BIG CROP OF TOMATOES

(Toronto News)

Visions of catsup and chili sauce were very much in evidence at the St. Lawrence Market today. The market looked red with tomatoes. Farmers say they have not had such a good tomato crop for many a year. All the baskets were neatly packed and the scarlet skins were bright and flawless. The price asked for an eleven quart basket of tomatoes was alternately 35 cents and 40 cents.

One young dark-haired son from the shores of the Mediterranean had struck a bargain in oranges. He was doing a tremendous trade in these at 25c a dozen. He stated that he had been able to buy in a very large stock and that that was why he could afford to let them go so cheaply.

Peaches were expensive today. 1.75 a basket was being asked by most of the men from the country. "It's been a little too dry for the peach crop this year," replied one farmer when asked why the price was up this week.

Ontario apples are coming along now and among the early varieties were the Duchess. These delicious eating apples were selling rapidly at 75c for an eleven quart basket, but one marketer who remembered what the price used to be in bygone years thought that 75 cents was a great deal too much to be asking. Alexandria apples were 90c a large, and 50c a small basket.

There is such a thing as being too optimistic. If Noah, for instance, had listened to his optimistic friends where would you be today?

"It takes two to make a home," says a Nashville preacher, and someone sets the parson right by informing him that it "takes two to start a home."

WELL DESERVED TRIBUTE TO NEW LIBERAL LEADER

Hon. Mackenzie King is One of Few Canadians Who Can Lay Claim to International Fame—Has Specialized on Economic Subjects Since His Student Days—Is the Author of the Industrial Relationship Plan.

(H. C., in Toronto Saturday Night)

Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, the new leader of the Liberal Party, is one of the few living Canadian Liberals who may lay claim to international fame. This he owes to his actual achievements in dealing with the vexed problem of labor and capital—a subject in which he has specialized since his student days. Politically he is a protégé of Sir William Mullock, who while serving as Postmaster-General in the Laurier Cabinet induced Sir Wilfrid to establish a Department of Labor. For a time Sir William held the joint offices of Postmaster-General and Minister of Labor, but chose Mr. King then a very young man, as his Deputy, and to the latter the work of organizing the department was delegated. Finally, in 1902, Sir Wilfrid decided to make the Labor branch a full-fledged Ministerial department, and on June 2nd, of that year, Mr. King was sworn in as a Cabinet Minister. It has been a tradition for some years that Sir Wilfrid who had a great admiration for Mr. King's oratorical powers, predicted that he would one day be leader of the Liberal Party, and the prophecy (if uttered) has come to pass more quickly than the old chieftain could have anticipated.

Mr. King is a grandson of the famous rebel leader, William Lyon Mackenzie, but much abler than that turbulent and ill-balanced individual. He was born at Berlin (now Kitchener), Ont., on December 17th, 1874, the son of the late John King, K. C., a well-known barrister and expert on libel law. His education was remarkably complete. He is a graduate of the University of Toronto, and holds the degrees of B. A., M. A., and LL.B., in that institution, and took post-graduate courses at the University of Chicago and at Harvard University, in which he holds the degrees of M.A. and Ph.D. While at Harvard he formed a close friendship with Charles Elliott Norton, and other eminent Americans. He was one of the first Canadians to specialize in sociology and industrial problems, and has a world-wide reputation as an authority on these questions. While pursuing his studies he also served as a newspaper reporter on the Toronto Globe and the Toronto Mail and Empire. His entry into political and official life through the foresight of Sir William Mullock has been outlined, and during the years that he was Deputy Minister of Labor he took part in the adjudication of innumerable industrial disputes, and in immigration problems. One of the most important duties he was called upon to fulfill was that of one of the British Government's Commissioners on the International Commission to deal with the opium question, which met at Shanghai, China, in 1909.

He was one of the Ministers on the Reciprocity issue in 1911, and since then has been a private citizen. But in 1914 the Rockefeller Foundation of the United States appointed him Director of Investigation of Industrial Relations. His services in that capacity have been magnificent, and he is the actual author of the Industrial Relationship plan—"Colorado" plan, so named because it was first applied in connection with the mines of that State—which has since been adopted by the Standard Oil Company and its allied corporations, the International Harvester Company, and other great concerns. His book, "Industry and Humanity," is one of the ablest works on the problems of capital and labor ever penned. He is also the real author of most Canadian legislation for the settlement of labor disputes, and the Whitley Councils of Great Britain are in part modelled on his ideas.

Apart from his powers as a student and thinker, his oratorical gifts are unexcelled by any Canadian, and though he has gained no very wide reputation as a practical politician, his growing strength in the councils of Canadian Liberalism was made apparent in his victory at the Ottawa Convention.

FOOD SPECULATORS ARE BLAMED BY HOOVER FOR FOOD SITUATION

Neither Over Exportation Nor Real Shortage, He Declares—

Enormous Food Stocks Held in European Ports are Likely to Spoil—Prosecution of Profiteers, He Believes, Might Relieve the Grave Situation.

Paris, Sept. 2.—A distressing era of speculation in foodstuffs in the United States and throughout the world's primary food markets is largely responsible for high food costs, in the opinion of Herbert Hoover, Chairman of the Inter-Allied organization, who, on the even of his departure for the United States, granted the Associated Press an interview today.

Wharves and warehouses in Northern European ports are overflowing with foodstuffs, principally meats, fats and dairy products, sent by merchants all over the world, Mr. Hoover said. These merchants, he declared, had "gambled" on sales in Poland, Czechoslovakia, the Baltic States and Germany, at high prices, but these states have only a depreciated local currency, and many commodities are in danger of spoiling, as the central European market for foodstuffs is limited to the ability of the people to buy on credit.

Wholesale Speculation

"This year's speculation," Mr. Hoover said, "are due in my opinion, chiefly to the belief of food merchants and manufacturers that when the blockade was removed there would be an enormous demand for foodstuffs and other commodities in central and Eastern Europe. This speculation was not due to any important shortage at present of actual supply. This speculation, which was not confined to food was greatly stimulated by the long delay in the removal of the blockade until the Peace Treaty was signed at Versailles. There is plenty of evidence that this was true of foodstuffs in glutted ports in Northern Europe where only neutrals have the means to buy."

Approves Prosecutions

Responding to an inquiry as to how food speculation could be checked in America Mr. Hoover replied:

"Attorney General Palmer is on the right track when he endeavors to break down speculation and seeks to secure powers never possessed by former administrations to enable him to accomplish this step. The situation is one that may well cause anxiety also from another point of view. We are now coming into a flood of production of foodstuffs in the Northern hemisphere and will again have a great surplus in the United States. If in the meantime, Europe has not found credits to purchase the coming winter supplies, we are likely to have a glut and prices may fall below the cost of production to American farmers."

"The present high prices of food are not due to over exports to Europe from the United States during the past year. That can be demonstrated by the fact that we enter a new harvest with larger stocks of previous years' production than at this time last year. In fact, the stocks of many commodities are the largest we ever had in storage at this season. Yet prices are very much higher. If we are to account for the high price level on the basis of over exports we should have to find a depletion of our national stocks."

Mr. Hoover pointed out that the problems involved in the speculative wave were very difficult to deal with because it was world-wide and not confined to American.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 2.—Cleveland must pay two or three cents more a quart for milk, or find its supply cut off, according to an ultimatum from farmers in the hands of the milk distributors today. More than 100 farmers were reported in the combine.
