GRANDMOTHER GAVE IT TO MOTHER,
MOTHER TO ME,
I TO MY BABY

Read what Mrs. Wm. Gray, Jacquet River, N. B., has to say about Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. She writes: "There is no medicine I know of that can come up with Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. It has been in our house for forty years. My grandmother gave it to my mother, she to me and I to my baby. For summer complaint it has no equal. I never miss a chance of telling my neighbors about it. I would not think it safe to go to the country in the summer without a bottle of it. It has saved us many a doctor bill."

For the past 72 years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been recognized by both the people and the medical profession as the greatest remedy known for all cases of diarrhoea, dysentery, cramps, colic, pains in the stomach, cholera infantum, cholera morbus, sea-sickness and all bowel complaints.

There are so many suprious "strawberry" preparations on the market today that it would be well for you to see that the name "Dr. Fowler's" is on every bottle you buy.

Our guarantee, that it will do what we claim for it, stands behind every bottle. But the imitations—what is their record, where the guarantee?

GIRLS FAIL BEHIND THE SODA DRINK FOUNTAINDruggist Tried so Many That Names Were Exhausted---No Business Sense and Too
Much Conversation --- Cute to Look at
But That's All

(Chicago News)

"You seem to keep changing clerks behind your soda water counter," observed the privileged customer to the druggist, as he picked out a cigar. "Which of you can't stand the other?"

The druggist groaned and rashly broke into a package of gum. "Say," he breathed, "I'm getting so patriotic I'm thinking of shutting down that altogether! Human man can't stand much more of these dainty fair ones. Girls may fit in running elevators or chopping wood, or laying bricks if necessary but there's something about the workings of a soda fountain that demoralizes 'em! This one is Ethel and she's the fifteenth I've had in rapid succession and I expect the supply of names is just about run out by now."

"I have only a rapid hazy recollection of the others. I remember one young beauty with Maxine Elliott eyes and a real complexion among the early ones—when she appeared the jam which congested my store almost burst out the walls. Elderly gentlemen who hadn't indulged in a soda since their lives went back on them in '31 called madly for pineapple floats and other unknown liquors and agile men hurried tables to receive their drinks from her own tiny hands."

Maxine's Way

Those on the outskirts told me with tears in their eyes that it was such a relief to have a fresh pretty girl serving sodas instead of a saturnine youth with no regard for effects. Why, I tell you I stood to make a large fortune very shortly, except for the fact that Maxine hadn't business sense enough to shed her smile impartially. Totally ignoring the others, she centered on Percy Cadwalder, who had so much money that he's got stoopshouldered from carrying the coupons from the safety deposit up to the cashier's desk in the bank, and while she piled him with chocolate sundaes and turned her glorious eyes on him full tilt the rest of my customers died of thirst on the desert. That girl paid no more attention to my pleadings to attend to business than if I had been the janitor instead of the owner.

Christine on the Job

"When I hired Christine, I thought I had shown good judgment. She was little and brisk and snappy—the kind that learns quickly and she wore her hair slicked back in that alarming way the girls have, making her look like a young china doorknob, but attractive, if you know what I mean. I never knew what women suffer to make themselves beautiful till I watched Christine. 'Gimme a lover's delight,' the customer would say, 'Yessir,' Christine would murmur, her back toward him, gazing earnestly into the mirror. She would be slicking down a lock that had escaped bounds 'Lover's delight,' would repeat the customer, who like as not had to catch a train. 'Yessir,' would say Christine.

"By this time she had her vanity case out and was carefully powdering her nose or else penciling one eyebrow, which maybe had slipped. I said the customer would repeat patiently 'a lover's delight!' 'Yessir,' would warble Christine, who had just noticed her reflection in the brass trimmings of the tank, and was hastily using a lip stick. By this time the customer would either kick a hole in the counter and depart or just naturally expire.

"Customers were the last thing in Christine's young life. In fact, they rather annoyed her. If it hadn't been for customers I think she would really have enjoyed her job, but they kept butting in, and it got on her nerves and as I did not have any left by that time I had to discharge her. I think she is a model in a manicure.

parlor now, and it is just as well.

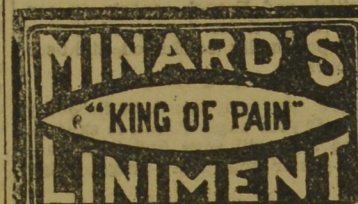

Too Much Conversation

"Lulu was bright, cheerful girl and I thought that here was just what I wanted—some one to lend an atmosphere of charm to the counter, but save me; there was so much atmosphere there wasn't anything else! Customers lined up three deep and Lulu would be carrying on a conversation with a couple of friends who had elbowed their way in.

"Didja, really Mame?" Lulu would gasp, turning around and letting the soda spigot run all over everything. "Tell me every word he said—Banana split? All right!—Aw, he was just kidding yuh! Why, when he was going with my sister—lemon phosphate and strawberry sundae? All right—when he was going with my sister I heard him say just as often—my goodness, wait till I shut this thing off! It's just ruined my new white shoes, spattered them all up—yessir, your banana split'll be ready right away—he told my sister he'd never looked at a girl before he saw her. Said she knocked him all of a heap—' By this time I would have to enter and clear away the riot and I had to let Lulu go. It's an awful life. This girl—"

"Well," said the privileged customer, "she's cute to look at, but I can't say I like whipped cream and nuts on my glass of ginger ale!"

"She's just received three letters at once from her beau," groaned the druggist. "Gee, I'd like to meet the kaiser!"

Best Liniment Made

MR. A. E. LAUNDY, EDMONTON, writes: "I fell from a building and received what the doctor called a very bad sprained ankle, and told me I was not to walk on it for three weeks. I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and in six days I was out to work again. I think it the best Liniment made."

Minard's Liniment always gives satisfaction. For any ache or pain. It gives instant relief.

THE ARMY HUTS
AT THE FRONT

What They Are; What They Are Doing; What They Want to Do.

Charles A. Owens, organizer in the Knights of Columbus Army Huts campaign, when asked to say something explaining the purpose of the big drive which is to be opened on Monday, replied:

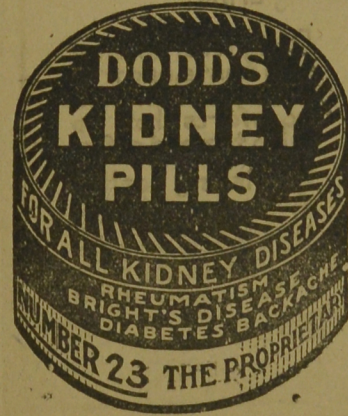

"The association is operating under a dominion charter. As a body corporate the Catholic Army Huts has powers and rights to erect, equip and conduct army huts for Canadian soldiers, which shall serve the two-fold purpose of chapels for Catholic soldiers and recreation huts for all soldiers, irrespective of creed. The work is under the direction of the military chaplain service.

"There are no paid officers of the association. Not a cent of profit has been made on any transaction. The books of the association are regularly audited.

"The work overseas has been in operation slightly more than a year, when funds were first available and the chaplain service regularly organized.

"The aim of the association is to keep Canadian soldiers clean in soul and body. The huts are for the use of any and every soldier. All are welcome. These huts provide a place where men in khaki, regardless of creed, may assemble for wholesome recreation."

SELECT MEDICINE
CAREFULLY

Purgatives are dangerous. They gripe, cause burning pains and make the constipated condition worse. Physicians say the most ideal laxative is Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut; they are exceedingly mild, composed only of health-giving vegetable extracts. Dr. Hamilton's Pills restore activity to the bowels, strengthen the stomach, and purify the blood. For constipation, sick headache, biliousness and disordered digestion no medicine on earth makes such remarkable cures as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Try a 25c. box yourself.

DIFFICULT TO REMEMBER THE PASS WORD

Private Danny Relates His Experience—Got in Wrong and was Warned.

(Chicago News)

Remembering pass words is one of the hardest things that a soldier in France has got to do these summer days. And you gotta remember them because if you don't you're liable to get shot or have to stand outdoors all night or most anything else.

It used to be when we first came over here that the pass words was simple, like "Niagara Falls," or "Brooklyn Bridge," or something easy, but now the game is to pick out the two hardest words to say and easiest to forget words in all the languages spoken by the Allies, which is 27, not counting Roumania any more.

Mostly we have had French words that we forget right away, but it wouldn't make no difference anyhow because we couldn't 'a said 'em if we had known what they was. Then if a fello would say 'em right you couldn't get by the guard. He always had his own pet way of saying them, and you got to come up to him.

The other night I remember we had a pass word that was something like Eugene Elisee. Well, I started out to the front line with a message from my captain to the platoon commander up in the platoon P. C., and the first couple of guards I met I got by all right, but when I got up to them bone head guards in the trenches and I give them the pass right they wouldn't let me by.

"Sure, that's the right words," I argued. "Eugene is the first word and the check is Elisee."

"You got it all wrong, kid, but I'll let you by this time," the guard told me. "The right words is 'Oh-you-Jane and the second is Oh-Elsie. Plain American names, and you better remember them after this."

Then I remember another time we had Sala Swazant for the pass words and long before midnight them guards wouldn't let you pass unless you said "Sally Suicide."

And one time I was stopped by the guard and I gave him the pass word and he told me to pass. Then he called me back.

"Say, bo," he said, "give me that pass word again. Darned if I can remember it."

If some Fritz had come along there in the dark and said "Sourkraut" he would 'a let him by. He couldn't even remember the pass word himself.

It's just about time congress was having a committee investigate this terrible state of affairs in our army in France.

FOR ENGLAND

I longed to go to England,
And walk across the downs;
I longed to go to England,
To the little English towns
Where all the brave young English hearts
Once lived, for which they died.
I longed to go to England,
I longed to live in England,
I longed to be of England
And share her sorrowing pride.

They live so strong for England,
Those poets, grave and gay;
They died so young for England—
They're dying every day—
The haunting music of their songs
Their braver hearts will tell,
Because they gave for England,
Because they fought for England,
Because they died for England,
And died, oh none so well!

WITH MILLIONS MORE MEN TO ASSURE A GREAT VICTORY
THE NEED OF MORE ARMY
HUTS IS IMPERATIVE

SO IT IS THAT

THE KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

ARE EXTENDING THEIR EFFORTS IN ERECTING AND MAINTAINING

Rest and Recreation Facilities
At the Front and in Camps

THE NEED FOR ALL THE HUTS IT IS POSSIBLE TO FURNISH IS MOST PRESSING. Canadian and British Generals say so, also American Commanders and even Generalissimo Foch himself. They all urge upon non-combatants at home the necessity of employing money and effort without stint to back up the fighting men with relaxing comforts. This is what Army Huts are built for; this is one of the great secrets of Allied spirit and fitness.

J. L. Murray, Secretary of C. A. H., Inc., is in receipt of the following self-explanatory telegram from General Turner, Officer Commanding the Canadian Forces in England:

"I wish you every success in the effort to increase the scope of the Catholic Army Huts in the areas of the Canadian forces. I feel they fill a long felt want, particularly among our Roman Catholic soldiers, in providing for their religious welfare. I hope you continue these additional comforts for the men."
