FOR BACKYARD GARDENERS.

How the Soil May Be Put in Proper Condition—Good Drainage is Very Essential.

(By A. G. Turney, Provincial Horticulturist.)

The essentials for successful production of vegetables in the small home garden are the same as those required in larger or market gardening operations, with the important exception, however, that more particular attention must be given to intensive culture and the arrangement and order of planting of the different crops, so as to obtain the maximum yield from the limited area under cultivation.

SOIL.—Some special crops, such as celery and melons, require particular types of soil for the attainment of their highest development. Most vegetables however, may be successfully grown on many different types of soil. It is fortunate that such is the case, for it makes possible the production of vegetables for home use in almost every locality where there is any soil at all suitable for agricultural purposes. Good results may be obtained on any fairly fertile soil, but sandy and clay loams enriched with manure are ideal. Light sand with plenty of manure will give good results and produce earlier crops. A heavy clay soil is not desirable because if it is worked when too wet it will bake badly and form clods. Lime at the rate of 3-4 to one pound to every ten square feet in the garden will greatly improve such a soil; and also the addition of a heavy dressing of well rotted stable manure to be well mixed through the first foot of soil.

WATER SUPPLY AND DRAINAGE.—In this province nature has provided sufficient water throughout the growing season to take into solution the plant food of the soil for absorption by the fine root hairs of the plants. The problem is not one of irrigation, (although in hot or dry weather water may be applied with considerable benefit), but one of drainage. Good drainage is essential and after it is assured the more level the ground is the more convenient for working.

AIR DRAINAGE.—It should be borne in mind that frost is less likely to injure vegetables growing on high ground than those growing in low places or valleys or cups into which the cold air, which is heavier than warm air, generally settles.

SUNLIGHT.—No amount of fertilizer, watering or cultivation will take the place of sunlight. In planning the garden this factor must be recognized and consideration given to the time per day that any part of the garden is shadowed by fences, buildings, trees and shrubs. To be successful most of the garden must receive a daily average of, at least five hours of sunlight. Foliage crops, such as lettuce and spinach, will stand more shadow, but even these require from two to three hours of sunshine per day. Such plants as the tomato and pepper and those which have fruits to ripen should be placed in the sunniest spot.

With many small home gardens there is little or no opportunity for choosing location and exposure, the exact position of the garden being already determined by the destruction of buildings, size of lot, etc. In such a case the owner must plan to make the best use of its adaptations by studying them in their relation to the requirements of the different crops, and growing only those which offer the best chance of success. Where, however, a certain amount of choice may be exercised, the location and exposure of the garden should be based on the factors dealt with above.

CULTIVATION.—Good cultivation is essential to success, and it will be dealt with in subsequent articles on the preparation of the soil and cultural directions for each crop.

GOOD SEED OF RIGHT VARIETIES.—Seed should be ordered or obtained well in advance of the actual dates for sowing. One is more likely to get good seed by ordering early. Some seeds lose their vitality after a year or two, and old seed as a rule should not be relied upon. Buy seeds put up by a reliable seed house and see that all packets of seed are stamped.

OLD FOLKS' COUGHS PERMANENTLY CURED

The Public is Loud in Its Praise of the Modern Direct Breathing Cure.

Elderly people take cold easily. Unlike young folks, they recover slowly, if ever. This is why so many people past middle life die of pneumonia. Even though pneumonia does not develop and kill, coughs certainly weaken all elderly people.

Cough syrups seldom do much good because they upset digestion. Any druggist or doctor knows that a much more effective treatment is "CATARRHOZONE," which heals and soothes the irritated surfaces of the throat.

In using Catarrhozone you do not take medicine into the stomach—you simply breathe into the throat, nose and lungs rich piney balsamic vapor, so full of healing power, that colds, catarrh and bronchitis disappear almost instantly.

"At sixty-eight years of age I can testify that I am never troubled with coughs or colds," writes J. E. Pilgrim, of Kingston. They sued to be the bane of my life, and that was before I used Catarrhozone, which was recommended to me by C. L. Prouse, druggist. To use Catarrhozone is just like being in an immense pine woods. The balsamic vapor of Catarrhozone is like a tonic, it is so stimulating to the breathing organs, so soothing to sore spots, so full of power to drive out colds and congestion. I will always use and recommend Catarrhozone as a preventive and cure for coughs, colds, bronchitis, throat irritation and catarrh.

THE DASTARDLY HUN.

News of a recent date from the western front is to the effect that a young British soldier found a piano in one of the houses of a village taken by his company. He was about to play the instrument when an officer called for an examination before the music started. It was well, for if the soldier had struck one of a half-dozen keys a vast mine would have been exploded underneath the British.

ed 1918, and that seeds bought in larger quantities are of 1917 production. Do not put your faith in new varieties for which great things are so attractively claimed by some seed firms—but select varieties recommended by local growers because of their proved worth and suitability for local conditions.
