"I am happy to be able to make the statement in this old French city of Quebec, to be able to proclaim that the basis and aims of our ideals and hopes as Liberals are that we are, before and above all, Canadians—Canadians in the fullest acceptance of the term, Canadians at Quebec, Canadians at Toronto and Canadians from the shores of the Gulf of St. Lawrence to the famous mountains whose feet are kissed by the waves of the Pacific."—Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

HUNS HAVE ACCEPTED NEW TERMS OF ARMISTICE DICTATED BY ALLIES

Paris, Feb. 17.—The Germans have accepted the new armistice terms, which, it is understood, provide for the continuation of the blockade during the armistice.

The official statement on the meeting of the Supreme War Council says: "The Supreme War Council met today at the Quai d'Orsay from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m. Marshal Foch informed the ministers of the Allied and associated powers of the acceptance by the Germans of the renewal of the armistice. The next meeting will take place tomorrow at 2 p. m. when the Serbian delegation will be heard."

TALE OF WOODEN GUN THAT SAVED HULL AND ENGLAND'S SHIPPING

Hun Zeppelins Were Frightened Off When They Caught Sight of It—Enemy Might Have Wiped British Army Shipping Base and Naval Coaling Centre Off the Map—Story That Promises to Become One of the Legends of the War.

London, Feb. 14.—This is the story of day.

the wooden gun that saved Hull and the shipping of England. The ancient mariners along the quays of Hull chuckle when they relate it.

Month by month the story grows; when the last soldier is demobilized the story will have become one of the legends of the war.

A Scotchman in a Yorkshire pub was recently heard to say to his cronies with a solemn drag at his pipe:

"Mon, it was a wooden gun as saved England. If not for the wooden gun of Hull we would all be Prussians to-

And when you ask a native of Hull to tell you something about the Zeppelin raids that terrorized the city for three years he will omit many details—the details of the women and children and old men who died of terror in the streets, of the scores who were blown to atoms while in their beds, of the thousands fleeing in the dead of night through the streets into the marshes and the fields. He will omit these things and with a smile tell you that the British government played a great joke on the people of Hull by placing a wooden gun on top of a building and making believe it would fight off the Zeppelins.

However, the joke wasn't so much on the people of Hull as on the Zeppelins, for when they came over the city in March, 1916, and for an hour hung over the defenceless port, which was the coaling centre for the British fleet, the shipping base for the British army and the second greatest port in England, they suddenly turned tail and flew away. One of the Zeps, flying 800 feet above the roofs, had located the wooden gun with its search lights and instead of leisurely blowing Hull off the map, as was entirely possible, had given the word to the Zep fleet that the quays were protected by a barrage and had taken flight, dropping bombs haphazardly as they sailed away.

And the people of Hull, standing by thousands in the streets, watched the soldiers on the roof go through many sinister motions beside the dummy gun, with never a shot.

This part of the government's joke was on the people of Hull. For the munition workers had threatened to leave unless protection was given against the Zeps, and the dock workers had threatened to quit in a body and the population had stormed the house of the lord mayor threatening to abandon the city. This was after the raids of June and August, 1915. Whereupon there had come from London a train bearing a ferocious looking weapon and a company of soldiers to manipulate it. Amid cheers the weapon had been mounted on the roof and, content in the belief that the next Zep raiders would get their money's worth, the frightened populace and workers had returned to their posts.

The Zeps came back again and again—but their great chance had passed. The Admiralty had finally decided to arm Hull and give it searchlights. Each time the searchlights located the Zep and the barrage sent them scurrying away.

"It is a thing we'll wonder about all our lives," said a city official, "why Hull wasn't wiped out in June and August of 1915 and March of the next year. Hull was the most shining target the Zeps could ask for.

"Finally the terror grew so that it became dangerous. Then the wooden gun appeared. We cried with joy. And in March the Zeps came again. They had their bearings this time. They flew about leisurely for an hour picking out places to blow up. And then they saw the wooden gun.

This, omitting several thousand details, is the story of the wooden gun. As verification of the miracle the people of Hull point to their port. It—the war base for the British army and navy, exposed and defenceless for two years of warfare, stands intact.

A woman, very desirous of concealing the awful fact that she is the same age as her husband, observed to a visitor: "My husband is 40; there is just five years between us."

"Is it possible?" was the unguarded reply of the visitor. "I give you my word you look as young as he does."

A ham will not dry up and get hard if you fry out some of the fat and let it become hard. Then spread it over the cut end of the ham about a half-inch thick. This will exclude the air. The fat can be scraped off before slicing the ham and afterward spread on again, as before.

SAYS A CORN ACTS LIKE ELECTRIC BELL

Tells why a corn is so painful and says cutting makes them grow.

Press an electric button and you form a contact with a live wire which rings the bell. When your shoes press against your corn it pushes its sharp roots down upon a sensitive nerve and you get a shock of pain.

Instead of trimming your corns, which merely makes them grow, just step into any drug store and ask for a quarter of an ounce of freezone. This will cost very little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. A few drops applied directly upon a tender, aching corn stops the soreness instantly, and soon the corn shrivels up so it lifts right out, root and all, without pain. This drug never inflames or even irritates the surrounding tissue or skin.

"After the Storm"

Buy War-Savings Stamps at $4.01 each as often as you can. Build up a strong investment in Government securities bearing high interest—and help to finance the Reconstruction.

Our soldiers are being disbanded and returned to civilian life, as poster picture indicates. There is urgent need for the production of more food and other supplies, as well as the means to carry our products. All these things are for Canada's good, and are essential to Prosperity.

But they necessitate the Government spending large sums of money, and this money must be borrowed at high rates of interest.

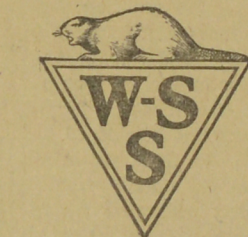

In order to keep this interest in Canada and to give EVERYONE a chance to profit by it, the loan is floated in a denomination of only $4.01, maturing on the first day of 1924, at $5.00.

In order that even the smallest savings shall share the privileges of the War-Savings Stamp plan, THRIFT Stamps may be purchased for 25 cents each, sixteen of which affixed to a Thrift Card will be exchanged for a War-Savings Stamp.
