

ATTENDED JACKY DANCE AS A PATRIOTIC DUTY

"I don't care for any more thank you", remarked Caroline. "I haven't time. I'm going to the jacky dance at the club you know, and—"

"After playing eighteen holes of golf for the first time this season?" objected her mother. "And with your old! No, you've exercised enough for one day—"

Caroline smiled patiently at her parent. "I'm not a particle tired," she insisted. "And my cold is almost well. And the girls are going to meet here, so of course I have to—there's Edith now on the phone!"

She rushed off and the father of the family sighed. "Bee firm," he admonished his wife. "She'll put that dance over on you yet, if—"

"Harriett can't go!" burst in their child disconsolately, returning. "I think it's mean. She's been sick all day and her mother won't let her get out of bed and dress for it! And Harriett says that she can tell by her feelings that in an hour she will be perfectly well. And—there's the phone"

"Well, but what's the use of being firm?" the mother of the family asked of her husband. "You know perfectly well that when Caroline sets her mind on anything—"

"Caroline," said the father of the family, coldly and distinctly as his offspring returned once more. "I want you to call off your jacky dance to-night, because it is unwise for you to travel six miles and dance half the night with your cold!"

"Oh, but I can't father," she explained patiently. "You see, I got up the crowd and they're coming here. And Isabel just phoned she had a toothache and can't go—so we'll be two short anyway. I think I'll wear my new suit—"

"But—"

"And I'm afraid Louise will back out at the last minute, too, because Harold most always makes a date for Saturday night for the Cosmos dances and she was positive he'd call up by dinner time. hat'll leave just four of us. And I think it's horrid when it's their patriotic duty to—Oh, there's the phone!"

"Be firm," chanted the mother of the family sweetly. "Merely be firm and—"

"How disagreeable you are," mused the father of the family, spiritedly. "When I set down my foot—"

"Harold called up," related Caroline rushing back. "I think it is perfectly silly how crazy Louise is over him! Why you'd think he was the king of England or something, the way she drops everything the minute he whistles! I guess I'd be more independent! And when it's her patriotic duty—"

"Oh, fishhooks!" scoffed her father "the rest of you are jealous because Louise has a beau these barren days and you haven't! Now that your party has simmered down to such a small number, of course you will not want to go. I am glad—"

"Certainly we're going!" insisted Caroline surprisedly. "Leave all those jackies with no partners? Why, it's our duty! And oh, yes, mother, you'll have to go along to chaperon because Harriett's mother won't want to go now that Harriett is out of it!"

"What—me?" spluttered her parent protestingly. "I certainly can't! The Jamesons are coming over."

"But you said you would!" cried Caroline indignantly. "You said you'd go if no one else did—oh, there's the phone!"

"Why do I talk so much?" groaned the mother of the family distractedly. "I have no recollection of it whatever! Why don't you stop her? She really shouldn't go out tonight!"

"What do you think!" Caroline demanded as with shining eyes she dashed back. "It was Dick Somerville—the tall one that played football and is going to be an aviator just as soon as he can persuade his father—and he wants me to go to the Cosmos dance tonight with him and Louise and Harold! Why, he's never asked any girl in our crowd before! And of course I said yes, because I knew you'd so much rather have me go to a party only two blocks away where I can't possibly catch cold, and—"

"But your duty," reminded the father of the family in hollow tones. "Your patriotic du—"

"Oh, I thought of that," Caroline told him kindly. "And Dick said to phone the other girls to call it off and he'd run me down to the jacky dance in his car for an hour and then we'd come back for the Cosmos! And there simply has to be a chaperon for the jacky dance—there's plenty of room for you, mother, in the car, and do hurry and get ready! So, you see, it's perfectly all right!"

"Oh, my grief!" moaned the father of the family as his daughter bounded frantically upstairs and his wife protested unavailingly; "not one dance, but two! And you can't beat 'em, nor lock 'em up, nor anything!"

UNIONIST M. P.'S DEFY FARMERS

(Canadian Press direct wire.)
Toronto, May 30.—A constituent called on W. F. MacLean, M. P. for South York, to see the petition from the farmers in Markham asking him to resign his seat if he did not oppose conscription for farmers. Mr. MacLean said he was not going to resign; that on the contrary he told the electors, farmers included, at all his meetings in the late contest that he was for conscription and would support its enforcement.
Dr. M. Steele, Unionist M. P. for South Perth, has also declined the invitation of his farm constituents to resign on account of his attitude on conscription.

Thursday Half-Holiday.
As in previous years, Thursday afternoon will be observed by the business houses of Fredericton as a half holiday during the months of July and August.
Miss Nellie Oppenheim, prominent business woman of Savannah, Ga., is the first woman to be elected to membership in the board of trade of that city.

CANADA

MILITARY SERVICE ACT, 1917

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that, by the effect of the regulations of the Governor General of Canada in Council of the 20th of April, 1918, and the Proclamation of 4th May, 1918, recently published, every male British subject resident in Canada, born on or since the 13th of October, 1897, who has attained or shall attain the age of 19 years and who is unmarried or a widower without children must, (unless he is within one of the classes of persons mentioned in the schedule of Exceptions to the Military Service Act) report as hereinafter directed on or before the 1st day of June, 1918, or within ten days after his 19th birthday, whichever date shall be the latter.

Such report must be in writing and must give his name in full, the date of his birth and his place of residence and also his usual post office address.

The report must be addressed to the Registrar or Deputy Registrar under the Military Service Act of the Registration District in which he resides (see below) and shall be sent by registered post, for which no Canada postage is required.

Young men so reporting will not be placed on active service till further notice. They must, however, notify the appropriate Registrar or Deputy Registrar of any change of residence or address.

On receipt of the report an identification card will be forwarded by the Registrar which will protect the bearer from arrest.

Punctual compliance with these requirements is of great importance to those affected. Failure to report within the time limited will expose the delinquent to severe penalties and will in addition render him liable to immediate apprehension for Military Service.

ISSUED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE, MILITARY SERVICE BRANCH, this 15th day of May, 1918.

NOTE: The men required to report should address their reports as follows:

HAS A CORN ANY ROOTS?

Yes, and branches and stems as well. Can it be cured? Yes, by applying Putnam's Corn Extractor; it's painless, safe and invariably satisfactory. Insist on only Putnam's Extractor, 25c. at all dealers.

You don't like the cheap tea you are using. Do you?

Before the war so increased the cost of living, many people used to drink better tea than they are now using.

Perhaps, this is true in your case?

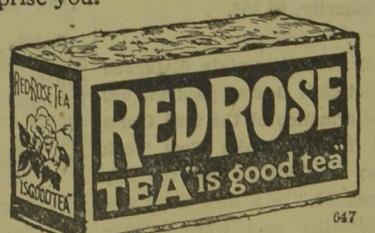

Of course, you are not drinking poor tea because you like it, but because you think it necessary to save money.

But are you really saving anything? Cheap, common teas only make about 150 cups to the pound. You are lucky if you can stretch them out to 185 or 200.

On the other hand, Red Rose Tea easily makes 250 cups. It goes further because of its fine quality, consisting chiefly of Assam teas, the richest and strongest in the world.

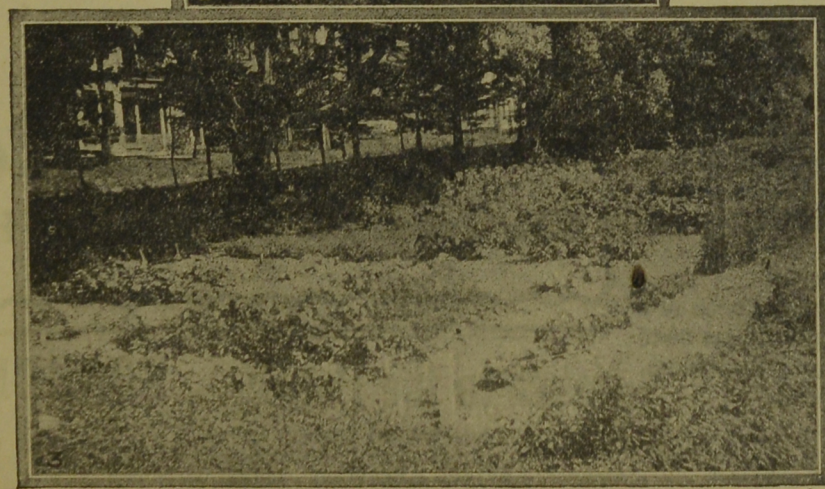

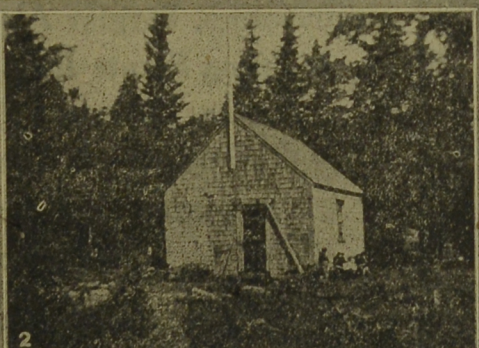

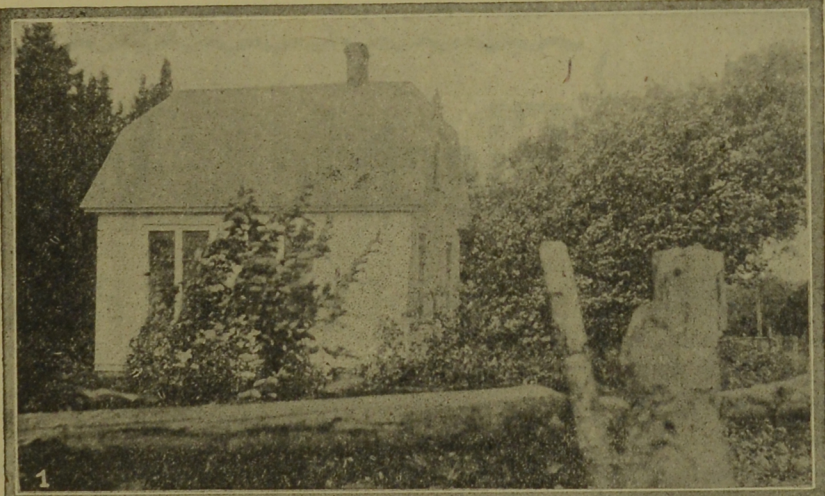

You may almost doubt if so many cups of tea can be made from a pound of even such good tea as Red Rose, but you can readily prove the economy of Red Rose without waiting for a package to be used up. Just use a few leaves less of Red Rose for a brewing than you use of common tea—the result we are sure will please and surprise you.
