HUNTING ENEMY SUBS BY AIRSHIP IS GOOD SPORT

London Times Writer Tells How It is Done--Ship Discovered U-Boat Lying in the Bottom of Shallow Water--Summoned a Destroyer and Trawler by Wireless---Sub was Trapped and Blown up.

London, July 30—(British Wireless Service) A sea sport which has arisen out of the war—hunting German submarines by airship—is described in The Times. The writer's story concludes with telling how the crew of the U. boat apparently preferred death to being captured.

One of the crew of an airship spotted a submarine lying on the bed of the ocean in fairly shallow water.

"The wireless sparked," reads the account of the Times, "and soon away on the horizon there appeared a little destroyer, followed far astern by four squat trawlers, all racing toward the spot above which the airship cruised around."

"The destroyer came up first, of course, and it was not long before, guided by wireless instructions, her guns were trained in readiness to greet the unsuspecting U. boat should it bob to the surface. It seemed ages to the impatient crew before the trawlers arrived, but things moved rapidly once they were at the scene of action, for they knew their job of old.

"Working in pairs they approached their victim from opposite directions steaming toward each other. Between each pair a strong 'sweep' was stretched and allowed to hang in a huge loop that it might traverse the seabed. The vessels met and crossed each others tracks immediately above the doomed craft. The 'sweeps' of either pair engaged the U. boat fore and aft simultaneously and held her in a gigantic cradle."

"Thus far the German boat had shown no signs of alarm although those with her must have heard the churning of the trawlers' screws. Now she suddenly seemed to awake to the menace that threatened her." The article goes on to describe the fate of the submarine. "She wriggled and squirmed about in a frantic endeavor to escape but it was useless. Not a loophole was there to be found, and at length, realizing the helplessness of her plight, she ceased to struggle. This fact was duly wirelessly by those on board the airship to the destroyer below. Trapped securely, the enemy vessel could still rise to the surface did she so desire, and to give her an opportunity to do so, the British craft now waited for several minutes. She preferred to lie still; and so at a flagged signal from the destroyer the starboard foremost trawler and the port aft one attached a tin of high explosives to each of the 'cradle wires' and allowed it to slide downwards until it rested upon the U. boat's hull. Then those in the airship flagged a signal and upon the two trawlers two firing keys were pressed.

"Followed then the uprising of a geyser of water, and when the troubled ocean became calm, of the submarine there was no trace other than an extensive patch of oil floating upon the surface of the sea."

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

SEASONABLE COMBINATIONS.

Peas, Old English Style.

One cup of shelled peas, one sprig of mint, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter. Place peas in boiling water, as little as possible. Do not cover, shake often. Cook mint with peas. Remove mint when peas are done, then season with salt, sugar and butter. Serve with rice croquettes.

Peas and Baked Potatoes.

One cup cooked peas, six baked potatoes, six teaspoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of cream. Take new potatoes of about the same size, scrape off skin, rub over with butter or oil. Bake in brisk oven. When done, hollow out cavity. Season cooked peas with salt, cream and butter and stuff the baked potatoes.

Peas and Carrots Glaced.

One cup of fresh cooked peas, six carrots boiled tender, six teaspoonfuls of sugar, six teaspoonfuls butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt. Scrape and cook six large carrots. When done, hollow out in the shape of a canoe. Fill with cooked peas. Melt the butter; place carrots in casserole, pour melted butter over peas and carrots, sprinkle with sugar; place in the oven long enough to glaze.

String Beans with Onions.

One cup of string beans, three onions, medium size; three tablespoonfuls butter or substitute, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon paprika, one-quarter cup of cream.

String the beans carefully; put to cook in slightly salted water; when tender, drain.

Peel and cut onions fine, place butter in frying pan; when melted add onion; cook slowly until tender; mix with beans, pour in cream, boil two minutes and serve hot.

Jellied Beets.

Five small beets, five tablespoonfuls sugar, one lemon (juice only), four tablespoonfuls of cornstarch or minute tapioca, one-half cup of boiling water, stir in sugar. Moisten cornstarch in cold water and beat smooth. Pour into boiling water, cook until smooth. Fill each cup and let cool.

STRING BEANS IN SALAD.

String the beans and boil them whole; when tender and they have become cold, slice them lengthwise, cutting each bean into four long slices; place them neatly, the slices all lying in one direction crosswise on a platter. Season them an hour or two before serving with a marinade of a little pepper, salt and vinegar, two or three teaspoonfuls to one teaspoonful of oil, just before serving; drain from any of them any drops they may have collected and carefully mix them with French dressing. They make a delicious salad.
