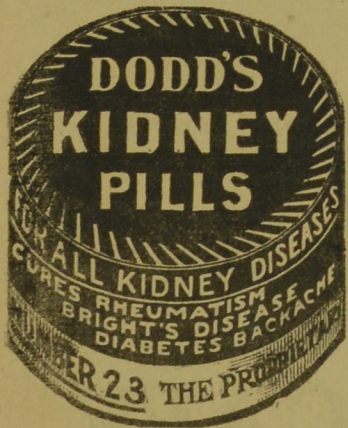

"The real trouble with cold storage food," he adds, is not so much that it spoils when in storage, as that it goes into storage in none too good condition. If it is partially deteriorated when it goes into storage, it will not be fit for use when it comes out.

"I don't know that there is an actual limit as to how long an egg can be kept stored. Practically, it is a matter of the original condition of the egg and the condition of the storage. Just how much food value an egg or any other sort of food loses in storage is something that hasn't as yet been determined, but it could be.

"In the case of milk, we know that the food value of old milk, even when it is sweet, is much less than that of new milk. As milk is a very important article of food, we require each dealer to stamp on the bottle the day it is pasteurized, so that if you go into a store Wednesday and get a bottle stamped Monday, you know it is a day too old, and can demand Tuesday's milk. This stopped the custom of selling milk as fresh until it actually soured.

"We could do the same with eggs, and would do so if there was a real public demand for the dating of an egg, to show how long it had been stored. Short of a considerable public demand to know the age of the eggs, the inspection would be too expensive to justify itself.

"So far as we know, the egg loses little food value, though the taste may be hurt. The public has shown no particular desire to know the age of each egg, and we would hesitate to ask the funds necessary to employ the large number of men which would be needed to inaugurate the general stamping of eggs."

TODDLE, IF YOU'RE THIN.

Latest Dance Said to be Simple, But Doesn't Look It.

Philadelphia, Jan. 4.—Toddling will be the chief indoor sport this winter, it is predicted. The toddle is the latest dance. It is said to be simple—that is, in the sense of being easily done—but it doesn't look so. And it's no game for fat ladies and gentlemen. They must be svelte, which is Chinese for slender.

The toddle was demonstrated here yesterday. First the man takes four steps forward and the lady four steps backward. Then the trouble begins. Anyone can take the four steps, but the rub is to pivot and turn on one foot on the next step. The turn must be done rhythmically, with the body swaying, and if you lost your balance it's all off.

Every one lost his or her balance yesterday, and all were dancing teachers. For the ordinary mortal the thing seemed impossible. It took the class an hour to get the pivot and turn. Short skirts are advised—but who wears long ones, anyway?

RURAL NOTES

SOUTHAMPTON NEWS.

Well Known Farmer Dies Suddenly—Stork Busy on Stormy Day.

Southampton, Jan. 2.—Miss Reta Brooks is spending her vacation with her aunt, Mrs. Annie Currie, in Fredericton.

Miss Flora Brown, of the St. Stephen high school, is spending her vacation at her home here.

J. Boyd Coggin, of St. John, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Grant on Wednesday.

Miss Gladys Grant gave a tea and party last night to a number of friends. The time was spent very pleasantly in music and games.

Miss Irma Jones, of Woodstock, is the holiday guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Brown at The Willows.

Mrs. Burns W. Akerley is giving a party to her Sabbath school pupils and friends.

Miss Mary Grant, of the Andover teaching staff, is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Grant.

Miss Wilhelmina Hayward, teacher of this place, is spending her vacation with friends in Boston.

Roy Clark, of Worcester, Mass., was here attending the funeral of his grandmother, Mrs. Tabor.

Dr. Leigh Brown, of the General Public Hospital, is home for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Murchie, of St. Stephen, spent Christmas here at Mrs. Murchie's old home.

Despite the terrible storm of Saturday, the stork was very busy calling at no less than five different homes in this locality, leaving a baby girl at each. The happy fathers are Messrs. Miles Cronkhite, Tom Brewer, George Farnham, Whitfield Lenentine and Bert Thornton.

Mrs. Erlin Bragdon, who has been very ill with diphtheria and attended by Dr. McIntyre, is recovering.

Arlington Wright, who is very low, was operated on by Dr. Rankin, of Woodstock, assisted by the attendant physician, Dr. McIntyre, on Friday. Pneumonia has developed and there is little hope of his recovery.

As a result of special meetings held in the United Baptist Church, eight candidates were baptized last Sunday afternoon by the pastor, Rev. A. F. Brown, and together with Mrs. Ralph Brooks, formerly of Pokiok, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sipprell, of Hartland, were received into the church in the evening.

Herbert McLean, of LeTete, Charlotte county, was here last week and installed six gasoline lights of 500 candle power each in the new Baptist church at Pokiok, and one of 300 c. p. in the yard. This fine new church will soon be ready for use.

On Friday night at 11.30 one of our leading farmers, Ezra Miller, was suddenly stricken with hemorrhage of the brain. He never spoke and almost immediately became unconscious. Dr. McIntyre, of Hawshaw, was summoned, and though the rain was pouring in torrents, in a very short time was at his bedside. The doctor soon saw he was beyond medical aid. Respiration
