A CLOSE-UP OF BISHOPS.

Mr. Fred Jacob, writing in the Toronto Saturday Night under the caption "Close-ups of the Bishops," pays the following tribute to His Lordship the Bishop of Fredericton:

"The orator of the House of Bishops is Bishop Richardson of Fredericton. There is something reminiscent of Sir Johnston Forbes Robertson about this prelate. His clear-cut face, his deep eyes, his slow dignity of gesture and his organ-like voice recall the great English actor. His addresses might be described like Forbes Robertson's performances of Shakespeare as 'beautiful words, beautifully said.' He is a scholar as well as an orator, and so long as he adorns the bench the Anglicans of Canada will never be without a 'show' bishop."

Concerning Right Rev. Charles D. Schofield, a New Brunswick, who was dean of Fredericton before his appointment as Bishop of Columbia, the writer says:

Bishop Schofield of Columbia is the youngest Bishop of the church, and he belongs to the thoroughly progressive element. He is very youthful in appearance, and if he happened to be in politics instead of the church he would probably be dubbed "the boy orator" or some such undignified title. Bishop Schofield has a smiling, boyish way with him that makes everybody his friend as soon as he gets to his feet in a debate. There is nothing of the dry-as-dust type in his make-up. When a kind and gently patronizing resolution was brought in at the General Synod concerning the rights and problems of Labor, Bishop Schofield urged that the time had passed when the Christian church could be content with amiable generalities when dealing with such matters. He appealed for sympathetic action that would bring the masses into the Anglican church, and it may be added that had the support of one of the most evangelical of churchmen in wanting these masses in the church."

A SPLENDID SHOWING.

The announcement is made that there was a deficit of only $106 in the big transaction of seed grain carried out by the provincial Department of Agriculture last spring. The total amount expended was $173,804, of which $163,700 has already been returned to the province. The sum of $10,171 is still due, but it amply secured to the province. Hon. Mr. Tweeddale and the officials of his department handled the proposition in a business-like way and are deserving of every credit for the results achieved. That it was a mighty good thing for the province is shown by the fact that the wheat crop this year is the greatest on record, and is estimated to be worth at least $2,000,000. It is no wonder we find officials of the food control department declaring "We've got to take off our hats to New Brunswick."

The members of the Provincial Government, particularly the Minister of Lands and Mines, are to be congratulated on the success of this sale of timber berths. For the first time in the history of the province the berths were sold on a stumpage basis and the result was highly satisfactory. Under the old plan of selling the lands on a mileage basis, the yield to the province amounted to about $3 per thousand feet. Yesterday the berths were offered at an upset price of $5.50 per thousand and the price obtained ranged from that figure to $17.50. The total sales aggregated $70,000, on which a cash deposit of ten per cent was made. The result of the sale proves that the administration of the public domain is now in good hands.

The most cheering war news continues to come from all the battle fronts, and there is every reason to believe that the end of the great war will soon be in sight. The surrender of Bulgaria was a solar plexus blow for the Huns, from the effects of which they are not likely to recover.

The Turks and Austrians are pretty sick of the war, and it will not be a great while before they will be throwing up the sponge. In the meantime the Germans are being steadily driven from French and Belgian territory. There will be no peace talk with the Huns until they are soundly beaten.

The Allied forces seem to have put an end to German frightfulness for the time being. We do not hear of any air raids these days on London or Paris, the long range bombardment of the French capital has ceased, and the German U-boats are seldom heard from. The Huns now are strictly on the defensive and the job evidently demands their undivided attention.

The city of Damascus, generally supposed to be the oldest city in the world, has fallen into the hands of a British force.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

Fish day again? Good cod!

German efficiency is goose-stepping backward better than ever.

Hindenburg seems to have about the same trouble removing his artillery as he has getting away with an alibi.

Kaiser Wilhelm need not despair—after the war he can get big money posing for the movies.

The person who has it does not much care whether it is Spanish influenza or just plain gripe.

Platonic friendship is the blinding gas which prevents a man from seeing his danger until he finds himself walking straight into the trenches of matrimony.

The worst thing about it for the Kaiser is that when the time for peace talk really comes, what he will have to say then will have no more weight than what he has to say now.

Where is the sweet, old-fashioned girl who used to blush at the thought of climbing a fence or crossing a muddy street? Gone, with the sweet old-fashioned man who used to blush when she caught him staring at her.

When the stenog in a suburban Chicago bank emitted a glass-shattering scream, the bank robbers dropped everything and fled. The burglar alarm is all right in its way, but did you ever hear a frightened stenographer scream?

Married at St. John
A very interesting ceremony was performed Thursday afternoon by the Rev. Dr. Hutchinson at the home of A. F. Akerley, 113 Bridge street, St. John when his daughter Mildred, became the wife of Rev. William McKay of Sydney, C. B. The bride who was given away by her father, looked charming in a tailored suit of blue serge with hat to match and lynx fur. She was unattended. After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served. The happy couple will spend the honeymoon visiting American cities, and on their return will reside in Sydney, C. B. Many beautiful presents were received in cut glass, china, etc., testifying to the popularity and esteem in which the bride was held. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. W. E. Springfield and Miss Lou McKiel, of Fredericton.

Inquest at Covered Bridge
The inquest on the body of the late Mrs. Walter Peckham is being held today at Covered Bridge. Mrs. Peckham was found dead lying on her bed on Saturday morning. The coroner is Dr. B. M. Mullin.

MY WHOLE LIFE

was spent in trying to cure an ulcer by using ordinary ointments," writes Mrs. Jeffrey, of 21 French Street, Methuen. "Then I heard of Zam-Buk, used it, and am now completely cured."

Thirty-three years ago the ulcer appeared on my ankle, and gradually spread to my knee. The pain was terrific. For years I could hardly walk and had to remain in the house. For twenty-five years I received doctors' treatment but got only temporary relief.

"Then I heard of some wonderful cures worked by Zam-Buk and commenced using it. The relief I experienced was wonderful. The inflammation was gradually drawn out. The pain was soon ended, and, at last after thirty-three years of misery, I was on the road to recovery. To cut a long story short—perseverance with this wonderful balm resulted in a complete and permanent cure."

Zam-Buk is also unequalled for eczema, ringworm, abscesses, boils, blood-poisoning, burns, scalds, cuts, and all skin injuries. All druggists or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

After The Slackers
From noon to dusk 57 automobiles passed a given street, on the West Side, at New Glasgow, N. S. on Sunday according to the Chronicle of that town, which publishes the number of each car. Doctors' cars were not counted. The Chronicle hopes to publish the names of registrants of cars that appear out next Sunday, if they be not exempted ones. They are called slackers and Bolsheviks by the Chronicle.

Seriously Ill at Providence
On Wednesday Mrs. Whitman Brewer received a telegram that her daughter Vesta, who has been training in the Rhode Island Hospital, at Providence was ill with pneumonia resulting from influenza. Telegrams following reported her as very seriously ill. Her relatives are much alarmed over her condition and her father is leaving tonight for Providence. Miss Brewer has been studying nursing for some time and her three years course would be completed this January.
