Lemon Juice
For Freckles

Girls! Make beauty lotion at home for a few cents. Try it!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

A German submarine is still sneaking along the American coast, watching for an opportunity to do some mischief. On Saturday it sank three barges off Cape Cod and dropped some shells on the mainland.

The German long range guns which have been bombarding Paris off and on for some weeks, seem to have been put out of business.

A FRENCH DOG WHICH DISPLAYED GREAT INTELLIGENCE

Verdun Belle Adopted a Young Marine for a Master and Followed Him to the Edge of the Battle Around Chateau-Thierry--Strayed From Him But Afterwards Found Him in the Hospital

"This," says the Stars and Stripes the daily newspaper published in France by the American Expeditionary Force, "is the story of Verdun Belle, a trench dog who adopted a young leatherneck, of how she followed him to the edge of the battle around Chateau Thierry, and was waiting for him when they carried him out. It is a true story."

"Belle is a setter bitch," the Stars and Stripes goes on, shabby white, with great splotches of chocolate brown in her coat. Her ears are brown and silken. Her ancestry is dubious. She is undersize and would not stand a chance among the haughtier breeds they show in splendor at Madison Square Garden back home. But the marines think there never was a dog like her."

The story tells how Belle bobbed up out of nowhere in a sector near Verdun, singled out a young private of marines and attached herself to him. "Bell was as used to war as the most weather beaten polli. The tremble of the ground did not disturb her and the whining whirr of the shells overhead only made her twitch and wrinkle her nose in her sleep. She was trench broken. You could have put a plate of savory pork chops on the parapet and nobody would have induced her to go after them."

Belle's Puppies

She actually learned to race for the spot where an improvised gas mask contrived by her master could be put over her nose whenever the signal warning of a gas attack was sounded.

Before long Belle became the mother of nine brown and white puppies. They had hardly opened their eyes before the marines' regiment got orders to "hike" for another sector. Some might have thought the dog and her pups would be left behind, but this never occurred to her master. He commandeered a market basket somewhere, put the pups into it and let Verdun Belle trot behind.

In spite of the fact that the amount of equipment which each marine carries on the march is supposed to be all that a man can possibly carry this marine somehow found strength to carry the extra weight of the basket. Forty miles he carried his burden along the parched French highway. But then came an order to march even further and reluctantly the marine was forced to give up the basket. Mournfully he killed four of the puppies, but the other three he slipped into his shirt front.

"Then he trudged on his way, carrying these three, pouched in forest green, as a kangaroo carries its young while the mother dog trotted trustingly behind."

Belle is Lost

Another of the pups died on the long march, and somewhere in the tremendous procession of marching men and the endless lines of trucks and wagons Belle herself got lost. The marine was at his wits end to keep the two puppies alive. Finally he hailed the crew of an ambulance passing back from the front, turned the pups over to them and disappeared with his comrades. The ambulance men were unable to induce the pups to eat canned beef and they had no fresh milk. They chased a couple of cows vainly.

"Next morning the problem was still unsolved. But it was solved that evening."

"For a fresh contingent of marines trooped by the farm and in their wake—tired, anxious, but undiscouraged—was Verdun Belle. Ten kilometers back, two days before, she had lost her master, and until she could find him again she evidently had thought that any marine was better than none."

"The troops did not halt at the farm but Belle did. At the gates she stopped dead in her tracks, drew in her lolling tongue, sniffed inquiringly the evening air and like a flash—a white streak along the drive—she raced to the distant tree where, on a pile of discarded dressings in the shade, the pups were sleeping."

"All the corps men stopped work and marvelled. It was such a family reunion as warms the heart. For the worried mess sergeant it was a great relief. For the pups it was a mess call, clear and unmistakable."

Bell Finds Her Master

So with only one worry left in her mind Verdun Belle settled down with her puppies at this field hospital. In a day or two the wounded began coming in, a steady stream. Always a mistress of the art of keeping out from under foot, very quietly Belle hung around and investigated each ambulance that turned in from the main road and backed up with its load of pain.

"Then one evening they lifted out a young marine, listless in the half stupor of shell shock. To the busy workers he was just case number such and such, but there was no need to tell any one who saw the wild jubilation of the dog that Verdun Belle had found her own."

"The first consciousness he had of his new surroundings was the feel of her rough pink tongue licking the dust from his face. And those who passed that way last Sunday found two cots shoved together in the kindly shade of a spreading tree. On one the mother dog lay contented with her puppies. Fast asleep on the other, his arm thrown out so that one grimy hand could clutch one silken ear, lay the young marine."

It perplexed some of the hospital workers to know what could be done when the time came to send the marine on to the base hospital. "But they knew in their hearts the could safely leave the answer to some one else. They could leave it to Verdun Belle."

NO STRIKE AT PRESENT TIME

Montreal, July 22.—There will be no general strike of railway shopmen in Canada, at least not at the present time. The intervention of the railway department of the American Federation of Labor, announced last week, following the action of the adoption by the railways of the McAdoo schedule with amendments, was sufficient to prevent the sending out of a strike call to railway shopmen throughout Canada.

At the request of the Food Committee, the retail fish dealers are offering whole fish for ten cents a pound, or thereabouts, provided orders are sent in early.

See their advertisements.

They are also meeting our request in offering stew meat and the cheaper cuts of meat at reduced prices.

Will the citizens meet the dealers and increase their use of these nutritious foods?
