

PIMPLES AND RUNNING SORES

Would Hold Head Down Face
Was Such a Sight.

Pimples are caused by the blood being out of order. These festering and running sores appear on the chin and other parts of the body, and although they are not a dangerous trouble they are very unsightly to both you and your friends.

There is only one way to get rid of this obnoxious skin trouble, and this is by giving the blood a thorough cleansing by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

This sterling remedy has been on the market for over 40 years, during which time we have received thousands of testimonials as to its curative powers over all skin diseases.

Mrs. Victor G. Fry, North Battleford, Sask., writes: "I used Burdock Blood Bitters when I was about eighteen. I was so bad with pimples and running sores, that when I went down town, I would hold my head down when I would see anyone coming, my face was such a sight. I got two bottles, and my face began to clear, so I kept on until I had a beautiful complexion. I have recommended it to everyone who is in a run-down condition, as it builds up the blood, and when the blood is all the face is clear."

Eighty Thousand Huns Casualties

Paris, June 18—Eighty thousand Germans were killed, wounded or made prisoner during the offensive between Montdidier and Noyon, Captain Andre Tardieu, who accompanied Premier Clemenceau to the front on Sunday, told Marcel Butin, editor of the Echo de Paris, upon his return to Paris. "This is a figure which should make even Ludendorff reflect," he said. "One cannot insist enough upon the exceptional importance of the results obtained by the counter-attacks of divisions under general Mangin against the right flank of General von Hutier's armies," he continued.

"This magnificent operation has nailed the enemy to the spot and completely checked the advance toward Compeigne. German officers who were made prisoner do not attempt to hide their chagrin at their inability to reach Compeigne, which they admit was their objective." Premier Clemenceau relieved himself by remarking "I am completely satisfied".

SOCIETY WILL DISCOURAGE WAR TIME BELLY-ACHING

A New Organization the Object of Which Is to Can the Belly-Ache---No Dues, No Offices and no Annual Banquet---Mouths Of Sobbers Must Be Stopped --- Some Things Worth Having in Mind All the Time

(The Literary Digest)

There is a new antisociety on the lists. Perhaps you are already a member. If not, you will be interested in its propaganda. It is called the Antibellyacher Society. Vulgar? well, only in parenthesis. It's good dictionary English. See the New Standard for verification:

Bellyache (vulgar.) To act the sycophant; also, to fret, as with discontent; complain.

Anyway, it's a good, forceful Americanism.

The membership card of the society states that it has "no dues, no offices, no annual banquet," and that its object is "to discourage war-time bellyaching."

Here are the sentiments to which the members subscribe:

I avow the belief:

That even I could not run this war and please everybody;

That war must necessarily interfere with some peaceful occupations and pursuits;

That all men should help as much as possible, and complain as little as possible—that they should "can the bellyache."

Wherefore:

I hereby join the Antibellyache Society, and thus becoming an A. B. (Antibellyacher), I pledge myself to refrain (so far as possible) from and to discourage bellyaching for the term of the war; to get new members whenever possible; to impose on myself a fine, payable to the American Red Cross, for each bellyache of which I may be guilty.

That's all, except that in the same connection Harvey Whipple, in an editorial in Concrete for May, thus calls to the American people.

Let's not forget that we're in this thing in self-defense.

There are a few people who think this war isn't worth while, and most of them are keeping their mouths discreetly shut. But there are a host of flyspeckers, calamityhowlers, and wo-betiders that are barnacles of the Ship of State. At heart most of them are loyal, good American citizens, but their tongues are loose. If you think this war is worth while, then join in the movement to stop the mouths of those sobbers.

Let's "can" the bellyache.

Our sympathy goes out to the man whose business has been hit a hard wallop by this war. We are sorry for the man who can't get cars; can't borrow money; can't ship goods, or can't make them. We are sincerely sorry to see a man suffer, even when his suffering may be necessary to further the chief business in which we are all engaged—the business of winning the war.

Let's "can" the bellyache.

If our public servants are sometimes wrong, if they misjudge Conditions, men, measures, then those who suffer unjustly—while the nation trains off its fat and girds itself for war—let those with a common grievance get together; do some constructive thinking and planning and show our public servants, not with sobs and whines, but constructively, how things should be done. Let's cut out the fault-finding.

"Can" the bellyache.

There are four things worth having in mind all the time:

1. The seriousness of the war—the necessity that it be prosecuted as the chief activity of the nation, at the cost of individual needs and preferences.

2. The fallibility of all men, and therefore all public servants; the unescapable fact that no man or body of men could run even a little war and please everybody—and this war is the biggest war the world has ever seen.

3. The fact that our Government recognizes the necessity that business proceed so that the difference between income and outgo shall be as great as possible on the credit side—so that there may be profits and savings out of which to pay for the war.

4. The fact that in times like these the individuals of small consequence; the private need or preference is swallowed up in the public necessity—to the end that private needs and preferences and individual freedom may eventually survive.

We give up individualism to the end that we shall ultimately retain it. We shall not dare to clutch all our private wants or they must be torn from us. We give them up so that we may gratify them tomorrow.

We grasp the hand of the man whose business goes to ballyhoo—we are sorry, but this is war. It is inevitable that the activities of peace shall be disarranged. Let us all help by silence and reproach to "can" the bellyache.

Let's organize, as we must, to criticize constructively; do the best we can but mostly let's drive the damn machine of war until our enemies had enough. Let's "can" the bellyache, stop the footless chatter of the street, the cheap mouthings of the malcontents. We are not over-run by the Hun. Our country is not devastated. Its people are not outraged nor its homes made desolate. The only sobs our country has an ear for are the sobs of those whose homes have seen the war come to their homes, to demand the supreme sacrifice.

The lady stood at the gate with a shotgun resting carelessly over her arm. In the garden a small man was bending over a hoe and was war gardening as though his life depended upon it.

The passerby asked who the man might be.

"My husband!" snapped the lady. "He always wants to make a garden. Then he works in it about an hour, and leaves all the rest of the work for me to do. But this time he is going to keep at it until he gets it done."

Somehow we find it hard to be properly excited over the news that some college or other has won the intercollegiate tennis championship.
