ENEMY HELD IN CHECK
ON FIRST DAY OF DRIVEFrench Troops Put Up a Splendid Fight
East of Rheims --- American Eject Huns
From Positions on the Southern Side of the Marne --- Allied Airplanes Played Havoc With Enemy Troops

On the French Front in France, Monday, July 15—The impression of the results of the first day's battle in the new German smash on the French front is very good.

Nowhere along the stretch of many miles did the enemy succeed in penetrating more than 4,000 yards and that was only on a small scale in the neighborhood of Marfaux, southwest of Rheims, although orders found on German prisoners announced that the first day would take them twenty kilometres from the front line of departure.

On the battlefield east of Rheims the enemy did not even get beyond the advanced line, the invincible resistance of the French troops preventing him from attaining the main combat line. With the French on the section west of Rheims fought American and Italian troops, both of whom vied with the other allies in keenness and courage.

A Brilliant Operation

It was a brilliant operation in which

IT WAS AN ODD BOOK FOR HIM TO BUY

(New York Sun)

You hear odd and interesting things on top of a fifth avenue bus. Two New York men well groomed, well fed, successful business men, around 40, were riding there the other day and the Woman Who Saw couldn't help hearing, since they sat directly behind, spoke in audible tones requiring no eavesdropping ear to hear.

"I did not odd thing today," confessed one man.

"What was that?"

"I bought a Bible."

"Bought what?"

"Yes, sir, I bought a Bible. Everybody is talking about Bibles, and they're giving them out to soldiers and sailors, so the other day I asked the folks if there was a Bible in the house, and they said there wasn't. So I made up my mind that we would have a Bible. Now the curious part of it all is that when I went to buy one I was ashamed to ask for it. I actually felt self-conscious—embarrassed."

His companion laughed.

"I've got it in my pocket. Another odd thing about it is that Bibles are so cheap. I paid 35 cents for it. You can even buy them for 15 cents. The war doesn't seem to have run up the price on Bibles."

Here they both laughed, and presently there was a rattling of paper, as if a book—maybe—were being unwrapped, and the Woman Who Saw was so stirred that she stopped the bus and got off merely to have a chance to look at the two New York men examining a Bible on the top of a Fifth avenue bus.

The man who was ashamed to ask for a Bible had a red face and a fat stomach. But his hour had struck. He had begun to think. A great thing—war!

N. S. RED CROSS
CAMPAIGN

Halifax, July 16.—Nova Scotia's Red Cross campaign was brought to a close on Monday. It was an overwhelming success, being over-subscribed by about $50,000 above its objective of $250,000. The Halifax quota of $70,000 was passed by $30,000, notwithstanding the fact that one section of the city was entirely wiped out in the disaster of December 6th last.

GOVT. CONTROL OF THE WIRES

Washington, July 16.—President Wilson has signed the wire control bill empowering him to take over and operate for the period of the war all the telegraph, telephone, cable and radio lines.

The American troops ejected the enemy from the positions he had gained temporarily on the southern side of the Marne. The Americans counter-attacked vigorously this evening with remarkable dash, throwing the Germans back across the river near Fossey.

Earlier in the day this part of the line had been the scene of the most desperate fighting, when the Germans started to throw pontoons across the stream. A few German elements at first succeeded in getting over in boats, chasing the Allied troops away from the banks while the German engineers began to lay the bridges. Six of these bridges formed a lattice work and rapidly joined the banks on either side. Two of the bridges were most substantial structures and between 20 and 30 feet in width.

Airplanes Played Havoc

French airplanes played great havoc in the German ranks while the bridges were under construction. One bombing squadron, flying at a height of 200 metres, dropped bombs on two of these bridges while the enemy troops were crossing. The bridges were broken and the soldiers thrown in the river. The aviators constantly bombed the other bridges and did great execution among the Germans on the bridges as well as on the banks where the Germans concentrated in great masses.

When the Germans crossed the river the fighting which was already heavy became terrific. The French and Americans, holding the southern side, fell back on to their principal combat positions. They fought all the way and counter-attacked occasionally, creating confusion in the ranks of the advancing foe.

Then late in the evening, the Americans started a dashing counter blow which resulted in the Germans retiring pell-mell to the river.
