GREAT BRITAIN'S WORK.

The magnitude of Britain's world-wide war effort was described tersely and luminously by Lord Curzon in a speech at Gray's Inn Hall:

"We were fighting seven distinct campaigns ourselves—in France and Flanders, Italy, Salonika, Palestine, Mesopotamia, Persia and Egypt. And thousands of our men had shed their blood for the defence and emancipation of other lands. We had proved ourselves to be the knights-errant of civilization. We had been the feeder, the clothier, the baker, the armorer, and the universal provider of the Allies and without our aid the superb effort could not have been put forward by France. We carried over 50 per cent. of the coal by which the furnaces and forges, the railways, and the arsenals of France were fed, and 60 per cent. of the cereals which kept her army and people and we had one million tons of shipping in the service of France at that moment. We also had half a million tons of shipping in the service of Italy and we had carried small arms, ammunition, machine guns, blankets, socks, wool, cotton and jute, the latter to clothe the soldiers of France and her people. We had sent France's entire supply of frozen meat and petrol to Salonika.

"What we have done for France we have done for all the Allies. Since the war we have carried twenty-four million tons of stores for the Allies, and the total value of our shipping contracts for them was seventeen millions sterling. Northampton, Kettering and Leicester had provided the footwear for the Allies, and had turned out altogether sixty million boots. We had supplied 2,000,000 respirators to the Italian army to enable them to breathe the air of victory in the forthcoming twelve months. We had dislocated our trade, reduced our own consumption, rationed our coal and sold or pledged our British securities and incurred losses in this respect in many parts of the world.

"We were sometimes reproached for the number of men kept in this country; but they were carrying out invaluable and necessary service to the Allies. At present there are 260,000 men in this country engaged exclusively in the industrial service of the Allies and 375,000 digging coal. One million men were doing industrial work for the Admiralty and one and a half million men were engaged in munition work not for us alone, but for the Allies as well. When they contemplated these services it was remarkable that our armies were so large. Our effort was sufficiently great to justify us in asking that it should be made known both to our own people and to our Allies."

There is no doubt that Great Britain's entrance into the war saved the world and civilization. But for Great Britain and her navy the Hun would have crushed continental Europe under his heel, despite the valor of France, and would have organized his power for world domination. It has cost a lot of money to down the Hun, but it has been money well spent.

Boston Post: When we think of all the sorrow, all the misery and all the wanton and brutal destruction the last four years have seen, we wonder what the reward can be. There must be some good come out of all this great evil. Perhaps the years to come will be so abounding in spiritual and material blessings and so rich in brotherhood and unity of mankind that we can look back on the great war as our Gethsemane following by the wondrous resurrection of all that is sublime in the soul of man.

The Allied governments should lose no time in digging that brutal old pirate Von Tirpitz out of his hiding place and stringing him up to a yard arm. If a precedent is required it can be found in the case of the late Capt. Kidd.

King George has issued messages of congratulation to the Empire, the army and navy and to the Allied governments.

Plans for the demobilization of Canada's army are now under way, and a committee to deal with the matter has been formed in the Militia Department. Lieut. Col. Arthur Sullivan, of Winnipeg, has been appointed secretary.

The armistice terms laid down by the Allies are undoubtedly strong, but they are mild in comparison to the terms the Huns would have imposed on the Allies had the position of affairs been reversed.

If you haven't yet purchased a Victory bond, get busy at once. If you have already bought a bond, celebrate the cessation of hostilities by buying another. The government of Canada needs the money.

Some Belgians with a pronounced sense of humor met the Kaiser's party on their arrival in Holland, and wanted to know from them if they were en route to Paris.

The United States government has withdrawn all voluntary censorship on the publication of shipping news, and the Dominion government will probably follow suit in a few days.

Lord Northcliffe, the English newspaper publisher, has resigned from the ministry of propaganda.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

Make a noise like peace.

The tumult and the shouting die.

The optimist is now more than ever wanted on deck.

lives depended on reaching their own land by nightfall.

What will we call our war gardens next year?

Brother Daggett's ailment has been diagnosed as dementia potatium.

Sambones rises to remark that de world am now safe for de crockery.

It's the fuel controller who realizes that you can't fuel all the people.

What some of the new winter hats seem to need is a shave.

The flu just happened along to remind us that the darkest hour is just before the dawn.

The peace celebration demonstrated once more the affinity that exists between the small boy and the tin pan.

Just now the world seems to me made up of two kinds of people—heroes and zeros.

A lot of people will pick up their 1913-14 thoughts right where they laid them down.

Chaperoning a furnace on its night out is nothing to camping out during the summer with a war garden.

It will seem strange for a while to live without war maps—but then one grows accustomed to anything.

Just think—this time next year people will likely be talking about football games.

THE DANGEROUS SLOPING ROOF.

To the Editor of the Mail.

Sir,—The building inspector has lately made us acquainted (?) with the fact that some of the city's landmarks are dangerous, particularly from the standpoint of fire.

Quite true; and how good to know that the inspector realizes it even now! But what about some of Fredericton's modern buildings with roofs sloping so that accumulations of snow and ice are deposited on the sidewalk? Are not these even more dangerous in another way? Pedestrians are entitled to protection, surely.

Measures can readily be adopted to "eliminate the obnoxious element"—that is, the style of roof that is a menace to public safety. Do it now. Do not wait until John Frost calls.

Yours for consistency.

N. O. SPASMS.

FINAL EFFORT IN VICTORY BOND CAMPAIGN

can easily afford cut yourselves down for the time being and later results will show that you are wise in what you are doing.

The Final Effort

Germany has been ground under the heel of Democracy for some time by the efforts of our brave boys and now is the time during the cessation of fighting to dig in and plan the homecoming of the soldiers which will surely be worth the money spent on it. Think of the stores of food and clothing necessary and give till your conscience smites you and let it knock and knock before you stop. Above all remember it is Fredericton's critical time and you must see it through!

Thought It Was a Boil Doctor Said Abscess

Mr. Gleason R. Young, Kingscroft, N.B., under date of February 9th, 1918 writes us as follows: "About five months ago, a lump came on my jaw-bone. I thought it was a boil, and after it had been there quite a while it began to get larger. I went to a doctor and he said it was an abscess, and lanced it. He gave me a wash for it, so I went by his directions until it healed up, but it commenced coming again, and in about three weeks it broke itself. I thought it would get better, but it didn't. A neighbor advised me to get a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, so I sent and got a bottle, and by the time it was all gone, the abscess had disappeared, and now it is all better."

Burdock Blood Bitters will heal and dry up sores, ulcers, and abscesses, no matter how large or of how long standing. If you have never applied it to a cut, wound, sore or ulcer, just try it and see what soothing, healing, cleansing power it possesses. It takes out itching, stinging and burning, and promotes the growth of healthy flesh. So, too, when taken internally, by its power of eliminating all impurities from the blood and making that vital fluid rich, red and pure, it cuts off the origin and source of the foul matter that goes to make boils, pimples, sores, ulcers, abscesses and the like, and at the same time the purified and enriched blood creates healthy tissue where there was formerly, perhaps a sore full of pus.

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for 46 years. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS OF CANADA

UNITE TO HELP

VICTORY LOAN

BY

WAR MEMORIAL

ONE MILLION SCHOLARS! ONE MILLION DOLLARS!

A million Sunday school scholars and members of Young People's Associations of the Anglican, Presbyterian, Baptist, Methodist and Congregational churches are co-operating on a plan which has the three-fold purpose of helping to boost the Victory Loan over the top; assisting the churches to extend their mission work, and commemorating the heroism of church members who have fallen at the front.

"Every school at least one bond," is the cry that will help to carry the 1918 Victory Loan to the Sunday schools' million dollar objective. Above is a reproduction of the shield to be presented to each Sunday School subscribing a bond.

Died at Woodstock
