GERMANS ABANDONED IMPORTANT POSITIONS

Driven Back From Their Main Defensive Position West of Bapaume on a Front of Three and a Half Miles---British Troops Seize the Village of Grevilliers---Hostile Raids Repulsed.

London, March 13.—The official report from British headquarters in France announces the abandonment by the Germans of their main defensive system west of Bapaume on a front of three and one-half miles. The British troops drove back the German rear guard to a depth of one mile, and occupied Grevilliers and Loupart wood, bringing the advanced British forces at the former place to a scant mile and a half to the northwestern outskirts of Bapaume. The places carried today have been described as the last obstacle to British victory in this direction.

North of the Ambre on the left wing, the British in this particular operation have bent back the German line on a front of about a mile east and northeast of Gommecourt, and somewhat straightened out the curve extending from Essarts-le-Bucquoy to the region northeast of Puisieux-au-Monts.

To the north of this region, in the vicinity of Armentieres, Souchez and Neuville St. Vaast, and northwest of Neuve Chapelle, the Germans threw forward raiding parties, but all of these met with repulse, except in the last named sector, where the Germans reached the British trenches and made prisoner some of the occupants.

Reuter's Sends News.

The first intimation of the new German retirement came in a Reuter's despatch which reported the enemy yielding on a front of between 4,000 and 5,000 yards, and to an unknown depth. The British were reported as having gone right through strong German positions in Loupart wood and seized the village of Grevilliers.

The text of the British report reads: "In consequence of our bombardment of his positions yesterday, the enemy left his main defensive system along the forward crest of the ridge west of Bapaume on a front of three and a half miles.

"During the day our advancing troops have driven back the enemy's rear guard in this area for a depth of a mile, and have occupied the village of Grevilliers and Loupart wood."

"Hostile raids were repulsed during the night in the neighborhood of Neuville-St. Vaast, Souchez and Armentieres. In each case the enemy failed to reach our trenches."
