Bathing Beauties in a New Thriller—Movie Actors Had a Narrow Escape from Death.

Admirers of pictures in which bathing beauties are featured will have an opportunity to feast their eyes in addition to a number of other thrills and high class features, on an outdoor bathing scene of unique character in Elaine Hammerstein's first Selznick release, "The Country Cousin," written by Julian Street and Booth Tarkington.

Selznick has just announced an original screen play entitled "The Magdalene of Mudville," which will be used as a vehicle for Olive Thomas.

Sheer movie luck, and lots of it, was all that saved Kathleen O'Connor, Jack Perrin and Gertrude Astor from death or serious injury when the second floor of a movie set fell in on them during the production of a serial at Universal City. The entire upper floor gave way, burying them in a mass of wreckage. A rough wooden table saved the trio from serious injury.

William Farnum took his little girl to see her famous daddy as Buck Duane in "The Last of the Duanes," a Fox production. He wanted to escape recognition and managed all right till the last scene, when the little girl looked into his eyes and queried: "Daddy, dear, do those bad men really shoot you?"

Booth Tarkington, one of the foremost American authors of today, and certainly the greatest interpreter of youth, has been secured by Samuel Goldwyn to do a series of twelve two-reel comedies for Goldwyn.

The Christie Film Co. has released a hilarious burlesque of the old time movie melodrama under the title "Wild and Western," a cowboy comedy with Fay Tincher in the leading role as One-Round Rosie of the Rough Neck Ranch.

Zena Keefe, the young actress who Myron Selznick proposes to make a star of at the end of one year, is scheduled to play opposite Eugene O'Brien in his next Selznick production, "His Wife's Money."

One of the most riotous scenes ever included in a comedy produced by Henry Lehrman was staged at the Lehrman studios as part of "A Twilght Baby." The scene was laid in a country grocery and a free-for-all fight took place, which only ceased when the setting was reduced to ruins and there remained nothing else to throw.

The Famous Players-Lasky Corporation has signed Violet Heming to a long term contract. She will shortly be seen on the screen in the title role of "Everywoman," Paramount's special production of Walter Browne's successful morality play.

From Maine to California 1,400 theatres have booked "Sacred Silence," from the Fox studios. It is a story of a man's sacrifice for a woman's honor and is said to be packed with action.

George Bunny, brother of the late and famous John Bunny, has been engaged by Myron Selznick to play a prominent supporting role in Owen Moore's picture, "Piccadilly Jim."

THE DOCTOR'S CHANCE.

Not so very long ago Attorney Lou Guernsey was quite ill. A doctor was summoned but after he arrived and got a look at his patient he said:

"Sorry but you'll have to call another doctor."

"Am I as sick as all that?" gasped Guernsey.

"No, but you're the lawyer that cross examined me when I was called to give expert testimony in a serious case. My conscience won't let me kill you, but I'm darned if I care to cure you."
