

St. Paul's New S. S. Building Dedicated on Sunday

Was the Gift of the Late Mr. Donald Fraser
--Handed Over to the Church With no Conditions Attached---Appropriate Address by Rev. J. McP. Scott of Toronto,
Who Paid an Eloquent Tribute to the Donor.

Yesterday was a day that will loom large in the history of St. Paul's Presbyterian church of this city, as it marked the dedication of the handsome new Sunday school building bequeathed to the church by the late Donald Fraser of this city. The building is of limestone, occupies the site on York street where for many years stood the Auld Kirk, and will take the place of the latter as the Sabbath school house and headquarters of the various Young People's societies of the church. It is said to be one of the finest if not the finest church building of its kind in the Dominion and the pastor and congregation of St. Paul's are certainly to be envied on the splendid addition to their church equipment.

The entire day yesterday was practically given over to services in connection with the new building, and a program of entertainments will be continued for three evenings during the week. The new building has to be furnished and equipped and the trustees estimate that the cost will be $1,200. Special collections for this fund were taken at yesterday's service and the response was so generous that the pastor was able to announce that over $1,000 had been collected.

Rev. J. McP. Scott.

The preacher at the morning and evening service at St. Paul's yesterday was Rev. J. McP. Scott, pastor of St. John's church, Toronto. He also delivered the principal address at the dedication of the memorial building in the afternoon. In the early eighties when a student Mr. Scott was in charge of a Presbyterian mission at Kincardine, Victoria county, where the late Donald Fraser took up his abode soon after his arrival in this country. A strong friendship sprang up between the two men which remained unbroken until Mr. Fraser's death here less than two years ago. Rev. Mr. Scott visited Fredericton on that occasion and took part in the funeral service. He had on previous occasions been Mr. Fraser's guest at his home here, and had also visited him at his fishing lodge on the Tobique. So he is not a stranger to New Brunswick by any means.

Dedicatory Service.

The dedicatory service was held in the auditorium of the new building, beginning at 2.30 p. m., and attracted a very large audience. Rev. J. S. Sutherland, pastor of the church, presided and seated on the platform with him were Messrs. Archibald and Donald Fraser, sons of the late Donald Fraser, and officers and trustees of the church, including Messrs. T. G. Loggie, George W. Hodge, W. M. Burns, A. S. McFarlane, H. S. Campbell, C. A. McVey, W. M. Clarke, Fletcher Peacock, R. T. Baird, H. P. Baird, Prof. Styles, W. R. Logan, Archie Jewett, G. R. Perkins and James Thompson.

The proceedings were opened with the Lord's Prayer, which was followed by the singing of hymn No. 585. Then came a Scriptural lesson and prayer of dedication by the pastor and the singing of hymn No. 591.

Their Splendid New Building
Dedicated on Sunday.

The pastor made brief mention of the new building provided for the use of the church and congregation by the late Donald Fraser and announced that it was ready for use for the purposes intended by the donor.

Tribute to Late Mr. Fraser.

Rev. J. McP. Scott, pastor of St. John's Presbyterian church, Toronto, in his address spoke eloquently of the life and character of the late Mr. Fraser, and his remarks were followed with the closest attention. After a few introductory remarks he said that more than thirty-five years ago, a break having occurred in his college course, he was selected to do some missionary work for the St. John Presbytery at Kincardine, Victoria county. It was on September 23rd, 1883, that he delivered his first public sermon at Kincardine. Mr. and Mrs. Fraser were among those who were present at the service. He had then

NOT TO WORRY ABOUT.

(Boston Record.)

When one's stock of worry about the cold weather has run low there comes the comfortably philosophic frame of mind wherein one may introduce thoughts of things about which worry need not concern itself—matters pestiferous which cannot now hurt us.

We don't have to slap mosquitoes. The penetrative red ant is as if he were not. The midnight cat sings only intermittently and briefly, preferring the silence-breaking hearth-rug or even the cellar. The iceman tracks no mud into our rear entry. We have forgotten him. Water flows barring accidents, from the household faucet in clear and self-cooled bounteousness. We can substitute the warm for the cold bath without apology. Those of us who so desire can wear old-fashioned suspenders and preserve our secret. We are not disturbed by the whirr of our neighbor's maternal lawnmower, nor are we distressed by the jobar incidental to the propulsion of our own. Cut worms and kindred harassing items of summer activity are buried and forgotten. The garden hose gathers dust and dryness in the basement for the garden sleeps. Hedges are not to be cut, nor is the garden rake a rack of perspiring torment.

If we could concentrate our thought in winter on the summer annoyances, and in summer brood in agreeable reminiscence upon the vexations of zero weather, a deal of worry would be avoided. And we'd be miserable.

In compliance with her oftexpressed wish, Mrs. Emma Cameron Van Sickle, who died recently at McGregor, Iowa, has been laid away beside seven of her nine husbands in the front yard of her home, on the bluffs overlooking the Mississippi.

DON'T DIET YOURSELF TO CURE DYSPEPSIA IT ISN'T NECESSARY.

The sufferer from dyspepsia and indigestion who has to pick and choose his food is the most miserable of all mankind.

Even the little he does eat causes such torture and is digested so imperfectly that it does him little good.

What dyspeptics need is not dieting or artificial digestants, but something that will put their stomach right so it will manufacture its own digestive ferments.

For forty years now Burdock Blood Bitters has been making weak stomachs strong, and curing severe cases of dyspepsia and indigestion that other remedies were powerless to reach. It restores the stomach to a normal healthy condition, so that the food no longer causes distress, but is thoroughly digested and assimilated, and goes on its way making rich, red blood.

Mrs. Henry Shaw, Campbellton, N. B., writes: "I was for five years troubled with a weak stomach, and could not eat any food that would agree with me. I tried different medicines, but could not get cured. A friend advised me to take Burdock Blood Bitters. I took four bottles, and now I am in perfect health."

formed a friendship with Mr. Fraser which had continued unbroken until the death of the latter less than two years ago. Apart from the members of his own household, Mr. Fraser was the best friend he ever had. The speaker mentioned the fact that during his (the speaker's) stay at Kincardine he was brought into close fellowship with the father of the present pastor of St. Paul's, Rev. J. S. F. Sutherland, who was in charge of the work on the Tobique. Continuing he said that if he were disposed to give credit to those who had been of the greatest service to him it would not be to the ministerial brethren but to the great laymen of the church.

The late Mr. Fraser, the speaker went on to say, came to New Brunswick from Aberdeen, Scotland, in the early seventies and located at Kincardine. Simple and frugal in his habits, but withal a great and a good man and an industrious man, he soon laid the foundation of that great business which made him one of the outstanding figures of the province and Dominion. In his fireside talks on former days he was wont to attribute to his noble wife—whom he never ceased to mourn—much of the credit for his success, and it was a great source of regret to him that she had not lived to share with him the fruits of their labors. The deceased gentleman had, however, been fortunate in the possession of two able sons who were able to take hold with him and make a success of the business.

A Man of Character.

Referring to the character of the late Mr. Fraser, the speaker said that he belonged to a particular type of men all too few in this country. Although he had no taste for public life he was remarkably well informed on matters pertaining to public policy and his opinions were well versed and strong. He was a man of unimpeachable honor, high intelligence, and figured as a great man from every standpoint of measurement. He was fond of reading but read only good books and was able to quote from the best authors. He was successful in business and was a type of man who believed in independence of thought. He was unobtrusive in religion, but he was well grounded in his knowledge of the church and a convinced, happy, intelligent follower of the Lord Jesus Christ. He ever manifested a warm interest in the work of the Canadian church while the congregation of St. Paul's found him a true friend and ready helper of the minister. He (the speaker) humbly acknowledged that he was the recipient of a gift from the late Mr. Fraser of a trip around the world. It enabled him to visit mission fields in Korea, China and elsewhere, and he felt that the church had benefitted to an extent many times the amount of the original investment.

In closing Rev. Mr. Scott congratulated the congregation of St. Paul's on the splendid gift provided by the late Mr. Fraser. No other church in Canada had been the recipient of a gift so handsome, and it was a splendid indication of the generous nature of Mr. Fraser. On behalf of Messrs. Archibald and Donald Fraser, he wished to say that the building was a free gift to the church without any conditions attached and was to be put to the best possible use as an integral part of the church organization and equipment.

Mr. R. T. Baird, superintendent of the Sabbath school, was then called upon and presented diplomas and prizes won by members of the Sabbath school. The prize winners were Misses Helen Scott, Tina Clarke and Helen Taylor. In the case of Miss Scott she has not missed attendance at Sabbath school in eleven years.

while the others have to their credit a perfect record of tea years.

Miss Margaret Baird gave a reading entitled "Give Me Thy Heart," which was much enjoyed. Master Fred Campbell recited the "Upper Road," his effort winning applause.

The very successful exercises concluded with the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers," and the National Anthem, followed by the benediction from the pastor.

WHICH?

"This bulk tea is the best I could buy at the price, Mrs. Brown, but I believe you will like Red Rose better."

"We use Red Rose at home and like the rich flavor. My wife says it goes further."

Hundreds of grocers are making statements somewhat like this.

They have sold Red Rose Tea for many years and have found the quality so good that they use it in their homes.

Most grocers naturally like to make an extra profit on their bulk tea, but they cannot help recommending Red Rose Tea because they know it's worth the price.

They know it goes further because it consists chiefly of the teas from Assam in Northern India, the strongest, richest teas grown anywhere in the world.

Red Rose tastes better and goes further.
