GEM THEATRE

FRIDAY-SATURDAY
OF THIS WEEK

Included in the cast are EDITH JOHNSON, a fine type of a daring heroine, and JOE RYAN the Shoestring of "The Fighting Trail."

The NORTH-WEST
MOUNTED POLICE also play a prominent part in this serial.

You remember our previous outdoor serials
—"The Red Ace" and
"Liberty." The "Fight for Millions" exceeds these in story, settings and daredevil stunts.

EX-KAISER CAN BE EXTRADITED

Paris, Nov. 28. — William Hohenzollern can be extradited, in the opinion of Professor Barthelomy of the Paris law faculty, who explains that his guiding principle is that when there is an apparent conflict between law and common sense the solution is always found by following the latter.

The theory that a political crime is a crime inspired by purely political methods, the professor declared, has long been abandoned.

The atrocities ordered by former Emperor William, the professor continues, are condemned even in a state of war by international law, and constitute common law crimes. To maintain that they are not because the object for which they were committed was politics, he argues, an absurdity.

Even the girl with a new fur coat knows a cold day when it comes.

DR. BELAND AT OTTAWA

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—Hon. Dr. Beland, M. P. for Beauce, was warmly greeted here tonight on his first visit to the capital in nearly five years. The mayors of Ottawa and Hull and other officials were at the station to welcome Dr. Beland.

U. S. SOLDIERS DIFFERENT FROM ENGLISH TOMMIES

"Smile, Damn You!" Was the Greeting of a Whitechapel Youngster---An English Author Tells of the Impression Made in England by Yankee Soldiers.

(Boston Record)
A long line of khaki-clad soldiers swung down London streets. Eyes front, lips set, grim visaged, the marching column passed with never a look at the crowds that cheered them on their way. A tense earnestness, born of the determination to light Freedom's torch throughout the world was mirrored in every face, from leaders to men.

Suddenly a little Whitechapel coster girl threw herself fairly in front of the resounding feet, and "Smile, damn you! Smile!" she cried.

This, Roger Blathwayt, English author and lecturer, who is visiting Boston this week, told a Record reporter is England's impression of the Yankee soldier. "Smile, damn you! Smile."

"So different from the English Tommy," declares Mr. Blathwayt. "When our boys went off to the trenches they went with a smile and a song on their lips. When they went over the top they went with a smile and an oath."

"When the American came, all England expected to see him the same.
Instead, the little coster girl had to tell him to smile."

And then he uttered a statement which seemed almost heresy to American ears.

"I do not agree with those who say that America is more frivolous than England. These young men of America were taking themselves very seriously. I would not say too seriously, for this war cannot be taken too seriously, though it is over now. But they were not gay like our English youth —they seemed more impressed with their importance."

Now, as he carefully explained, Mr.
Roger Blathwayt is an author not a tradesman, and since commercial and financial interests are very far removed from his world, it is the prophecy of an outsider when he says that he believes England and America will indulge in some interesting business rivalry after affairs are settled once more.

"It would be good for us both," he says. "Competition always helps out an industry, and it is probable that England and America will hold the balance of power in the business world of tomorrow."

"But England and America have already done each other some good in this war. We are very proud of the American soldier and the English people have taken him right to their hearts. Your officers are modest and brave and have taught our boys many things. I mean especially about women."

"They have shown England what young men can be brought up as Puritan boys who know how to treat women as they ought to be treated.
Their presence in England has helped to raise the tone of a certain type of women. Their presence has served to stiffen up the English Tommy."

"On the other hand your boys are learning from ours a sense of the continuity of history, the value of history, and are beginning to realize that life has a background. Every little church out on the country roads has a history and a story."

"I took a group of boys into Westminster Abbey just before I came over here to America and told them 'This is where William the Conqueror was crowned in 1066' and they were amazed to think that the things they had read about had actually happened where they stood.

"These lessons learned by both English and American, are going to be of inestimable value to both of us. We might never have learned of them without the war."

A Suggestion Offered A citizen who is taking the interest of the city to heart, suggests that someone who has the ability offer to succor the Victoria Hospital flag. The halyards of the flag have slipped off the pulley and have been twisted. As the hospital staff is unable to cope with the difficulty it has been suggested that some gallant knight succor the distressed by helping out the flag.
