GERMANY'S AMBITION IS FOR A VAST WORLD POWER

Important Speech by Lieut. General Smuts Before the Royal Geographical Society ---British and German Colonial View-Points Contrasted---Huns Would Raise a Great African Army to Carry Out the Scheme of World Conquest.

London, Jan. 29—Lieutenant General J. C. Smuts, lecturing before the Royal Geographical Society on East Africa, last night, contrasted the British and German Colonial viewpoints. Germany was not looking for homes for soldiers and had no population, particularly farmers for immigration. Germany's Colonial aims the general said, were dominated by a far reaching conception of world politics. Her real aims were military and in getting strategic positions for a vast world power. Germany's ambition, he said, was for a great east and central African empire, embracing the colonies now owned by the British, Belgian, French and Portuguese, lying south of Lake Chad and north of the Zambesi river.

This territory, general Smuts declared was, first, to supply raw materials for the German empire, but was mainly for raising a great African army to carry out her schemes of world conquest.

Colonizing Methods

"Suppose that German East Africa remains a part of the British Empire after the war" said General Smuts. Cries of "It will and must" interrupted him, after which he continued. "Germany's colonizing methods mean a policy diametrically opposite to that of the British empire which has found its symbol in the union of South Africa. It is content to speak about the disposal of German East Africa after the war, but the law of self-preservation must apply to that country where Prussian militarism has never been allowed."

"The East African campaign may be found to be a most important factor in developing the future and permanent peace of the world."

"Germany, General Smuts said, proposed to have harbors on the Atlantic and Indian coasts of Africa for naval and submarine bases from which both ocean routes could be dominated and Anglo-American seapower brought to naught. The native armies would be useful in the great war, to which Germany already has given attention, said the General, who added:

"The untrained levies of the Union of South Africa will go down before the German trained hordes of Africans who will also be able to deal with northern Africa and Egypt without any help from white troops from Germany. They will also mean a great army planted on the flank of Asia and whose force could be felt throughout the middle east as far as Persia, perhaps farther.

Pacific and Defensive

"Great Britain's objects in Africa are inherently pacific and defensive. Looking to the future from the broader viewpoint and looking further upon Africa as a half way house on the road to India and Australia, the British empire asks only internal peace and the security of its external communications.

"It cannot allow a return to conditions which mean the militarism of the natives and their employment for a scheme of world power. It cannot allow naval and submarine bases to be organized on both coasts of Africa to the endangerment of the sea, communication of the empire and the peace of the world. It must insist upon through land communication from one end of Africa to the other.

"As long as there is no real change of heart in Germany, no irrevocable break with militarism, the law of self-preservation must be considered paramount. No fresh extension of Prussian militarism to other continents and overseas should be tolerated and the German colonies can only be regarded as guarantees for the future peace of the world."

USE CASTILE SOAP.

Animal fats are far more vital for other needs than in the making of Soaps. Animal fat soap is not near as good as soap made from olive oil. Therefore a good castile soap is not only the purest soap to employ, but because of purity the best soap to use.
