Rules for a Long Life

A clergyman who is hale and hearty at 78 years of age gives these rules which have governed his life: The use of plain food, with plenty of fresh fruit and pure water. Personal cleanliness by frequent baths from head to foot. Flannels next the skin the year round, graduating weight according to the season. Open air exercise every day, rain or shine. Ventilation of sleeping room, summer and winter. Eight hours' sleep each day.

Fruits of Saving

In 1866 a young Breton named Cognacq went to Paris as assistant in a little dry goods store. By 1872 he had saved up $69,000 and opened a store which he called the Samaritaine. That Breton store assistant became worth $80,000,000.

IN THE DEAD OF NIGHT.

In the dead of night, when pain was severe and doctors distant, when some loved one seemed to be threatened with serious consequences, have you ever caught up, with a sob of thankfulness, a bottle of your favorite family remedy? We don't know what you consider your favorite family remedy, but if you had a confidence inspired by the knowledge that it had been successfully serving humanity for more than 100 years, then it must be Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. And you were doubly fortified, for you had, in Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, a preparation not only powerful and penetrating in cases of bad sprains, strains, muscular rheumatism, any ache, pain, or soreness, but also one you could safely and unhesitatingly administer inwardly for sore throat, coughs, colds, cramps, chills and like ailments, when necessary to have its wonderful healing and soothing qualities, go direct to the seat of an internal trouble. It is rightly termed "an angel in disguise."

BUSY KING EDWARD

EXAMPLE OF DEVOTION

Monarch Who Found Work Interesting and Stuck to Duty Until the Last

The serious devotion of King Edward to his work is shown by a story which Lord Redesdale tells in his "Reminiscences." "One night," says his lordship, "I was dining at the club, after King Edward had come to the throne. He knew that I was in London for two or three days alone, so he sent over to ask whether I was at the club, and if so to bid me go across to him. I found him in his private sitting room, and we sat smoking and talking over old times for a couple of hours.

Work at Midnight

Towards midnight he got up and said: 'Now I must bid you good night, for I must set to work'—pointing to a huge pile of familiar red boxes. 'Surely,' I said, 'Your Majesty is not going to tackle all that work to-night.' His answer was: 'Yes, I must. Besides, it is all so interesting'; and then he gave me one of his happy smiles and I left him. So interesting. That was the frame of mind in which he faced his work—he, the man who we are expected to believe could not be brought to attend to business."

Killed With Work

It might almost be said that King Edward killed himself with work. During the closing days of his life, ill as he was, he worked with his accustomed energy at Buckingham Palace, and "on the Wednesday," to quote Lord Redesdale, "when one of the permanent heads of the Civil Service was with him, he was seized with one of those terrible choking fits of coughing. When he got better his visitor ventured to remonstrate with him, and begged him to rest, and even to go to bed, but he ridiculed the idea and said, 'No, I shall not give in; I shall work to the end. Of what use is it to be alive if one cannot work?' That was how he fulfilled his declaration to the Privy Council on his accession, that 'so long as there was breath in his body he would work for the good and amelioration of his people.'

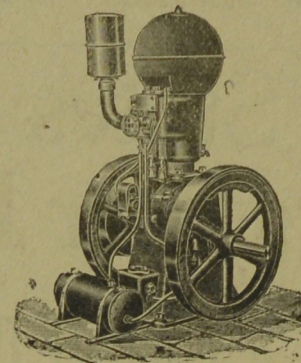

Tailors say that men's clothes will fit more tightly around the waist this spring. Not unless old H. Costofling climbs down.
