

ACUTE NERVOUS EXHAUSTION

All Treatments Proved Useless Until He Tried "FRUIT-A-LIVES".

MR. JAS. S. DELGATY.

R.R. No. 4, Gilbert Plains, Man.
"In the year 1910, I had Nervous Prostration in its worst form; was reduced in weight from 170 pounds to 115 pounds.

The doctors had no hope of my recovery, and every medicine I tried proved useless until a friend induced me to take "Fruit-a-lives".

I began to mend almost at once; and after using this fruit medicine for 3 or 4 months, I was back to my normal state of health.

I never had such good health for twenty years as I have enjoyed the past six years. We are never without a box of "Fruit-a-lives" in the house".

JAS. S. DELGATY.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

Mr. William Jones, Trapper, of Oba, Ont., had a very badly frozen heel cured by Zam-Buk. Writing to the proprietors he says: "While on a long tramp I got one of my heels very badly frozen. By the time I got back to my shack the pain was intense. Fortunately I had some Zam-Buk on hand and applied it freely. The relief I felt was wonderful. I persevered until Zam-Buk had drawn out all the pain and soreness and the swelling had disappeared. I am glad to say that I have had no trouble with it since."

If you suffer with that very painful ailment—chilblains—you will find nothing so good as Zam-Buk. Also for chapped hands, cold sores, cold cracks, eczema, old sores, blood-poisoning, piles, cuts, burns and scalds Zam-Buk cannot be equalled. All dealers or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

SATURDAY, MARCH 9, 1918

THE PREMIER'S SPEECH.

The admirable speech of Premier Foster yesterday afternoon was an eye-opener to honorable gentlemen opposite, inasmuch as it gave them a foretaste of what is to come during the remainder of the session—and after. They have been in the habit of comforting themselves with the cheering thought that the Premier's comparatively brief experience in active political life in the province made him an easy mark; but after listening to him yesterday they have now probably awakened to the fact that the Premier has just about as complete a grasp of provincial affairs, and is as keenly alive to the situation as any man in the province. As the session wears on, it will become more and more plain that the Premier is the right man in the right place, and that his party made no mistake—but on the other hand showed excellent judgment—when they chose him as their leader.

Speaking of matters of judgment, the leader of the opposition—and likewise his followers—now probably realizes that he used very poor judgment—worse than usual, in fact—when he undertook to criticize the government for not filling the vacancy in Carleton county. It does not lie in the mouth of Mr. Murray, of all men, to chide the Premier on this score, in view of his own record in such cases, bearing in mind that he and his party took no steps for two sessions to fill up several vacancies, and two of these were in the important centre of St. John.

The Premier's presentation of the condition of the finances of the province as represented by the late government when they were appealing to the people, and the actual facts, will prove a hard nut for the gentlemen of the opposition to crack. Year after year it was their habit to show that they had "a tidy surplus," or what they thought would pass for such in the eyes of people accustomed to believe anything and everything they were told. An examination of the accounts by competent auditors shows that instead of a surplus of $12,000 which they said they had at the end of the fiscal year in 1916, they had outstanding bills to the amount of upwards of $200,000. This sort of thing appears to have been of yearly occurrence, but all evidences of it were very carefully hidden away, and statements false and incorrect given to the people. The late government's boasted Audit Act, which it was said would prevent any irregularities from creeping into the accounts, appears to have been about as effective for the purpose for which it was asked to be designed as entanglements made of thread would be across "No Man's Land." However, the Premier announces that there will be considerable change in the methods of bookkeeping to bring them into line with business principles.

Everyone will rejoice to learn that the attention of the Dominion Government has been called to the railway situation in this province, and that there is reason to hope that the representations which the Premier made when in Ottawa to Sir Robert Borden will result in the load of debt which is now crushing the province being lifted. As the Premier pointed out, much has been done to help out other provinces in railway matters, notably in regard to the Canadian Northern Railway, and that of them all New Brunswick is the only one that will reap no benefit from the expenditure in this respect of the many millions by the Dominion. It is high time that something was done for our own province; and if the Dominion Government can be prevailed upon to take over and finish the Valley Railway and assume the load of debt that this province now has to bear in connection with it, the Premier and his colleagues will have earned the everlasting gratitude of the people. Matters in connection with that railway were left in such a deplorably chaotic condition by the late government that it is well nigh impossible to get them straightened out. One thing the people do know, they are millions of dollars in debt in connection with the business, from which there is no escape unless the Dominion Government consents to take it over.

The Premier will conclude his speech on Monday evening, when he proposes to deal, among other things, with the Greater Production movement, and the policy of the government in regard to assisting in that much needed work, and his announcement on this matter, along with references to other matters which he and his colleagues have in hand, will be awaited with much interest.

London Daily Chronicle: The task of making a durable peace and reconstructing the world on a stable foundation of liberty and fair treatment for all the peoples is emphatically a constructive task. It calls for hard work and clear thinking, and may be achieved by effort and design; it cannot possibly be achieved by chaos. The goal cannot be brought nearer—it may be even indefinitely postponed—"by disorder or by one section of the organized movement acting by itself or by one nation proclaiming an armistice." We must all keep our heads and remember that, as we said the other day, the winning or losing of the war for liberty has become predominantly a question of nerves.

Hon. J. A. Murray, leader of the opposition, resumed the debate on the Address in the Legislature yesterday afternoon, speaking for little more than half an hour. He indulged in some criticism with respect to work on the roads, and alleged that there was laxity in the enforcement of the game law. He also found fault with the recent bond issue of one million dollars. The opposition leader was not very joyful in his criticism and it is plain to be seen that he is laboring under discouragements so far as the political outlook is concerned.

The Legislature adjourned yesterday afternoon for the week-end, and will resume at 8.30 p.m. on Monday. It is altogether likely that the debate on the Address will conclude with the speech of Hon. Mr. Foster, who now has the floor. There is a disposition on the part of members on both sides to get right down to business.
