OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

LONG YEARS OF PREPARATION.

The Women Who are Doing Things That Count Began to Do Things Thoroughly at the Beginning.

"Many are called, but few are chosen." These words come to mind again and again, when women and war work are considered. The road to France beckons invitingly, insistently, and multitudes would answer the self-given invitation. But the impulse to "do something is not enough. It is not even important, unless it is the crowning glory of a course of honest, strenuous, lengthy training. The most glorious outcome of this war, for women, is the fact that it has eliminated completely the superficial woman. She may remain superficial, but she cannot remain influential and prominent. It is amazing, when one pauses to consider, how completely the women agitators and propagandists of five years ago have disappeared. Their calling is gone and they have withdrawn from the feeble limelight of those days.

Women Who Do Things.

Today the women who are doing things that count are women who began to do things thoroughly at the very commencement of their career. They never called it "career," by the way, never named it in fact, and then this process of self-discipline and self-improvement was, more often than not, simply called "making a living" or "doing the very best I can." The world was full of just such women, whose one passion was to do the work in hand in the very best way it could be done. Advancement, pecuniary gain, material benefit were not even secondary. The work was the thing! No training was too severe if only excellence crowned the work.

These women were truly the wise virgins, more concerned to keep their lamps filled and the wicks in perfect working order than about the accomplishments that fill leisure hours.

Their Call at Last.

Their call has come at last and their lamps are needed—every one of them. There is not a woman in the world today who has improved her talents from the time she began to view life seriously (in girlhood days) but has a most important mission to perform. The world is waiting for her work. There is no such thing as "blossoming unseen" at this age of the world, if one's training has accomplished all that it should. The "shelf" on which women have resignedly laid themselves for years has been taken down, and even the grandmothers are today coming in for honorable mention as being responsible for the soldier lads in France.

Every woman who was prepared is doing a real part in the world's work and those who preferred veneer and superficiality to genuine worth of character are being refused admittance, every day, into coveted fields of endeavor. Prepare for work and the task will find the worker!

THE WAR GARDEN.

Issued by the Canada Food Board

Watch for Blister Beetles.

Blister beetles occur almost every year and cause considerable anxiety to farmers and gardeners from their habit of appearing suddenly in large numbers and feeding on potatoes, beans, beets, carrots, corn, tomatoes and other vegetables. They are soft-bodied insects, slender and cylindrical, and about half an inch in length. Spraying with Paris green or arsenate of lead, as for the potato beetle, will control blister beetles, but in some outbreaks it may be necessary to repeat the application because the bugs which are killed are soon replaced by others. In some gardens it may be possible to destroy them by beating them from the plants into a pan containing water with a little coal oil on the surface.
