TREATED AS HORSES IN GERMAN WAR PEN

Young Briton, held in Prison Camp, Forced to Sleep in Stall and Fed Muddy Soup -- All Goods Confiscated.

(Philadelphia Bulletin.)

Of an age when many American boys are just beginning to wonder what life has in store for them, Thomas Gooding, jr., 23 years old, a Briton employed as a chemist in his father's chemical and dye manufacturing plant at Frankfort-on-the-Main prior to its seizure by the Teuton authorities in November, 1914, today related the experience which befel him and his father following Germany's entrance into the war.

"Both father, Thomas Gooding, sr., and I are British subjects," explained Gooding, "but for some years father was engaged in the chemical and dye manufacturing business at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, where he had an extensive plant. I worked with him as a chemist and by the way, I learned most of my chemistry from an American chemist who paid our plant an extended visit.

"After declaring war, German wasted little time in rounding up the aliens within her boundaries, and in confiscating all manufacturing establishments conducted by subjects of the countries with whom she was at war, as well as the homes they occupied. We suffered with others, and our plant and home were both seized. The loss is not less than $60,000.

"Then we were placed in what was termed a Civilian Concentration Camp. This was a disused racetrack at Ruhleben, about 30 miles from Berlin. Altogether there were confined in this camp 4,273 civilian prisoners, and most of them separated from their relatives. I did not see my father for several weeks after undergoing imprisonment, though we were together when we entered.

ceived no replies. I doubt that those letters ever reached their destination. At last, in sheer desperation, I wrote to Ambassador Gerard, and he eventually obtained my release in February, 1915. Just prior to my release from Ruhleben camp the British Y. M. C. A. was allowed by the German authorities to establish a branch at the prison. From then on prisoners were allowed to buy at moderate cost from this branch, milk, sugar, soap and tobacco. Also we were allowed to play cricket, football—and some more chess.

Leaving my father, who was unable at that time to obtain his release, I went to Davas, Switzerland, famous throughout Europe as a health resort. I found I had lost thirty pounds. I remained at Davas, which is 5,000 feet above sea level, for six months. From there I went to England, eventually coming to New York and thence to the home of relatives here in Philadelphia. Father was finally released and returned to England, where he is at present, attempting to start in business. When the Allies vanquish Germany, which I think will happen soon, I suppose my father will be paid for his confiscated property.

"Just now I am a man without a permanent home, but I still have my country. Off somewhere in Egypt I have a brother, William Gooding, 17 years old, who has been serving in the Leicestershire Royal Horse Artillery and in Australian and New Zealand units."

Housed in Horse Stalls.

"We prisoners slept in the stalls in the mammoth stables. Each stall, you know, was built to accommodate a single horse; but the Germans improved on that. They managed to get six cots in each stall, two one above the other on each side and two where the manager had been. It was nice to have so many room mates, but just a little bit crowded. For exercise we had chess.

"One hundred armed guards watched our every movement, and we were treated most miserably. We were awakened by bugle calls at 7 o'clock each morning. We had cold water in which to wash. Then we were served with hot tea or coffee without milk or sugar. At 9.30 o'clock, under armed guard, we were marched in squads to the camp kitchen, where we received a loaf of bread made of potato flour, and weighing about one and a half pounds. But this was only every other day. At 1.30 o'clock, another visit to the camp kitchen for a bowl of soup. This was dispensed daily, and like wise it was a daily occurrence to find anything from splinters to nails in the soup, which had a rather muddy appearance. At 5.30 o'clock we were again served with hot tea or coffee, always without milk and sugar.

"I can honestly commend only this one thing, we had all the water we cared to drink. They did not stint themselves there.

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crikkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "Tiz" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "Tiz" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "Tiz." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.
