Just at present linen is very expensive, and the woman who has on hand the better quality of table linen is able to better quality of table linen is able to rest on her oars for awhile, secure in the fact that the linen she has already bought is still in good condition, snowy white and unfrayed.

But the woman who has exercised Fittle discretion in the matter of linen now realizes her folly, for the pieces better than do those of cotton. For ation in the baseball people better than do those of cotton. For she had on hand are not wearing this reason fine linen retains its prismearly so well as those of her neigh- tine snowy freshness till it is worn hor who always insisted on pure linen out. of good quality .

There are several ways of telling linen from damask containing more or less cotton. The old-fashioned method of testing it by moistening it and seeing whether the water spreads rapidly is not always conclusive. Sometimes the dressing in the linen makes itely white linen. it hard to tell in this way. The Slycerine test is better. Drop a little glycerine on the cloth. If it makes Cook's Cotton Root Compound. the cloth appear transparent it is linen, but if it is cotton then the glycerine will not be absorbed on Saturday Next-Englishman Considered the Favorite.

Toronto, May 11. — When "Ted"
Lewis, the English welterweight, meets Jack Britton, the Chicago boxer, in the same class at the Military Boxing tournament at Massey hali, Saturday, May 19, the question as to which is the better man will probably be settled definitely. American experts consider that in Charley White and "Knockout" Brennan, Britton has disposed of two men who were entitled to serious consideration for the welterweight crown. Lewis' record is well known, and while he is said to have more science than the stocky Chicagoan, in the opinion of many who have witnessed both men in action Lewis' superiority, scientifically, is but slight.

The records of the two men would support this contention. In six contests they have each scored two victories recorded over the other and on two other occasions were given draws. Boxing experts on those two occasions
