A SHAMEFUL WASTE.

Not long ago some thousands of pounds of chicken was held in a cold storage plant at Winnipeg until it rotted and had to be thrown away. Now comes a report that twenty thousand dozens of eggs which went bad while in cold storage, have been dumped on a farm near London, Ont., to do duty as fertilizer. Here is the story as told in a special despatch to the Montreal Star:

Delegates from the Trades and Labor Council early this morning paid a surprise visit to a farm at the corner of Egerton street, city, and 1st Concession of Westminster township, to investigate a story that there were 20,000 dozen eggs which had gone bad, being taken to this farm for use as fertilizer.

On arrival they found the story to be true, at least in part, although the aroma forbade an actual count of the eggs. No less than 100 barrels of bad eggs had been dumped on the farm since harvest was over, and it is reported that there are many more ready to be taken. It was stated at the farm that the eggs came all from local cold storage and labor men declare they had been held in order to keep up the price.

The delegation reported to Mayor Somerville, who sent out Dr. Downham, M. O. N., and J. W. McCallum, food inspector, to investigate. Immediate action is demanded by the people if the officials' report confirms that of the labor men.

It is quite evident that the officials of the food control department at Ottawa have been neglecting their duty. A lot has been heard of the food profiteer and the steps taken by the authorities to eliminate him, but it is painfully evident that he is still doing business at the old stand. To permit 20,000 dozen of eggs to rot in a cold storage plant at a time like this is a terrible crime and those responsible for it should be sought out and severely punished.

Washington Post: The barbarity of the German-Austrian military commands leaves no justification for refraining from retaliatory measures, such as the bombing of cities and the execution of an equal number of prisoners. Just as the Allies cannot make any agreement with the Huns because the latter will not keep their word, so the Allies must bring home to the barbarians the enormity of their acts by reprisals and not by mere protests. The snake will strike until his head is ground under heel, and the Hun will murder the innocent until he himself is slain.

Toronto Star: No man who is really a returned soldier from the front needs to be in want. There may be too much red tape sometimes and things may go wrong, but even so, the man who limps home from the war need but get in touch with the organizations that exist and he will be put in the way of having his needs looked into. The best friends of the soldiers are those who have set themselves the task of seeing that the veterans of this war shall not have to go from door to door in quest of a living.

The Nova Scotia Construction Company, contractors for the completion of the Valley Railway, are offering a bonus of $10 to every man who will go to work on the road and stay on the job until it is completed. The rate of pay is 35 cents an hour for a ten-hour day, and the men can work twelve hours at the same rate per hour if they desire. It is doubtful if a more attractive offer was ever made to laboring men in this province, and the contractors should have no difficulty in getting the required number.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The lesson of Abraham Lincoln throws a light along the pathway of Woodrow Wilson. We need not defy him; but we must trust him. He is not only our leader, but the world's leader. Lloyd George was right enough. The issue lies between Hindenburg and Wilson. If Wilson does not beat Hindenburg, good-bye to civilization.

In discussing the shortage of labor in the coal mines the New Glasgow Chronicle points out that there are 200,000 tons of coal in the dump at Sydney which cannot be removed owing to lack of transportation facilities. It says that so long as this dump remains it will be very difficult to induce the miners to speed up.

Buffalo Commercial: General Bernhardt, whose spouting made at one time such a hit in Germany, has had a chance to put into practice some of his military theories, but as his happens to be the corps that is being driven back by the British at Merville, it wouldn't appear that his policies were a success.

La Presse: When is the next session of the Federal Parliament going to be held? clamor certain party journals. Have they forgotten that parliamentary assemblies are no longer in style in Canada, since the supremacy of the order-in-council has been established?

COMMODORE STEWART IN AN AIRPLANE

Veteran Chatham Journalist Gives an Account of His Experience Among the Clouds.

Describing his recent trip over the Allies lines in France in an airplane, Commodore Stewart writes as follows to the Chatham World.

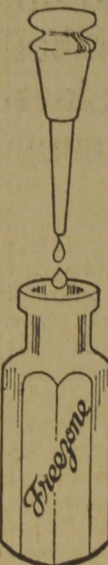

We were to visit the Vimy Ridge front line the next day, and the conducting officer decided that I could not accompany the party to the trenches, as I had no gas mask. So I got a guide, a fine young lieutenant of Gen. Currie's staff, to accompany me on an observation tour of our own. This young officer had no fear either for himself or me, and we went straight ahead into the 'gasarea', and ascended Mt. St. Eloi, overlooking Vimy Ridge and equally liable to be shelled by the Germans. And then, on visiting our most advanced airdrome, I got into the good graces of the officer in command and was given permission to go up in a battle plane and overlook the trenches. It was against rules and this was the first time that layman or officer, without an order from headquarters, had been given this privilege. 'I didn't ask the officer in charge to send me up,' I explained subsequently to an Imperial officer who was talking to me about the ascent, and he remarked: 'That is why he gave you the chance to go up.' It was, you see a case of modesty rewarded. It was a two-man machine, carrying two machine guns and four bombs, and I took the observer's seat, the pilot being a few feet forward, just behind the propeller or puller and the Lift Off Corns Doesn't Hurt!

Few drops stop soreness, then corn or callus lifts off with fingers

The world owes thanks to the genius in Cincinnati who discovered freezone. Tiny bottles of the magic fluid can now be had at any drug store for a few cents. You simply apply a few drops of freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a hardened callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose and shrivelled that you lift it off with the fingers. Not a bit of pain or soreness is felt when applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the skin or flesh. For a few cents one can now get rid of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, as well as painful calluses on bottom of feet. Everyone who tries freezone becomes an enthusiast because it really does not hurt or pain one particle.

THE POSTAL SERVICE.

F'ron, Sept. 6, 1918.

Editor, Mail:

Dear Sir: A word or two, if I may, about Post-Office matters in Fredericton, not in a critical mood, but merely enquiring.

On Statutory holidays the evening mails are left for the night clerks to sort at their leisure any time before business hours the next morning, it seems. While to the general public, perhaps, this is no inconvenience, surely all recognize the fact that to the merchants, the manufacturers, and others to whom TIME is a most valuable asset, this is an injustice that should be remedied without more ado. Why could not one or two live clerks stop for a half hour or so and sort this mail as on any ordinary week-day, and thus allow important business affairs to proceed without interruption?

Also there seems to be no method of advising the people whether or not the mails are sorted, or whether the mails are in and being sorted or late in arrival and not apt to be sorted for some time. This can be very easily arranged and will be very greatly appreciated.

Respectfully,
 UP TO DATE

There may be two sides to every question, but one side, you've noticed, always lies at low visibility. They say the Kaiser is aging rapidly—but think of the useful experience he is accumulating!

motor. 'Are you all right?', asked the pilot as the machine was bumping over the greensward, getting up speed for a rise. 'Yes, let her go,' I responded, and up we went circling into the air, higher and ever higher till the high-ways were silver threads and the trenches dark lines on the shell-pant landscape. It was delightful, exhilarating, glorious, with just enough danger of Boche shells or a fight with a Boche plane to lift it out of the category of a mere pleasure sail through the air. I'm sure I didn't miss anything that day by leaving the bunch and paddling my own canoe, especially as I found and visited the 26th New Brunswick Battalion before returning to camp.

BATHING OUT IN ARKANSAS

"Hey there!" exclaimed a traveller who was journeying through the Rumpus Ridge region of Arkansas. "What are you throwing that child into the creek for and then helping him out when he struggles to the bank, only to throw him into the water again in spite of his screams?"

"This is Saturday afternoon according to the omenick, and the presiding elder is coming tonight to stay at our place over Sunday," replied Bay Johnson. "The wife loved I'd have to get the children sorter washed while she was reddin' up the house. When the kids heered what was coming off they tore out for the tall timber. This yur small one was the easiest to ketch; and as I don't see that it makes much difference whether I bathe the whole fourteen of 'em once aplece or one of 'em fourteen times, I' moperatin' on him. Any special war news, podner?"
