IMPORTANT STATEMENT ON ALLIED SHIPPING MATTERS

Lord Robert Cecil, Speaks at a London Banquet --- Believed That Allied Shipping Interests Should be Pooled---U-Boat Campaign Has Been a Failure

London, Sept. 2.—Lord Robert Cecil, assistant secretary of state for Foreign Affairs, at a dinner tonight celebrating the conclusion of the deliberations of the allied maritime transport council in London, made an important announcement reporting the pooling of allied shipping. He also alluded to the shipping of allied food supplies and of allied munitions. The following are salient passages from the speech of Lord Robert Cecil:

"The allied maritime and transport council was established last December at a meeting of all the allies. It has grown and its organization has been completed, but its central provision remains what it always was, the necessity of allied control for allied supplies."

"We have seen lately much transportation but that is no reason for diminished effort, but rather for increased effort. Now is the time to strike a definite and final blow at our enemies. As far as the actual fighting is concerned, that is in other hands, and in hands which give us no anxiety. We have profound confidence in our armies and our commanders. We have got to pool all our resources. We must bring together the whole economic strength of our allies. The accomplishment of that task is not so easy."

Unity of Control

"In this and many other matters we are fighting under a certain disadvantage. Our enemies have been content to enslave themselves to the German general staff. That gives them certain unity of control and a certain perfection of machinery, which it is difficult for us to imitate. For, after all, the essential part of our struggle is that we are free nations, that we claim, and rightly claim, the right to decide each for ourselves what is necessary in the interests of the General cause in which we are engaged."

"That is true. I do not myself wish it otherwise. I am satisfied that with all its inconveniences it gives us a spirited strength which ultimately will secure us victory over the enemy. But if we are to succeed, we say with great truth that the submarine attack upon our shipping has been a failure. We can feed our people and we shall go on being able to feed our people. We can transport across the sea the vast armies to fight the Germans and submarines are powerless to stop us."

"Now, speaking as an Englishman, I am quite confident that some of our allies have suffered more than others. We have not had to suffer the ordeal of invasion. I agree most fully that in many respects the sufferings of France and Italy not to speak of the smaller allies, such as Belgium have been greater than our own, greater than those of our friends in America. But that makes all the more necessary the pooling of our resources. If our sacrifices are to be in any degree equal, the only solution is common allied control of all the resources of the allies."

"The key of allied control is allied shipping, but though it is of the greatest importance that you should have common allied control of shipping yet even that cannot be made perfect unless you have also full consideration of the allied needs."

Allied Shipping

The principal organization for which we are working is control of allied shipping and complete examination and control of allied needs and also of allied resources to supply those needs. It is the co-ordination of the allied needs and allied resources with allied shipping which would make an overwhelming economic power of the alliance to which we all belong. "We have done a great deal. It is all that everybody should know, even that our enemies should know, how much we have done. The best example of our efforts in the matter of allied need and supply has been the wheat executive. It has done wonderful work. Not many months ago there were many of us who were feeling a deep anxiety about the maintenance of the food supplies of the allied nations. Now by the efforts of the wheat executive it is a certainty that we will be able to reach the next harvest. The danger of starvation has been conjured away and much more than that has been accomplished. We have secured the guaranty of a fair distribution of allied resources among the allies. We have by co-ordinated allied efforts in this respect saved immensely in our shipping expenditures. Each allied country gets its supply from its nearest allied source. Italy gets her supply from India, we get ours from the American continent and an immense saving in allied shipping has been accomplished. For that great effort there are no two people who are entitled to greater credit than Etienne Clementel, minister of commerce of France, and Sir John Beal, president of the Board of Allied Food Controllers."

GRIEVED OVER THE DEATH OF LIEUT. LEMIEUX

Quebec, Sept. 3.—When told of the death on the field of honor of Lieut. Lemieux, son of the Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Sir Lomer Gouin expressed his heartfelt sorrow.

"Lieut. Lemieux," said Sir Lomer, "was the son of one of my best friends. And furthermore, he was my godson. I cannot tell you, really, how deeply I am affected by his death. But he died a hero's death, and the glory that surrounds such a loss is one that brings pride at the same time as it brings sorrow and regret."

At Long Beach, Cal., a man entered a soft drink emporium and ordered a glass of apple juice. After drinking half of it, he refilled the glass with Jamaica ginger from a pocket flask. He then was arrested for drinking intoxicants in a public place and sentenced to 100 days in jail.

When a husband says to his wife, "Come, now, let us be candid about this thing!" he has just thought of a good lie.
