TO COMBINE THE ECONOMIC RESOURCES OF THE ALLIES

This is One of the Primary Objects of Economic Association of 24 Nations of Entente Alliance - Comprehensive Arrangement of Liberal Intercourse the Aim, Says Lord Robert Cecil --- Where the Huns Stand

London, July 15—The following is the full text of the statement as to the conditions governing the commerce of the world and the good relations between the Allied States after the war which has been issued by Lord Robert Cecil, British Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs and Minister of Blockade.

"I have been much interested in the series of addresses and discussions at the recent meetings of Commercial Associations in the United States, such as the Chamber of Commerce and the Foreign Trade Council regarding trade after the war. The tone of these discussions seems to show clearly a desire for settled arrangements for mutual help between all the nations now associated in the war against German. These are also our feelings in Britain, and I should like to make some acknowledgement of these recent utterances of prominent American commercial men by trying to describe roughly the state of British policy at this moment in regard to such matters.

The Paris Conference

"The resolutions of the Paris Economic Conference have been much discussed during the last two years. When they were written we had an alliance of eight nations, six of whom had suffered the immediate ravages of war. The world outside including the United States, with its vast resources, was neutral, and nominally at any rate, the neutral world at the conclusion of peace would have sold its products where they would have fetched most money. To borrow the plain words of the recent inter-Allied Labor Conference, all these vast resources would have gone to those who could pay most, not to those who would need most so the Paris Conference was a defensive agreement of those then engaged in the war to secure their own peoples against starvation and unemployment during the period of reconstruction, and to provide for the restoration to economic life of the ravaged territories of Belgium, Poland, Serbia, France and Italy.

"These objects retain all their old importance. They are simple measures of self-preservation. It is for example, still essential that we should forestall the aggressive efforts of the Central Powers to use their money power to snatch on the morning after the war the raw materials needed for the reconstruction of the peoples in the western and eastern theatres of war whom they have themselves despoiled.

But, while the essential needs of ourselves and of the nations which are fighting with us the battle of liberty and justice remain unaltered, the alliance of eight has expanded into the association of twenty-four nations of which President Wilson spoke in his recent address to the Red Cross. It is no longer a question of forming some narrow defensive alliance, but of laying down the economic principles of the association of nations which is already in existence and to membership of which we are committed.

Stated by the President

"What are these principles to be? The President has stated them in memorable words. On January 8th he advocated the removal so far as possible of all economic barriers, and the establishment of an equality of trade among all the nations consenting to peace and associating themselves for its maintenance. On December 4th he had already defined the qualifications for membership in this association of nations in words the wisdom and importance of which have been rendered doubly evident by all we know of the policy of domination, exploitation and exclusiveness introduced by Germany into all her peace treaties, and forced by her upon her allies. In that speech he considered what would be the situation if the German people should still after the war was over, continue to be obliged to live under ambitious and intriguing masters interested to disturb the peace of the world and pointed out that it might then be impossible to admit them either to the partnership of nations which must henceforth guarantee the world's peace or to the free economic intercourse which must inevitably spring out of the other partnerships of a real peace.

"To these declarations we give our warmest assent. But do these declarations necessarily mean that we—the associated nations—are to have no protective tariffs and no international competition in trade after the war? No. Everyone is agreed as to that. In the words of the programme of the inter-Allied Labor Conference, 'the right of each nation to the defence of its own economic interests and, in face of the world shortage hereinafter mentioned, to the conservation of a sufficiency of foodstuffs and materials, cannot be denied.

Liberal Intercourse

"Each member of the association of nations may have to protect its citizens in one way or another after the war, but our aim must be a comprehensive arrangement of a liberal intercourse with all members of the association by which each one of us while preserving his own national

HUNS DESTROY OWN AIRDROME

London, July 17.—The destruction by fire of a new German airdrome with twenty-two airplanes, near Niville, is attributed to the work of German revolutionists in the army, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Amsterdam. Niville is 17 miles south of Brussels. Ten Belgians and two German non-commissioned officers were arrested. The day before the fire, adds the despatch, a secret meeting occurred in a canteen at Niville, where the scheme for the destruction of the airdrome was hatched.

TELLS LADIES HERE "WATCH YOUR STEP"

Can not camouflage a touchy corn but says they lift right out

A brisk, lively step is what charms more than a lovely skin, but your high heels have caused corns and you limp a little. That's bad, girls, and you know it. Corns destroy beauty and grace, besides corns can be lifted out with the fingers.

Rid your feet of every corn by asking at any drug store for a quarter of an ounce of freezezone. This will cost little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

A few drops applied directly upon a tender, touchy corn relieves the soreness and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts right out without pain. This freezezone is a gummy substance which dries instantly and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding skin.

Women must keep in mind that cornless feet create a youthful step which enhances her attractiveness.
