ENGLISH GIRLS THREATEN TO GO HATLESS

London, June 28—Fashion routed by economy.

Who ever heard of such a thing?

It's about to happen in England, for women are up in arms against the increasing cost of millinery, and are threatening to go without hats altogether.

Particularly is this true of those who are employed in offices, shops, etc. It's getting so a working girl can't afford to buy a hat any more, and when she does it's hardly fit to wear.

Said a girl stenographer:—"It's particularly hard on the girl who has to keep the family going now that her brothers have gone to war. But we dress as well as we can for our own self-respect. Only a girl knows the difference in the moral and mental outlook brought about by wearing silk stockings.

"Few girls I know can buy hats these days. It takes all they can make to buy shoes, underwear, frocks and other clothes. The prices of everything have doubled. What can a girl

MILLIONAIRE
FANCY TIP

(Boston Record)

All tipping records were broken a few nights ago at the Brunswick, when an unknown millionaire presented one of the waiters with a check for $1000 for his attention and service.

Every waiter in Boston on hearing the news immediately applied for a berth in the Hotel Brunswick dining room. There are now about 1947 waiters on the waiting list.

W. Shearn, a captain of waiters at the Brunswick, was serving a party of four the other night, and he must have been giving satisfactory service for one of the party called him aside and handed him a slip of paper, saying, "Here's a little something for yourself."

After Shearn recovered from his faint, he again looked at the paper and the figures still read "$1000". The poor but honest waiter thought it all a joke until he went to a bank the next morning and received $1000 in good American money for the slip of paper.

Shearn, with Mrs. Shearn, who is a checker at the Brunswick, are now touring the Atlantic summer resorts, but promise to again return to the scene of generosity when the $1000 is spent.

There are many things we must have regardless of price, and I don't see why we should wear hats except that it's a habit.

ALLIED TROOPS PENETRATE ENEMY POSITIONS IN WEST

The British troops in Flanders and the French forces further south apparently have anticipated the proposed German drive toward the English channel ports or Paris and struck first.

Although slight details of the maneuvers thus far have been revealed, the Allied troops caught the enemy unawares at salient points, and, driving swiftly forward, took territory which would have been of considerable value as the starting points of enemy attacks. In addition, a comparatively large number of prisoners and machine guns were left in the hands of the Allied troops.

The attack of the British was delivered about midway between Hazebrouck and Bethune on a front of nearly three and a half miles over territory which the Germans recently have been deluging with shells. Altogether the attack was productive of an average gain of ground to nearly a mile and included the taking of several small hamlets. It is not improbable that the Germans in a proposed offensive in this region had set their hearts on the capture of St. Omer and the railway line running then to Calais and Dunkirk.

The stroke of the French troops was over a still greater front—four and a half miles—and they at points also penetrated enemy positions to a good depth, at some points a mile and a quarter.

The evident intention was further to block the gateway to Paris through the Villers-Cotterets region.

Although the points of attack were separated by about 100 miles, the maneuvers seemingly had been well considered by General Foch the Allied commander-in-chief, where they were carried out synchronously. The strategy of the double stroke is apparent when it is realized that a successful German thrust where the British struck would have menaced the channel ports or a similar movement in the south would have placed the French capital in jeopardy.

The Berlin official communication issued Friday evening takes note of the Allied thrusts by declaring that the Germans were busily engaged in attempts to repulse them.

That the Allied forces are not to be caught napping by the Germans is indicated by the intensive aerial operations that are in progress and behind the battle line. A British official communication says that in air fighting Thursday twenty-nine enemy airplanes were accounted for, twenty of them having been destroyed and others forced to descend out of the control of their pilots. Fourteen machines of the British failed to return to their posts.

There is considerable fighting between the Austrians and the Italians in the mountain regions of the Italian theatre, but quiet prevails on the Piave river, across which the enemy was driven by the Italians early in the week.

Women Everywhere
Use Lemon Juice
To Beautify Skin

The beauty lotion which is becoming whole quarter pint of it doesn't cost so popular throughout the country is easily prepared by anyone, and any more than a small jar of the common, ordinary cold creams.

Add the juice of two fresh lemons to three ounces of orchard white and shake well in a bottle. Strain the lemon juice two or three times through a fine cloth so no pulp gets into the lotion, then it will keep fresh for months. Regardless of what price you pay or how highly advertised, there is nothing else really more meritorious in beautifying, softening and clearing the skin. As a tan and blemish remover, also to remove oiliness and sallowness, lemon juice has no rival. Massage it into the face, neck, and arms once or twice each day, and just see if it doesn't bring out the roses and hidden beauty!

Lemons have always been used to bleach the skin, but pure lemon juice is too highly acid, therefore should never be used except in this manner.

If properly prepared, this sweetly fragrant lotion will speak for itself. Ounces of orchard white at very little. Any drug store will supply the three cost, and the grocer will supply the lemons.

An Experienced Guide

Apropos of a widow who, dying, requested to be buried near her five husbands, Booth Tarkington said:

"It must have been this widow that they tell the story about.

"According to the story a widow and her latest capture were advancing up the aisle of a flower-laden church to the music of the wedding march, when every light—every single light in the place—went out.

Mr. Tarkington paused with an awed look.

"And what happened?" asked the listener.

"They kept right on," said Mr. Tarkington. "The widow knew the way."

On the completion of its twenty-third year, the Navy League makes an earnest appeal to the patriotic people of the Dominion for Financial Support for its Propagandist and Educational Activities.

The Navy League has devoted itself during the past 23 years to the education of the democracies of Great Britain and her Overseas Dominions and dependencies upon

THE SUPREME IMPORTANCE OF SEA POWER AS THE GUARDIAN OF OUR LIBERTIES

Branches of the League flourish in all parts of the Empire. Fredericton is now urged to get into line in this great association and help to boom its activities.

The Navy Leagues' efforts during the war will be devoted to the following objects:

I. The Education of Public Opinion so that the command of the sea by the British fleet may be regarded as the first consideration of National Policy.

II. The Prevention of a Premature Peace, which would be disastrous in its consequences to the future welfare of the world.

III. The Tightening of the Blockade of the Enemy.

IV. The demand that the Enemy Shall Render Compensation for all merchant shipping destroyed by submarines and mines in violation of the Law of Nations.

V. The Promotion of the Teaching of the Use of Sea Power in all the schools.

VI. The Establishment of a Scheme of National Sea Training for Boys which will secure the elimination of aliens from merchant service.

You help in the work on July 3rd by joining the Fredericton Branch of the Navy League.

On July 3 a strong campaign will be in progress in this city to secure 1,000 members for the Fredericton Branch of the Navy League of Canada.
