GOV. M'CALL TO VISIT HALIFAX

Boston, Mass., Sept. 28.—Governor McCall left here today for Halifax, N. S., where for several days he will be the guest of the Nova Scotian city and Dalhousie University. The invitation from Nova Scotia extended by Lieut. Governor McCallum Grant, of the province, came as a mark of appreciation for the aid furnished by the Governor and people of Massachusetts last winter. Governor McCall will deliver a lecture on government and the duties of citizenship at Dalhousie University on Monday afternoon.

If a girl has a pretty face, no man on earth can tell you what kind of a suit she has on.

TRAINING A HUSBAND IS SOME JOB

What's the Use of a Woman Having a Lawful Wedded Husband if She Can't Boss Him?

(Chicago News.)

"Tis terrible hard work, thrainin' a husband in the way he should go, Mrs. McGee. 'Tis bad enough with the children, but thin you can use a slipper on him. Were ye to thry that wid yere man the brute would like as not give ye a black eye. Now, there's me husband; quiet and soft as he seems to be, he's jist as hard as flint whin he makes up his mind. Wid all his asy ways he's jist as stubborn as a mule. Many's the fight we've had bekae of his obstinacy, an' what bates me intirely is that I've got to do all the fighting, for whin Malachy fights back he doesn't do it by talk, the aggravatin omadhoun; he goes ahead an' does what he's goin' to do widout iver so much as 'by yer lave, ma'am.'

"Now, what is the use av a woman havin' a lawful wedded husband if she can't boss him around once in a while? Do they suppose for an instant that we don't cross our fingers whin we promise to obey them on our weddin' day?"

"Obey!" Mrs. Corrigan straightened up and sniffed her contempt.

"I wouldn't want to thrate Malachy like me Aunt Matty thrated Uncle Ned—although maybe the rayson is that I wouldn't be let to do that. Aunt Matty says I didn't start out right—that husbands have to be taken young if ye want to thrain thin right—but that wasn't the throuble wid me, for I began the thrainin' stunt on me weddin' day. For a while Malachy was obay-dient enough, but after a while he'd pay no attention to me whin I'd bawl him out. I went to Aunt Matty, for I was actin' accordin' to her advice, an' she tould me I must use sterner measures. 'Threaten to lave him,' ses she, 'an that'll bring him to his senses. But whin I did, what does me man do, but takes hould av me hand, kisses me and says, 'Thank the Lord.' Thin I makes use av me aunt's thrick, which she only uses as a last raysort. I thried high-strikes on him, but as I lay rowlin' around the flure and hollerin' to bate the band, Malachy draws a can of water an' throws it in me face. I was nearly strangled, but I gets up an' makes up me mind I'd use the only way be whin a woman can rule her husband."

"What way is that, Mrs. Corrigan?" asked Mrs. McGee, "I might thry it on Dinny."

"Ye've been doin' it all yer 'jarried life—the only way to git along comfortably wid yer husband is to let him have his own way."

AMIENS COMES TO LIFE AGAIN

With the British Army at the Front in France, Sept. 28—Once more little children roll their hoops on the sidewalks in Amiens; trains arrive in the great railway station; some of the shops are open and there is animation in the streets lined with ruins. White curtains flutter from broken windows like shrouds from open graves. There are 5,000 or 6,000 persons in the city.

On Sunday a high mass of thanksgiving was celebrated, the Bishop officiating. Eight Australian buglers blew the glad notes of military calls. Yesterday the bishop of Amiens showed his appreciation of the British army's pushing of the enemy to a safe distance from the city by naming Sir Henry Rawlinson the savior of Picardy.

On Sunday a gust of wind blew in one of the tall windows of the cathedral during mass. It will be boarded up temporarily, the minister of fine arts has decided.

The miraculous statue of the Virgin, formerly an object of pilgrimage to Albert, near where it was found by a shepherd in the eleventh century, has been placed in Amiens cathedral.

GREAT BRITAIN SENDS A REPLY

London, Sept. 28.—Great Britain has replied to the Bulgarian request for an armistice. The reply, it is stated, is fully covered by the answer given by the commander of the Allied army on the Macedonian front. By this reply it is perfectly well defined that no military operations can be suspended.

Mrs. O'Hevens says there ain't no luxuries; anything you can lay hands on is a necessity.

STANDARDS AS UNDERSTOOD

(New York Sun)

When Mr. Pickwick met Count Smorltork he remarked: "The word politics, sir, comprises, in itself, a difficult study of no inconsiderable magnitude." The same reflection might be made upon the various meanings of the word "standards" as understood throughout the world today.

Far from being things fixed by which estimates of relative value are to be calculated so-called "standards" are seen to shift overnight, while you look at them, in the twinkling of an eye, as St. Paul said of the natural body on the day of resurrection. The world has gone on believing in certain things, manifestations, phenomena, as settled facts, which could be counted on as definitely established in history, science and the experience of mankind. But no longer, no more!

No more. We read in one morning's news these bewildering words: Detroit, Sept. 10—No more Ford passenger cars will be built. The big Ford plant will devote its facilities entirely to Government work from this time forward, it was announced today.

No more Ford cars? No more sunshine, no more moonrise, no certainty of the North Star, or of Vega, or Venus, no certain law of gravitation, no fall of running water, no instinct for self-preservation, no surety that fire will burn or water quench, no attraction between the sexes, no sprouting of the seed in the dark underground, no bursting open of the bud, no fall of the leaf, no multiplication table, no Ten Commandments, no foundations of belief at all—nothing but quicksands and doubt and detritus?

No more Ford cars? No Death—no Taxes—ah, part of it is a dream after all.

THE BRITISH CASUALTIES.

London, Sept. 28.—British army casualties for the week ending today, as announced by the War Office, follow:

Officers—Killed or died of wounds, 432; wounded or missing, 904.
Men—Killed or died of wounds, 3,936; wounded or missing, 19,757.

MINARD'S "KING OF PAIN" LINIMENT

The old reliable remedy for rheumatism, neuralgia, sore throat and sprains.

Best Liniment Made

Mr. A. E. LAUNDY, EDMONTON, writes:—"I fell from a building and received what the doctor called a very bad sprained ankle, and told me I must not walk on it for three weeks. I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and in six days I was out to work again. I think it the best Liniment made."

Minard's Liniment always gives satisfaction. For any ache or pain. It gives instant relief.

Kitchener was right

when he said—

"Either the Civilian population must go short of many things to which it is accustomed in times of peace or our armies must go short of munitions and other things indispensable to them."

NOW, the only way we can possibly live up to that obligation is by going without in order that our soldiers may have. For the money we waste is not money at all—it is equipment, clothing, shot and shell that are urgently needed in France.

By denying ourselves, therefore, we enable Canada to procure to the fullest extent the materials and labor which she and our Allies need for the successful prosecution of the war.

What happens when we fail to save?

A pull on labor by the Government in one direction and a pull on labor by the people in the opposite direction. Hundreds of millions of dollars are of no use to the country if goods and services can be secured only to the extent of eighty millions of dollars. So we must do everything in our power to release both goods and labor for the purposes for which Canada needs them.

WHETHER it be food, coal, wool, steel, leather, labor or transportation, the result in all cases is the same. Whoever competes with the nation by freely satisfying his own desires, selfishly appropriates to his own use that which is so urgently required for our fighting men in France.

For the sake of your country and the boys "over there," spend cautiously. Think of what Lord Kitchener has said, and ask yourself first, "Is this something I really need or can I do without it?"
