

A Most Important Room

With every fixture fastened permanently in its position, the Bath room, once completed, becomes a part of the house. It should therefore be carefully planned and equipped with fixtures which will retain their beauty and efficiency for an age.

The fixtures we use are reliable and the work guaranteed.

REVOLUTIONARY ELEMENTS ARE AT WORK IN FRANCE

Paris, July 23. — Revolutionary elements have been engaged in propaganda in France to discourage soldiers and develop a demand for premature peace, according to Senator Clemenceau, who at a meeting of the upper house of parliament yesterday vigorously attacked Mr. Malvy, minister of the interior, accusing him of neglecting to take measures against these persons. M. Clemenceau averred that these revolutionists had preached the organization in France of a soldiers' and workmen's committee similar to that in Russia. He attributed the manifestations of discontent to that propaganda and asked why measures had not been taken to suppress it.

The President's Reply.

M. Malvy replied that he had followed the policy of maintaining the Socialists' sacred union since the beginning of the war and held that if that policy did not offer more heads of culprits it was nevertheless effective. He said the police were ordered to pursue every illicit criminal enterprise but he did not think the senate wanted him to take a hostile attitude toward the working classes.

Premier Ribot closed the debate with a defense of M. Malvy. He said the organization of workmen could not be held responsible for the action of anti-patriots who slip in among them.

"We are in the presence of a campaign of perfidy which must not be misunderstood," cried M. Ribot. "Germany has need of peace and she wants to obtain it by no matter what means."

"She has the hypocrisy to say," continued Premier Ribot, "that she will make every effort to obtain an accord between all nations through international tribunal. While on the eve of the war she refused all arbitration."

The entire senate applauded and M. Ribot continued: "A durable peace cannot be founded on militarism. It would be a perpetual menace and the league that has been formed to make the menace disappear will not be dissolved unless Germany abandons its ideas of domination and servitude imposed on other nations."

War Time Economy COCOA versus TEA AND COFFEE

THE war is being fought in the kitchens of Canada, just as truly as it is in the trenches of France.

The housewife that is genuinely anxious to help the cause of our Empire will use Cocoa on her table in preference to tea and coffee, which—delightful as you may find them as mild stimulants—have no real food value, and hinder the proper digestion of starchy foods, bread, cakes and potatoes.

Saving at Home Serves in the Trenches

There is more nourishment in a cup of cocoa than in a cup of chicken soup, bouillon or beef extract. You require less of other foods when you drink cocoa. You save money on your table expenditures.

The money you save will enable you to purchase War Savings Certificates. For $21.50 you can buy at your nearest bank or Post Office a Certificate worth, in three years, $25.00.

Cowan's Perfection Brand Cocoa for the table, and Cowan's Maple Buds or Milk Chocolate Bars for most delightful confections will be found at the stores of all dealers throughout Canada.

Ask for Cowan's ACTIVE SERVICE Chocolate, just what our Soldiers in the trenches appreciate. Specially manufactured to meet their needs.

Save the Food and Serve the Empire!

The Average Canadian Family Wastes
Enough to Feed a Soldier

"The Kitchen must help as well as the Workshop and the Trenches"
Lloyd George.

INTELLIGENT economy in the kitchen can do much to prevent the threatened world famine—can counteract the effect of high prices—and can replace growing debt with systematic saving.

Careful investigations show that before the war the average British family wasted 25% of their food—and we Canadians were even more extravagant.

This waste is not in a few big things, but in many little ones, each, we used to think, too small to bother about—such as careless peeling of vegetables and fruit—failure to make good use of dripping and "left-overs"—and such others as will occur to every thrifty housekeeper.

For the Empire's sake as well as your own, hunt up and cut out these leaks! You'll be helping to relieve the food shortage—saving your own money—and putting yourself in a position to buy Canadian War Savings Certificates and help win the war.

War Savings Certificates are issued in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, to be repaid in three years at full face value. They cost $21.50, $43 and $86 respectively, at all Money Order Post-Offices and Banks, thus yielding over 5% Interest. Should you need it, you can get your money back at any time.

HE WAS RIGHT THERE WITH THE SOCIAL STUFF

Mr. Ramble was Beginning to Think He Would Make a
Crackerjack Society Man.

(Chicago News.)

"Well, sighed Ramble as he pulled off his patent leathers, 'I done it—I mean I have did it.'"

"Just a minute," directed Mrs. Ramble, "before you begin your reading, please tell me who was there and all about it. Don't you know that when a woman is compelled to miss anything like a recital given by her daughter's music teacher and has to depend upon a mere man to represent the family she wants to know something about what happened? How did Angelica get on as an usher?"

"My dear," responded Ramble, reluctantly, "I am not much of a knocker, but to tell you the truth our daughter didn't ush worth a cent—"

"Oh, bother!" retorted the lady of the house impatiently. "Nobody pays any attention to ushers anyway. They are not expected to—"

"Oh, well, if all they have to do is look sweet, Angelica was there a million. I don't think she giggled quite as much as the other girls. By the way, I met an old side-kicker of yours, a Mrs. Cawcrowder or something. She said she knew you very well indeed, so I told her you had often spoken of her. Oh, I was there with the goods, all right! I'd make a crackerjack society man! All you need's a little crust—"

"What?" gasped Mrs. Ramble. "You told Mrs. Cawcrowder that I had often spoken of her! The very worst thing you could have said to her! She ran against me as president of the Ladies' League and was my bitterest opponent in the Callisthenics Club. And what will she think? What will everybody think you heard you make that awful break? Who heard it? Didn't they smile?"

"Come to think of it," responded Ramble uncertainly, "I believe a few of the old dowagers did sort of smile when I pulled that, but I thought they were smiling because I was so decidedly there with a good comeback, and I don't see why I didn't have a right to say that I had heard you speak of her when she said she knew you so well."

"That's my regular system. When a woman says, 'Your wife and I are such good friends; we have known each other so long,' I always come back with, 'Oh, yes, I've heard her speak of you s-o-o off-tun! Why yes, indeed!'"

"What other terrible things did you do and say? Let me know the worst."

"That was the only slip I made. A lady next to me was surprised to learn that I was Angelica's father; she said she thought I was one of her beaux. But I was wise to that kind of stuff. I knew she was trying to put something over on me when she handed me anything as warm as that, so I never talked to her at all. I was on my guard."

"What sort of looking person was she?" inquired Mrs. Ramble suspiciously.

"Tired looking, in a high bonnet."

"Good heavens! Mrs. Goodheart Opulent! You should have cultivated her to the utmost. She could do everything for us! I never saw such a ninny as you. I'll never trust you any-
