TARIFF AND L. O. A. DISCUSSED IN THE BUDGET DEBATE

Hocken and Lemieux in Sharp Exchange-- Westerners Want Heavier Income Tax on Wealthy---Dr. Michael Clark of Red Deer Takes Part.

Ottawa, May 7. — The budget debate, which was continued throughout morning, afternoon and evening sittings of the commons today, was somewhat more lively than it has been since the discussion of the government's financial and taxation proposals was commenced last week.

H. C. Hocken, member for West Toronto, had some observations to make about Quebec and the French-Canadians and his remarks brought forth a somewhat vigorous reply from Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux.

Mr. Hocken extolled the patriotic work of the Orange Order, saying it was greatly misunderstood in the province of Quebec.

Mr. Lemieux interpreted Mr. Hocken's remarks as a lecture on loyalty, and declared that the people of Quebec did not want to have the Orange Order trying to monopolize the loyalty of the Dominion.

Dr. Michael Clark, who followed Mr. Lemieux, accused the opposition of extreme partisanship and warmly defended the record of the Union government. His only criticism was that the government had failed in its income tax proposals, which should bear more heavily on men of wealth.

After J. J. Dennis of Joliette, had declared himself as being opposed to conscription, R. C. Henders, the grain growers' representative of MacDonald, Man., strongly supported the government. He said the people of the west were absolutely behind the administration and its win-the-war policy.

Concerning Exemptions.

The opening of the first morning sitting of the House this session was marked by a series of questions to the government respecting cancellation of exemptions from military service. Dr. Edwards drew attention to a report that fourteen exemptions of men between twenty and twenty-three years of age had been granted in Hull.

Major General Mewburn replied that he had already communicated with the military service council in regard to the report. The military service council had no knowledge of it, but were having it investigated.

Sir Robert Borden told Sir Wilfrid Laurier that exemption tribunals were sitting in respect of men not between the ages of twenty and twenty-two inclusive. He added that any exemptions granted or pending of men between these ages were automatically cancelled.

Change of Business

I, the undersigned, hereby beg to notify the public that I have sold my furniture business, formerly conducted by me in the City of Fredericton, to Elijah E. Cameron, who has already taken over and is continuing the said business at the same stand. I wish to take this opportunity of thanking the public for the generous patronage with which they have favored me in the past, and I would ask that they extend to my successor the same generous support in the future. I would also ask that all outstanding and unsettled accounts due me be settled at the said store on or before June 1st next.

HOWARD ROGERS

Dated May 7th, 1918.

I, the undersigned, hereby beg to notify the public that I have bought and taken over the furniture business, formerly conducted by Howard Rogers in the City of Fredericton, and am now carrying on the said business at the same stand. I would respectfully solicit a continuation of the generous support and patronage of the public, and it will be my effort to give my best attention, and to provide a most efficient service to the public, in the conduct of this business.

ELIJAH E. CAMERON

Dated May 7th, 1918.

The duty on tea provided by the budget was the subject of criticism by J. A. Campbell of Nelson, Man. He said this tax would bear harder on the poor people than on the rich. The poorer people purchased the cheaper grades of tea, but they had to pay the ten cent tax just as the richer people who bought more expensive brands. It did not seem fair to him that people who were able to buy only the cheaper grades should pay the same tax as those who could afford the more expensive grades.

Mr. Campbell expressed disappointment that the government had not seen fit to decrease, if not to remove completely, the duty on agricultural implements. The income tax, he thought, was not sufficiently large. He felt that the country could stand a greater taxation and that the people were willing to pay it at the present time.

H. C. Hocken on Orange Order.

H. C. Hocken of Toronto West, felt that the new taxes imposed in the budget had been cheerfully received throughout the country. He pleaded for consideration of letter carriers' claims to additional remuneration.

Mr. Hocken said he must refer to a matter of some importance, namely, the reference by the member for St. Hyacinthe to the Orange Order, in which he had compared this organization to a "yellow peril." It seemed, to the speaker, very inappropriate that this great loyal and tolerant organization be denounced and discredited upon the floor of the House. If there was any yellow in the Orange Order, said Mr. Hocken, it was all on the outside, because the members of the organization had shown great courage on the fields of Flanders. The Orange Order, said Mr. Hocken, had been greatly misunderstood. It was very similar to a Quebec organization called St. Jean Baptiste Society, which also held striking parades. This Quebec society had the same aims as the Orange Order excepting that they represented two different religions. In Ontario, said the speaker you never heard denunciation against this Quebec society, but people from Quebec tried to discredit the Orange Order.

Mr. Hocken spoke of the patriotic work of the Orange Order. Out of 250,000 members in Canada, he said, 60,000 had gone overseas with the army. Speaking on Quebec, Mr. Hocken said that the number of French-Canadians who enlisted with the first contingent was very satisfactory. Then something happened and "we were forced to the conclusion that there was one province in the Dominion which was not doing its duty."

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, who followed, replied with some heat to Mr. Hocken, declaring that it was not his desire to listen to lectures on loyalty from the Orange Order. Mr. Hocken, he said, had been kind in conceding that the French-Canadian is potentially as good a citizen as the English-speaking residents of the Dominion. The French-Canadian was just as good a citizen as any British-born or Canadian-born resident of Canada. He resented the assumption of superiority for the English-speaking people. Mr. Hocken had confessed to being an extremist, but the bane of the country is the extremist. Mr. Hocken had given a lot of advice without charge. He would tell him what the French-Canadians expect. They expect the president of the council to appoint a special censor to strike out of the Orange Sentinel the articles that appear in that publication every week.

Continuing, Mr. Lemieux said it was not desirable to introduce into Canada the contentions and bickerings that have torn Ireland for centuries. Dealing with some of the unnecessary expenditures of the government, Mr. Lemieux asked if it was fair that Colonel Labatt, who was receiving a salary of $6,000 a year, should also draw a pension from the country.

"Is it fair," he asked, "that Colonel Bradbury, a member of the senate, who went to England, but never got to the front, should also draw a pension? These pensions should be wiped out of the blue books of Canada." He then went on to deal with the improvements to the St. Charles River at Quebec, saying that he was glad Hon. F. B. Carvell had seen fit to abandon these improvements. He described the efforts of a man named Bel-larger, who bought a piece of land beside the St. Charles River for $18,000 and then tried to make the government pay $800,000 for it. The exchequer court had decided that the man should be given $200,000 for the land, but the supreme court had reversed this decision. Mr. Lemieux thanked Providence that Canada had a supreme court.

Dr. Clark of Red Deer, thought that as a westerner he could give a little advice, perhaps, both to Ontario and Quebec. To Quebec he would say:

"It is the altars of your faith that are being outraged. It is the children learning to prattle your tongue that are being mutilated. It is the civilians of Belgium and France who, against all international law, are being shot."

Dr. Clark felt that the vociferousness of the speech made by Mr. Lemieux was in inverse proportion to the ideas it contained.

The debate on the bill for the identification of traders in German goods was continued in the senate by Senator Mason.
