STRAWBERRIES
FOR MONTREAL
WILL GO MONDAY

Market Conditions Better Than Was Anticipated—Standard Crates and Boxes Recommended.

Monday next, July 16th, will see the first shipment of strawberries this season to the Montreal market. The season in New Brunswick is about three weeks late so the crop from this province will come after the western berries are practically done. Mr. A. G. Turney, Provincial Horticulturist who recently investigated conditions in the Montreal market, reports that the market for New Brunswick strawberries there is good and can be extended to some extent with improved shipping and distributing organization. The Horticultural Department is advising growers who intend to ship to Montreal to adopt the 27-box crate as the best suited for the needs of that market. The 60-box crate is too large. The octagonal box of provincial manufacture, which still is used to some extent in the southern part of the province, is not adapted to modern requirements, the square box being the standard.

The Boston market, which has almost passed the New England strawberry season will take large quantities of the New Brunswick berries.

There has been an increase in the production of strawberries in New Brunswick. The Sackville district will ship about 125,000 boxes. In York County there has also been an increased acreage. On the lower St. John river the crop will not be as large as it has been in past seasons on account of reduced acreage.
