A WORKINGMAN'S VIEW.

"Pro Bono Publico," writing in the Amherst, N.S., News, expresses the sentiments of a large number of people on the subject of food control regulations when he says:

"Would you allow me a little space in your paper for a few remarks concerning the recent order of the Canada Food Board?"

There is an inn somewhere in the Midland of England, which displays the following signs: 'The Five Alls—The lawyer pleads for all; the preacher prays for all; the soldier fights for all; the King rules over all; and the workingman pays for all.'

"This motto is aptly represented in the food order which compels the workingman to buy in small quantities, viz., fifteen days' supply. To quote an example: By buying flour in 24 lb. lots we have to pay at the rate of 80 cents per barrel more than if we bought a whole barrel, to say nothing of the loss of the barrel which is very useful if only for kindling. The same thing applies with regard to sugar and various other commodities.

"This order of the Food Board does not tend to conserve food. For instance, a family may consume its fifteen days' supply in say ten days and then go to the store for another fifteen days' ration. It also does not prevent waste because the average workingman's home cannot afford to waste anything in these days of profiteering when prices are allowed to run amuck without hindrance from the powers that be. A man's life, when he is sent to the front, is valued at $1.10 per day, but there is no limit to the value of a barrel of potatoes or a carcass of pork. There is more truth than poetry in the Irishman's remark, 'The law is an ass.'"

Since the above was written, the objectionable regulation of which the writer complained has been modified to a considerable extent.

THE LATE C. H. THOMAS.

The unexpected death of Mr. Chas. H. Thomas at his home here last night has deprived Fredericton of a worthy and highly esteemed citizen. For many years Mr. Thomas has been a prominent figure in the commercial life of the city and enjoyed an enviable reputation for honesty, integrity and public spiritedness. Although a busy man, he ever manifested a keen and practical interest in public affairs and was for years a valued member of the City Council, serving first as alderman and afterwards as Mayor. In politics he was a staunch Conservative and while always an active worker in the interests of his party in election campaigns, he never allowed politics to interrupt the friendly relations he always enjoyed with those who did not see eye-to-eye with him. He was a good citizen in every sense of the term and his death will be deplored by all classes of citizens.

MAKING BIG PROFITS.

While the people of Canada, at the instance of the authorities at Ottawa, have been trying their level best to conserve wheat flour for "the boys at the front," the millers of the country have been busily engaged in rolling up enormous profits. This fact has lately been established by a report made public by the Department of Labor. It is shown that one large concern, despite the war tax, has been able to increase its profits from eight to twenty-five per cent., and it is by no means an isolated case. The Ogilvie Milling Company in 1913 had a surplus profit account of $473,000, which it was able to increase by 1917 to $2,696,000, after paying a war tax of $750,000. It rather looks as if it was up to the government to make a further levy on the surplus profits of the millers for war purposes.

More than 2,700,000 wounded and sick men have been returned to the fighting front, and 692,000 soldiers have been discharged from the German army as unfit for further service.

Our old friend, Commodore Stewart, in his paper, the Chatham World, claims that owls and hawks are the friends of the farmer and that the provincial government made a mistake in providing a bounty for their slaughter. In the Legislature last session when the Game Act was under discussion, Mr. Pinder of York stood up in his place and urged the government to adopt some means whereby partridges could be protected from the ravages of hawks and owls. The worthy commodore may know how to navigate a yacht, but in matters relating to hawks and owls it is evident that he has still considerable to learn. We do not believe that the farmers are losing any sleep over the action of the government in placing a bounty on porcupines, hawks and owls.

The Germans have started another big offensive on the western front, but are not meeting with as much success as they anticipated. The Allies are in much better shape than was the case during the big drive of March 21st, and no fears are entertained for the outcome. The Huns, with superior numbers, may bend the Allied line at some points, but they will never break it.

Sir William Mackenzie says he is not satisfied with the award of $10,800,000 made by the arbitrators for the common stock of the C. N. R. The company is not to get all it expects, but it is the general opinion that it will get all it deserves.

Prince Arthur of Connaught has arrived at New York on a British cruiser at the head of a British mission. He is en route to Japan to present a baton to the Emperor.

Horses for slaughter were sold on the Vienna market recently at the unprecedented price of from 75 to 100 pounds sterling.

Through Our Sieve

The Lord loveth a cheerful gardener. It takes the outworm to deliver the unkindest cut of all.

Many a man who howls at pain imagines that he suffers in silence. Lots of women have a perfectly delightful way of being mean.

Oh, food control, what blunders are committed in thy name!

The young man's fancy is turning—but not lightly, perhaps—to thoughts of war this spring.

What we've been waiting for—a submarine to "get" a U-boat.

What has become of the old-fashioned young man who brought letters of recommendation?

Scratch a man who "hates England" and you usually find a man who loves Prussianism.

A sailorman says that what he likes about the navy as against the army is that he doesn't have to have wet feet all the time.

Speaking of non-essential occupations, if the army could only grab all the knockers, it would have quite a lot—but they wouldn't be first class fighters.

Two excellent methods of avoiding disappointment are never to fall in love or put anything into the oven. But a lot of joy is lost in refraining from either risk.

WON ENOUGH GROUND TO BURY THE DEAD

(Canadian Press direct wire.)
Paris, May 28.—The results of the first day of the long-expected German offensive, are considered in competent French quarters as satisfactory. By paying the price, it is contended, it was inevitable that the enemy could gain some ground. After the terrific struggle throughout the day yesterday the Germans at an enormous cost advanced at the farthest point three and a half miles. Military officials say the enemy has won enough ground to bury his dead and that is all. At no point has the Allied line been pierced.

Here a short service was held. At the conclusion of the service the body was escorted by a military detail and draped in flags was motored to Uxbridge, where the funeral will take place Wednesday.

Mr. F. P. Doody, who is now training at an aviation camp near Toronto, spent the week end in the city.

TWO HUNDRED STALLIONS HAVE BEEN INSPECTED

Convictions Act for each and every offence.

Not An Easy Matter

The drafting of a comprehensive Stallion Act for the Province of New Brunswick was a difficult matter for the simple reason that part of the Province is well supplied with good pure bred stallions while in the northern and eastern sections grade stallions predominate, hence if the grades were eliminated at once farmers would find it difficult to breed their mares. Drastic legislation like this would be advisable if there were a sufficient number of pure-bred stallions in all the various sections of the Province. There are not and hence the grades and cross bred will be allowed to travel in certain restricted areas and under certain conditions as laid down by the 1918 Stallion Act.

Conditions For Grades

Briefly these conditions are as follows:—

(a) A grade stallion or a cross bred will be allowed to travel or stand for service in districts not served by a pure bred stallion.

(b) If a grade or cross bred stallion is travelled for service in a district served by an authorized pure bred stallion then the owner of the grade or cross bred must charge the same service fee as the owner of the pure bred providing the service fee of the pure bred meets with the approval of the Minister of Agriculture. Failure on the part of the owner of the grade or cross bred to live up to the provisions of the Act means that he must cease to travel his horse or seek new territory not served by a pure bred.

(c) The grade and cross bred stallions as well as the pure bred stallions must conform to certain definite requirements as regard conformation, type, freedom from hereditary diseases and unsoundness before a certificate will be granted.

Classification

The following classification has been adopted:

For Pure Breds, Class A. Superior; Class A; Class A. Average; Class A. Unsound.

For Cross Breds: Class B. Superior; Class B; Class B. Average; Class B. Unsound.

For Grades: Class C. Superior; Class C; Class C. Average; Class C. Unsound.

Certificates to unsound horses are only granted temporarily in districts that are without stallion service, otherwise unsound stallions are condemned.

I tried everything, but could get no relief. I was advised to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and I sent to Toronto for them. The day I received them I took three before going to bed, and I felt a lot better next morning. "I took them according to directions and in one week I was as well as ever.
