POOR PAY IMPERILS FUTURE OF LEARNING

New York, Nov. 20.—Unless the endowment fund campaigns of Harvard, Princeton and Cornell are successful, there is a grave danger that those great institutions of learning will be unable to assemble faculties capable of maintaining the present high standard of instruction. So low in relation to living costs are the salaries of professors of universities and colleges that both men and women of the profession are seeking other fields of endeavor.

Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, president of Cornell University, recently said: "A throng of European poets and seers and scholars, scientists and inventors, who might have led the world forward in the next generation, have gone, leaving nothing but ashes scattered over battlefields between Paris and Petrograd. If the world is to go forward it devolves upon America to exert her powers of mind and assume an intellectual leadership to which she has never before aspired."

"Today, however, the man who minds the train gets more pay than the man who trains the mind. The unskilled laborer gets more compensation than the instructor of the engineer and conductor more than the professor. To save our universities we must prevent the depletion of our faculties. We must fill them with men of the best mind and training who are devoted to intellectual life."

DEPRECATED THE DISMISSAL OF PROFESSORS

Saskatoon, Sask., Nov. 21.—After a twelve hour debate convocation of the University of Saskatchewan late last night passed a resolution deprecating the manner in which four professors were dismissed from the faculty of the institution last mid-summer.

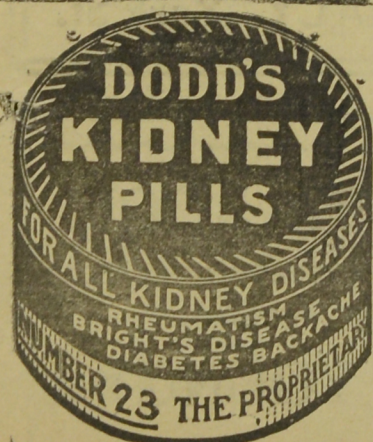

The resolution introduced earlier in the day urging that the Senate be prevailed upon to request the government to name a royal commission to enquire into the circumstances of the dismissals, was voted down.

Donald MacLean M. L. A., leader of the opposition to the provincial government pointed out that the University Act empowered the board of governors to employ or discharge members of the staff at will and the government, consequently would have no option but to refuse the application.

FROM A CHILD WAS CONSTIPATED

According to the best medical authorities, fully three-fourths of the people of the civilized world suffer in some form from costiveness or irregular action of the bowels. There is no doubt that many distressing diseases are caused by constipation. It gives rise to sick and bilious headaches, jaundice, heartburn, floating specks before the eyes, catarrh of the stomach, biliousness and the painful, troublesome piles. Therefore, it is of supreme importance to health that the bowels be kept regular. Simple food, fruit, etc. should be used, and rich food and stimulants of all kinds avoided. This, with the use of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills to regulate and establish healthy action of the bowels cannot fail to give permanent relief in the most obstinate cases.

Mrs. Letitia Wainman, Orilla, Ont., writes:—"From a child I was always very badly constipated, and I can well remember when quite young, my mother giving me senna tea nearly every morning, and I got to dread it. After taking Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for a while I am no troubled with constipation any more."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Got Things Mixed

St. John Times: It is said that amongst the stock of wet goods taken by liquor inspectors Wednesday was found bottles of gin, brandy and Scotch whiskey, all with the same lead seal placed over the cork, each being the impression of a bunch of grapes. Brandy bottles bore the crescent label with the three stars, pasted on the neck of the bottle, similar to that used by one of the large manufacturers of brandy, but by some curious mistake the amateur bottler also placed the three star label on several of his bottles of Scotch whiskey.

The proof of the pudding is do they ask for more?

Remember that the Hon. Jim Pinder voted against the Hon. Jim Murray's restoration to the party leadership.

THE PRINCE OF WALES VISITS THE HORSE SHOW

Was the Principal Figure in a Great Gathering at Madison Square Garden—Miss Eva Booth Made an Honorary Member of the Reception Committee and Received Special Attention from His Royal Highness—War Veterans in a Parade.

(New York Herald)

For an hour during the middle of the afternoon Edward Albert was initiated into one of New York's typical routine pleasures a session at the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden. It was his first association with an expression of metropolitan life that had not been arranged specially for his entertainment, although the matinee at the show developed naturally into one of the unusual incidents in the social life of New York.

As the result excellent arrangements for the handling of a great crowd made well in advance and rigidly carried out under the direction of Mr. John R. Townsend, of the Executive Committee of the National Horse Show Association, with the aid of two hundred policemen numerous detectives of the Police Department and sixty private detectives, the crowd in the Garden, estimated at 9,000 persons became a crush but never a jam, except in one instance at the entrance during the leaving of the Prince.

For fifteen minutes before the arrival of the Prince and his suite at a quarter to three o'clock, the promenade in front of the arena boxes was cleared of all persons. Thus he arrived in plain view of everyone and without being obliged to edge his way through what otherwise would have been an unseemly congestion of naturally curious persons.

Met by Reception Committee

He was met at the Madison avenue entrance to the Garden by Mr. Townsend, as chairman of the reception committee. Mr. Robert A. Fairbairn, president of the Horse Show Association, Mr. Alfred B. Maclay, the vice president, Mr. R. Lawrence Smith, chairman of the committee and Messrs. I. J. R. Muir and Reginald C. Vanderbilt of the board of directors. Miss Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army which is receiving all the income from the show this week, was made an honorary member of the reception committee, and it was to Miss Booth that the Prince paid special attention. He insisted that she should sit beside him when he reached the large elevated box in the centre of the line of arena boxes on the Twenty-sixth street side of the Garden, which had been decorated in American and British colors and refurbished for his use.

In the entrance foyer there was a spectacle that brought the royal guest to an abrupt stop and made his eyes glisten. It was one of several logical touches that Mr. Townsend's committee gave to the reception scheme. At attention at either side of the corridor stood one hundred and fifty veterans of the Royal Air Force who are living in New York. All were in uniform and presented an inspiring military appearance.

The British veterans of the war had paraded from the Seventh Regiment Armory under the command of Major Geoffrey Bonnell, who was in command in the Garden, with Lieutenant Henry N. Eyre, as next in command. Lieutenant Eyre is the secretary of the Royal Air Force Club in New York, which is to become a permanent organization. The British veterans remained the guard of honor for the Prince during his stay in the Garden and were reviewed by him in the outer lobby as he left. Then he did what undoubtedly had been in his mind when he first saw the fine array of British air fighters. He had a word with each of them and wished all "the best of luck in the future."

Admires Radiant Miss Sears' Entry

When the Prince arrived Class No. 115 for saddle horses was being judged. The Ring Committee for the afternoon consisted of Mr. I. J. R. Muir and Mr. Alfred B. Maclay. When the applause that greeted him had subsided and he had seated himself with Miss Booth at one side and Mr. Fairbairn at the other, he asked of the latter about entry No. 303. It was Radiant, ridden by its owner, Miss Elanora R. Sears, Class No. 139 for qualified middleweight hunters, followed and while that class was being judged the Prince was taken to the fudge's box in the middle of the tankard ring. There he stayed for fifteen minutes watching the judging with keen interest. It was pleasing to note that when he arose to go into the ring the audience also stood, and those nine thousand persons remained on their feet while the chief guest of the afternoon was on his feet. It was then that Henri Conrad's band, that had welcomed him with "God Save the King," played "God Bless the Prince of Wales," an air that in a few days has been incorporated into New York whistling repertory.

The royal guest left the garden at a quarter to four o'clock with the remark to Mr. Fairbairn that he was to be congratulated upon the splendid exhibition, and he added, "I am sorry to have to leave." A standing audience gave him godspeed with handclapping and cheers.

How did the Prince dress for the Horse Show? A natural question.

In the first place, all the men present who wore top hats noticed that he wore a black bowler. He wore a sack suit of steel gray worsted, the coat being closed with three buttons and the lower edges of the opening being cut round. His collar was a low turn down. His scarf was of dark blue. His overcoat was an unbelted loosely fitted garment of light gray rough worsted in herringbone design, and had a dark brown velvet collar. His shoes were black calfskin with dark gray sued, and he carried a stick with a crooked handle, which he frequently flung over his left forearm.

His Clothes Fit Him

Congratulations to Edward Albert's London tailor. His clothes fitted him perfectly. He was the best dressed man in the garden.

THE FALL WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Canadian fall weather is extremely hard on little ones. One day is warm and bright and the next wet and cold. These sudden changes bring on colds, cramps and colic and unless baby's little stomach is kept right the result may be serious. There is nothing to equal Baby's Own Tablets in keeping the little ones well. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, break up colds and make baby thrive. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

If she is a "British Bride" she will be very fond of tea—and good tea, at that.

She will first be attracted to Red Rose Tea by the name which will remind her of the "Red Rose" of "Old England".

And when she tries it she will again be reminded of the "Homeland", for she will find Red Rose Tea the same kind of Tea that she has used at home—a rich, full-flavored blend, consisting chiefly of ASSAM teas grown in British-owned plantations in northern India.
